Common Situs Picketing Measure Loses By Upset

WASHINGTON (AP) — A bill that would have strengthened the hand of striking construction unions is dead not only for this year but for the foreseeable future, a dejected sponsor says.

In a stinging defeat for organized labor and the House Democratic leadership, the common situs picketing bill went down to a surprise defeat Wednesday night on a 217 to 205 vote.

Although it directly affected only the building trades, the vote was the first test of organized labor's strength in the new and heavily Democratic Congress.

The bill's prime sponsor, Rep. Frank Thompson Jr., D-N.J., said the vote killed the legislation for the foreseeable future. He also said the outcome bodes ill for labor's campaign against right-to-work laws.

Conservatives and business lobbied intensively against the bill, which would have allowed a union to shut down an entire construction site in a dispute with only one subcontractor.

House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill

said he had never seen organizations lobby as hard as the picketing bill's opponents. Before the vote, a pessimistic O'Neill chided labor for not mounting an effective drive to muster support for the bill.

The House passed a similar bill in 1975, 229 to 189. It was vetoed in January 1976 by then — President Gerald R. Ford.

"When you get careless along the line, the train goes off the track," O'Neill said. Despite the speaker's efforts to keep Democrats in line, 88 voted with 129 Republicans against the bill. Only 14 Republicans voted for it.

The majority was fashioned out of a coalition of Republicans and southern Democrats, including all nine from President Carter's home state of Georgia.

Carter, who won with overwhelming labor support in a narrow contest against Ford last fall, stayed out of the fray. Carter had said merely that he would sign the bill if Congress passed it.

Ford initially backed the common situs bill in 1975, but vetoed it under heavy pressure from conservatives.

Deputies Continue Probe Of Auto Larceny Case

Pickaway County Sheriff's Deputies Jim Deal and Danny Dewey are still attempting to unravel the suspected crimes committed by five Cleveland residents who were apprehended while driving a stolen car through the county shortly before midnight Wednesday.

Thus far, the deputies have tied three stolen cars to the case, the robbery of items from a Cleveland house a year ago, and the robbery of items from the same house last week to the three adults and two juveniles.

To further complicate the case, several traffic charges have been lodged and the Ohio State Highway Patrol is investigating an accident in which one of the men was struck by a car while being questioned by Deputy Dewey.

Those arrested and the charges are: Andrew James Holmes, 21, receiving stolen property;

Johnny Elswick, 17, receiving stolen property and possession of stolen credit cards;

Brian Carter, 16, receiving stolen property and driving a car with no operator's license;

John R. Temple, 29, displaying fictitious registration;

And Patricia Elswick, 45, who is being held for the Cleveland Police Department on a contempt of court charge stemming from a burglary investigation.

Temple was injured when he was struck by a car driven by Lawrence L. Hall, 26, Route 1, Lockbourne. Hall's vehicle drifted off the right side of Route 23 while it was being pursued by Ohio State Highway Patrol Trooper Ed Urban.

Hall, who was later stopped, was charged with operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of alcohol or drugs and possession.

Deputy Dewey, who stopped Temple's car, was in the process of copying the car's serial number from the driver's door when the accident occurred.

The car was parked on the east berm of Route 23 on the downslope of "Bunker Hill," about two miles south of South Bloomfield.

Temple was apparently standing beside the Deputty about two feet off the edge of the road. Deputy Dewey, who spotted the car moments before it struck Temple, was able to throw himself against Temple's vehicle to avoid being hit. He suffered a minor injury to his back.

Four Ohio State Highway Patrol cars were called to direct traffic around the injured Temple, who was treated at the scene of the accident by the Harrisburg Squad. He was later checked at Berger Hospital for minor contusions and released.

The incident began about 11:30 p.m. when Deputy Deal was told of two suspicious cars on Route 23 by a passing truck driver. The trucker, using a citizen band radio, told the Deputy that the two cars had followed him from Waverly and had not passed his rig even though he allowed them several opportunities.

The Deputy, who was responding to a domestic disturbance in the northern part of the county, spotted the vehicles on Route 23 near Hagerty Road and followed the lead car, a 1975 white Ford Mustang II, when the second vehicle, an older model Ford, pulled to the berm.

Deputy Dewey, also traveling to the

Speedy Drought Aid Seen By Congress

WASHINGTON (AP) — Quick action on President Carter's drought relief program is being predicted in Congress, despite grumbling about his plan to charge farmers 5 per cent interest on loans to buy water.

"Obviously the President shares my own sense of urgency regarding the severe drought," Rep. Morris K. Udall, D-Ariz., chairman of the House Interior Committee, said after the program was unveiled Wednesday.

"I am in substantial agreement with the proposals outlined in his message to the Congress and am confident the committee will act expeditiously on this urgent matter."

Rhodes Gas Solution Hits Snag

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A Federal Power Commission ruling that Gov. James A. Rhodes is relying on as a precedent for his plan to transmit Ohio self-help gas through federally regulated pipelines may not apply.

The FPC formally refuses to comment on the plan but it points out that the Colorado case Rhodes is banking on is not identical to the Ohio plan.

Rhodes has managed to extract a promise from Columbia Gas System Inc., parent to Columbia Gas of Ohio, that the conglomerate will carry so-called self-help gas in its interstate pipelines.

Those lines traditionally are reserved for gas committed to the interstate market. The FPC controls the movement and price of that gas. Interstate gas now costs about $1.44 per 1,000 cubic feet. The Ohio self-help gas would bring between $2 and $2.25 for the same quantity.

The self-help concept is a push by Rhodes to encourage independent drillers to develop Ohio gas wells on the assurance that the gas could be sold at the unregulated, higher price and in Ohio only.

There now are several self-help wells owned by industries but there was a problem last winter in getting the gas from the wells to the industry.

The Rhodes plan, agreed to by Columbia, will solve some of those problems.

But an FPC spokesman in Washington said that the Colorado case allowed intrastate (unregulated) gas to move in interstate (regulated) pipelines because those pipelines terminated in Colorado and there wasn't a chance that "one molecule of unregulated gas could leave the state."

Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., chairman of the Senate Committee on Energy and Natural Resources, also said he was pleased with parts of Carter's message, but added there were "some problems ... which will have to be reviewed very carefully."

He said that "in light of the emergency," the farmers should receive grants, not loans at 5 per cent interest.

At a House hearing on drought relief, Secretary of the Interior Cecil Andrus said Congress has provided for 5 per cent loans to farmers in other types of disaster relief programs and the Carter proposal was in line with this policy.

Rep. Lloyd Meeds, D-Wash., chairman of the House Interior subcommittee on water and power, said this seemed "untoward."

He added, "I suggest you rethink the entire approach of 5 per cent interest on disaster."

Carter asked Congress to approve a program of loans and grants totaling $844 million for farmers, businessmen and communities in the drought-stricken West and Midwest.

"If we are to be of real help to the people afflicted, time is of the essence," the President said.

Carter also said he had asked the interior and Agriculture Departments to make additional federal land available for grazing.

Some congressional sources predicted this would arouse opposition from environmentalists who have argued that public lands are grazed beyond their capacity already.

The Carter package also contains: —Temporary authority to allow the Economic Development Administration and the Farmers Home Administration to grant $150 million and loan $300 million to communities for emergency improvements to their water systems.

—A Small Business Administration program providing $50 million in low interest loans to small businesses in drought areas.

—A program that could provide $100 million in 5 per cent loans to farmers and ranchers in the drought areas to cover prospective losses.

awards. Second row: Ghay Holcomb, Division of Safety and Hygiene committee member; Lawrence J. Whalen, campaign and congress manager for the Division of Safety and Hygiene; Ed Farynowski, General Electric, group award; and T.D. Van Camp, Van Camp Materials Company, 100 per cent award.

Close to 80 people attended the first annual Safety Banquet sponsored in part by the Circleville Area Chamber of Commerce and the Industrial Commission of Ohio.

Awards were presented to four companies in Pickaway County for excellence in safety practices on the job. The dinner guests also heard a humorous talk by the evening's speaker, R. F. "Dutch" Struck.

For the Accident Prevention Contest held in 1976, Group Awards were presented to three companies that compiled the greatest number of man-hours worked with the least number of lost-time injuries. Winners in this category are the General Electric Lamp Plant, the Circleville Publishing Company and Pittsburgh Plate Glass, Industries, Inc.

In the 100 Per Cent Safety Award category, winners were chosen based on the entire year without a single lost-time injury. The Circleville Publishing Company, PPG Industries and Van Camp Materials qualified and received plaques for this honor.

The group safety award plaques noted that the companies were honored "for the contribution to safety by their supervisory personnel and employees." The safety merit certificates recognized the "100 per cent accident prevention record" of the companies that received them.

Both honors were sponsored by the Division of Safety and Hygiene of the state's Industrial Commission and the Circleville Chamber.

Whiskey Vat Pickles Enjoy Sales Boom

FARMINGDALE, N.Y. (AP) — Nat Stern pickles his pickles in charred oak barrels previously used for aging whiskey. Could that be the secret?

Nat Stern also has an abiding dislike of machinery. Could that be it?

Whatever it is, it has kept Stern's pickle works in business at the same old stand since 1894, a boon not only to the Stern family but also to four generations of Long Island gastronomes. Long Island is the only place on earth you can find a Stern pickle and surely worth the trip. Nat Stern does not export. That may be part of his secret too.

"We make pickles exactly the way they were made when this place opened," Nat Stern said.

"The formula is the same for the brine. The spices are the same. The amount of dill weed is the same. Nothing has changed. We have never used chemicals and never will. We do try to improve the quality of our cucumbers—we even provide the seed to our growers. But the pickling process is the same.

"As for the barrels, the fact that they once held whiskey has nothing to do with the taste of the pickle, at least I don't think it has.

"It's just that cooerage is practically a lost art nowadays. Distilleries are the best source of charred oak barrels because they can use them only once. The wood is what matters. You can't make a real pickle in anything except wood."

Nat Stern should know. He is 74, the son of the founder, and has spent many a pungent day at the pickle works.

Nat's father, Aaron Stern, came to America from Austria with not much more than a pushcart and a dream. Up and down Delaney St. on Manhattan's Lower East Side he peddled pickles.

"They weren't his own pickles, though," his son explained, "so he had no advantage over any other peddler with the same pickles. He figured that if he made his own pickles their quality would be the selling point and he could avoid the price-juggling rat race. That belief hasn't changed either."

So Aaron Stern moved to Long Island, out in the country where the cucumbers grew.

Most of that vast farmland has long since been paved over; Nat's cucumber suppliers follow the harvest from Mexico to Michigan. The pickle works, though, remains as Aaron Stern built it.

Nat and his nephew, Joe Steuer, have run the business since Aaron Stern died in 1952.

"My father's wish was that everything would remain the same, that we would operate the business the way he did," Nat Stern said. "We have honored his request.

"You will notice there is no machinery around here. That's the real secret of our pickles.

"If we got any bigger we would have to have machines put the pickles in jars. The way we do it, the way it has been done for 83 years, every pickle goes into the jar by hand. Only the best get in.

"That is the way it will continue to be done, by hand. Machines have no conscience."

Deputies Continue . . .

domestic call, circled in behind the older model Ford and both cars were stopped by the Deputies within 100 feet on Route 23 at Bunker Hill.

In checking the Mustang through the NCIC computer, Deputy Deal found that the license plate was registered to a 1974 beige Ford which had been stolen March 16 from Robyn L. Watts of Akron.

When the serial number of the Mustang was traced, Deputy Deal discovered that the vehicle had been stolen March 13 from its owner, Ron Kalas of Brookpark, near Cleveland.

The Deputy found that keys from a General Motors car were in the ignition switch, which fell out of the socket when they were moved.

With OSP Trooper Urban and South Bloomfield Deputy Marshall Harold Hopkins controlling traffic, Deputy Deal searched the car and found a sack containing new clothes.

Carter, the car's driver, and Holmes and Elswick were arrested by the Deputy.

In the meantime, Deputy Dewey was administering first aid to Temple, who had been struck by the Hall car.

Passengers in his car were Patricia Elswick, 45, Nancy Elswick, 18, and two young juveniles.

While questioning the three men at Sheriff's headquarters, Deputy Deal found a checkbook, Savings Bonds, and two credit cards owned by John P. Vacha of Cleveland.

In a telephone conversation with Vacha, Deputy Deal learned that the Savings Bonds and credit cards were included in about $600 worth of items which were stolen from his house March 16. At the same time, thieves also took his 1972 model car.

The checkbook was taken from Vacha's house in a 1976 burglary, he said.

Deputy Deal also discovered that Vacha's Bank Americard was used Wednesday to purchase $44.57 worth of clothing items from a K-Mart store in Chesapeake.

Deputy Dewey charged Temple with driving with fictitious registration when he found that 30-day license tags on the car had been altered to reflect that they were still valid.

Through the Salvation Army, the Deputies found lodging for the night for Mrs. Elswick, Nancy Elswick, and the two youngsters.

While talking with Cleveland Police, they discovered that an active warrant was on file for Mrs. Elswick, who they expected to arrest Thursday morning.

Nepotism Seen

On Indiana Payrolls

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — State Rep. William Drozda, D-Gary, says at least 14 officials in the state unemployment office have close relatives on the payroll.

This proves personal ties outweigh merit in the office's hiring and promotion policies, Drozda said Wednesday.

Division Director John F. Coppes, said, "I haven't had time to check it out" but added there was no wrongdoing "as far as I know."

Drozda called for an investigation by the State Board of Accounts, state and federal civil rights commissions and the State Personnel Division.

He said, "Fourteen families control many of the highest positions in the division."

Mental Health

Program Expands

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The state mental health and mental retardation programs are experiencing rapid progress in construction of community care programs, according to Dr. Timothy B. Moritz, director of the Department of Mental Health and Mental Retardation.

Moritz said the department has completed or started 237 community projects in the last two years, costing $146.9 million, about 50 per cent funded by the state.

The construction increase means 37,611 patients are served in state-funded community facilities, more than twice the number of patients involved in such programs two years ago.

High Court Upholds Phone Charge

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Ohioans banking on the Supreme Court to reinstitute free telephone directory assistance were the losers Wednesday as the court upheld Cincinnati Bell's practice of charging for the service.

In a case brought by a group of Cincinnati Bell customers, the court upheld a Public Utilities Commission of Ohio ruling, dismissing the customer complaints that the charge for directory assistance calls was discriminatory.

Cincinnati Bell began charging 20 cents for all directory assistance calls over three a month in 1973 with PUCCO approval. The plan also allowed Bell to charge for assistance in getting numbers in the 513 area code even though a customer might not have access to the appropriate directory.

Justice Paul W. Brown, writing for the 6-1 majority concluded:

"Other courts have stated, and we observe, that tariff structuring is essentially discriminatory. The recent trend of relating costs of service more directly to tariff structuring seems in this case to assure fairer and more nondiscriminatory rates to all classes of users to the extent that cost structuring can be shown to require those using a utility service pay for it . . ."

4 Pesticides Approved

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Environmental Protection Agency has approved four experimental pesticides to partially combat an expected epidemic of caterpillars on cotton, America's fourth-ranked cash crop.

A fifth was also approved Wednesday to protect the pear crop in Oregon and Washington that is threatened by an aphidlike insect called the pear psylla. It could cause $13 million in losses without the insecticide BAAM, EPA said.

EPA administrator Douglas M. Costle said that between $20 million and $40 million worth of cotton may be threatened this summer by bollworms and budworms. Pesticide producers have told the agency they can produce enough of the chemicals to protect up to $15 million worth.

Costle said the chemicals' use was requested on an emergency basis by the two pear states and 11 cotton states several months ago.

He approved it even though damage to fish and other water life is possible and "weak evidence exists that BAAM may be a suspect cancer agent."

Restrictions were placed on use of all five pesticides, with the states controlling their application.

Costle said that the benefits outweigh the risks. Resistance to other pesticides is part of the problem in both cases, he said.

Bill Curbs Politics

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Senators approved Wednesday a bill, already passed by the House, placing political restraints on gubernatorial appointments to the Ohio Retirement Study Commission.

It provides that not more than two of three appointments made by the governor to the 14-member commission may belong to the same political party.

The measure also requires Senate confirmation of the governor's appointees.

Sponsors said the bill was needed to conform the governor's appointive powers to those of the top two legislative leaders, each of whom name three members to the commission.

Rounding out the advisory agency are the directors of the five state retirement systems who are nonvoting members.

The Senate's 29-1 vote sent the measure to the governor.

Not Responsible for Accidents

No Damages Paid In Tank Accident

WASHINGTON (AP) — Allen Aaron Jackson enlisted in the Army to be trained as an automobile mechanic. Instead, at 21, his body was cut in half by a tank.

A federal court on Wednesday said it "deeply sympathizes" with Jackson, but it can't order the government to pay damages to him.

Jackson had sued for breach of contract, claiming he was promised two things by a recruiter: he would get mechanic's training; he would not be assigned to dangerous duty.

The Army says there was no such promise, at least not in writing. And even if there had been, the recruiter had no authority to make it and therefore it's not binding.

In May 1974, four months after he enlisted, Jackson took part in maneuvers at Ft. Riley, Kan. A tank ran over him. The lower half of his body, navel on down, had to be amputated.

Jackson's lawyers could not sue for negligence; the Supreme Court has said it knows of no law that permits a soldier to recover damages on that ground. The lawyers chose the unusual claim that there was breach of the enlistment contract and asked $5 million damages.

The U.S. Court of Claims on Wednesday issued its decision in case No. 259-76, Allen Aaron Jackson vs. The United States.

The court said it made a thorough, careful and comprehensive review "in view of the shocking severity of the plaintiff's injuries," but said it could find nothing in the enlistment papers that prevented the Army from using Jackson in training exercises.

"The court deeply sympathizes with the plaintiff for the severe injury he received while serving our country in the United States Army," said the judges. "However, the court is without jurisdiction, authority or power to grant him any relief. It may be that he could get help from Congress...."

Since that awful day in Kansas, Jackson has undergone 28 operations. He is now in the Hines (Ill.) Veterans Administration hospital being fitted for a prosthesis.

"He can sit up in a bucket which

Team Vote Bill Backed

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The Senate Elections, Financial Institutions and Insurance Committee recommended passage Wednesday night of a bill that would have Ohio's governor and lieutenant governor elected as a team, starting in 1978.

The bill, by Committee Chairman Tony P. Hall, D-6 Dayton, implements a constitutional amendment adopted by the state's voters in 1976.

Under the measure, which now goes to the rules committee for assignment to a floor vote, candidates for the two top offices would run independently in the primary election.

The nominees then would team up for the November general election, with voters casting a single vote as they now do for president and vice president.

Hall's bill also relieves the lieutenant governor of his one existing legal duty under present law—presiding over the Senate.

The bill provides that the lieutenant governor in the future could be given additional duties either by the governor or the legislature.

Hall's measure further provides that the lieutenant governor will preside over a new commission established by it to help the state and its local subdivisions work toward the solution of common problems.

Wagering Bill Gains Support

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Sen. Lawrence Borst says his parimutuel wagering bill has enough support for a Senate override of Gov. Otis Bowen's veto.

Borst has guided the measure through the Senate and says there are 26 firm votes to override.

The House overrode the veto Wednesday with votes to spare despite defections by two Republicans who voted for the bill earlier. The vote was 54-46.

The Republicans who switched are Dan Burton of Indianapolis and Steve Collins of Portage. They said responses from constituents influenced their decision.

holds him rigid," says his father, Raymond, a Chicago bus driver. "When he dresses up in the prosthetic it will look like he's whole, but actually he's half. When he sits up he'll look like a whole man, that's about it."

Trooper Recovers Stolen Auto

Post 65 of the Ohio Highway Patrol made a recovery of a stolen auto in the early hours of Thursday.

According to patrol personnel, at approximately 3 a.m. Thursday Trooper David Norman pulled his cruiser into the north bound rest area on U.S. 23 just south of the Franklin County line.

The trooper observed a 1977 Oldsmobile that was backed into a parking space. Upon a closer check of the vehicle, he discovered that it had a Kentucky registration, requiring only a license plate on the rear of the car. The vehicle specifications that are on new car windows were partially scratched also, as if an attempt had been made to remove them.

The circumstances aroused Norman's curiosity, and he ran a registration and vehicle identification number check on the car.

With the crime computer in a "down" status, the check on the car did not return for approximately 30 minutes. But when the computer did return the information it listed the car as one stolen from Ashland, Kentucky area. The driver of the car, identified as Stewart Scott, 22, of Ashland, Ky., was also wanted by Kentucky authorities, according to patrol personnel.

The vehicle was impounded, and Scott was taken to Post 65 headquarters, then on to Circleville City Jail.

He appeared before Municipal Court Judge O. Charles Hosterman this morning, where he was bound over to authorities from Kentucky for extradition.

Post 65 reports that its Troopers have recovered three stolen autos to date in 1977.

Florea Ponders Suit Against Army

LEBANON, Ohio (AP) — A mechanic who was arrested for being AWOL nearly seven years after he was sent home by the Army, said he is still considering legal action despite a recommendation for an honorable discharge.

"Well, I was a little surprised, but I expected it," said Larry Florea, 26, after receiving a letter from the Army at Ft. Knox, Ky., Wednesday.

The letter said the investigation into his case had been completed and Ft. Knox officials had recommended to the Department of the Army that Florea be given an honorable discharge plus pay for 135 days remaining service time.

The letter also told Florea he would probably be eligible for veterans benefits.

It was Florea's request to the Army for a discharge to enable him to apply for a VA loan in February that led to his arrest in Dayton, Ohio and transportation to Ft. Knox as being absent without leave since 1971.

"I still may take it to court," Florea said. "It's a relief. It looks like the Army has definitely admitted they made a mistake," Florea said from the service department of an auto dealer where he has worked as a mechanic since he said the Army lost his papers at Ft. Eustis, Va.

"Still, I feel like they really done me a disservice and I feel I need more than an honorable discharge."

Florea said he furnished

documented proof that he was told at Ft. Eustis to go home because his orders had not come in. He said he tried for several years to clear his status. Meanwhile, Florea married, went to work and fathered three children.

"It's hard to say anything concrete without sounding like we're going to hang Uncle Sam," said Florea's lawyer, Jerry Bryant. Bryant said he planned to review the latest information from the Army with Florea and that the final decision would rest with the Blanchester, Ohio resident.

"We still want to get a house," said Florea, who remains free on leave from Ft. Knox. The family lives in a trailer home.

Witness Says Leach Dangerous

CLEVELAND (AP) — A woman who was once Ashby Leach's hostage has challenged Leach's claims of non-violence at his kidnapping trial, saying he clubbed one hostage and threatened to shoot her if he could not get his way.

The 31-year-old defendant from Huntington, W. Va., said he hurt no one when he took 13 captives at the Chessie System offices here last Aug. 26.

Mara Louise Hoffman, the first hostage to see Leach, told the court Wednesday he fired his pistol at a light fixture in a fit of rage and said he would send a body down an elevator "to show police he meant business."

Defense cross-examination of Miss Hoffman was to open the ninth day of trial today.

Leach muttered "that's a lie" several times during Miss Hoffman's testimony, once drawing an objection from the prosecution. As his own cocounselor, he said he plans to cross-examine witnesses.

Miss Hoffman said she "heard the gun hit the bone" when Leach allegedly hit another captive with his pistol. She described how Leach herded the 13 hostages into a small file room and brandished a sawed off shotgun and pistol at them.

Her voice cracked as she told the court how police officers pulled her away from the site of the siege when she went to deliver a message.

Leach, a former Chessie employee and Marine medic in Vietnam, said he struck out against "policy...not people." Miss Hoffman said one of his first statements to her was that he "wanted to see the (Chessie) president...to change some policies."

A Page Of Opinion

Emotional Reaction

Fortunately, no responsible official has seconded UN Ambassador Andrew Young's suggestion that a law ought to be passed prohibiting the publication of "information regarding violent crimes." The remark was made following the takeover of three buildings in Washington by a gang of terrorists, and perhaps by now Young also has had second thoughts about the implications of his suggestion. The idea that the destructiveness in men will go away if no one pays attention to it is dispelled every day on the streets of major cities. Muggers, rapists and assorted thugs certainly are not seeking publicity when they go on the rampage. But even if one accepts the premise that terrorists are different and only seek public recognition — a questionable premise — who is to be the authority which shall decide whether the news media can report such assaults as the Washington takeover? To consider seriously such a suggestion is to think nothing of tearing up the First Amendment.

The Merry Mix Up

By PHYLLIS BATTELLE
NEW YORK — Semantically speaking, the Women's Movement is out to change Mankind (you've heard of her).
For five years now, leaders have pressed for elimination of words which are considered traditionally sexist and discriminatory. You know - "man-made" should be "of human origin"; "manpower" should be "work force"; "man and wife" should be "husband and wife." And hundreds of other linguistic works of the devil (uncontestedly a male gender noun).
The most difficult demand to meet long has revolved around the sticky enigma of the singular personal pronoun. Traditionally, in writing, we have referred to an ungendered homo sapiens as a "he." As in, "If a person is ill, he should call a physician."
Feminists don't like that. Female persons become ill, too.
Dr. Benjamin Spock was the first renowned author to be challenged by the liberationists on this matter.
Cast in the role of a male chauvinist child expert, Doc Spock gave in to those who said his "Book of Baby and Child Care" was sexist. He had always considered "he" to be a bi-sexual pronoun, he said, until he saw the light of liberation. Then he knew he must change, but to what? The English language offers no singular pronouns that cover both sexes, as "they" or "them" do in the plural.

Should he state "he or she" every time he referred to a baby? Heck, no. He considered "an illegitimate hybrid - 's-he," but there was no similar way to condense 'her-him' or 'her-his' gracefully.
Finally, he capitulated, and said future editions of his book would use "she" and "her" to cover both boys and girls. But he made an interesting prediction: "If the day comes when women receive equal justice, then the question will arise whether calling a child of either sex 'she' constitutes discrimination against boys. My literary heirs will have to tackle that problem when it comes up..."
Obviously, there has to be a solution that is fair to both sexes. And the only solution can be a new set of pronouns. A gentleman named Eldon F. Gunter, a director of The Bill Sandy Co., Inc., with a master's degree in adult education, writes us with an ingenious idea.
"How many times have you liberally agreed to start a bisexual theme about 'his or her' involvement in a particular activity? You launch out boldly, only to find yourself trapped on a never-ending 'his or her' treadmill. No matter how liberal and broadminded you are, you have no desire to write a novel using three words and eight letters every time you need a singular personal pronoun. So finally you take out your eraser - there's no choice - and eliminate the 'or hers' - rationalizing that when you're using the simple pronoun 'his,' you're really referring to all mankind. Excuse that. Personkind."

After tussling with this problem for months, Gunter makes the following proposal:
"Why don't we create the word 'Heis' - pronounced as in sighs - as the bisexual possessive for He or She.
"Since we want to combine the two words 'his' and 'her,' we can in this way retain the common 'h. Then, following a long held chivalrous (though chauvinistic) tradition of ladies first, we take the second letter of her and then the second letter of his. This gives us 'hei' (the order also helps us avoid 'hie,' which already has been spoken for); and, of course, since his and her are possessive, we distinguish our new pronoun by adding an s.
"The result is 'heis.' As in "When a person is ill, heis physician should be called."
For the nominative 'he' and 'she,' Gunter suggests simply dropping the s. As in (to continue the sickening analogy), "If a person is ill, hei should call a physician."
What will this mean to you?
Says Gunter, "It only means that in the future you will need only one word (hei) instead of three (he or she) to make a bisexual, singular, personal reference."
"With this in mind, you're likely to hit a new high as you hie to the nearest library to see if any earlier author has suggested this in heis writing."
Personally, I go for the idea, but a new words researcher over at Webster says it takes up to ten years for a revolutionary concept like this to catch on, since each editor has heis own strong opinion.
Heigh ho.

Plan Slated To Achieve Integration

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Acting Supt. Joseph L. Davis unveiled Tuesday a comprehensive effort to involve all segments of the community in drawing up a desegregation plan for Columbus public schools.
Davis told the Board of Education he has appointed a 16-member committee of school administrators to work fulltime on the project and a 50-member Community Input Panel that will meet with individuals to get comments and suggestions.
Davis said he has sent out 675 letters to persons and groups in the community to tell them about the involvement plan and to ask for their help.
Davis said Columbus area newspapers have been asked to print a coupon that interested persons can send to Dr. Howard Merriman, assistant superintendent for instruction, asking for a meeting with school officials. Davis named Merriman chairman of the input panel.
And, the acting superintendent said, members of the Student Interest Forum, made up of representatives from each of the district's senior high schools, will be asked for their views.
"I don't want anyone on June 6 saying, 'You wouldn't hear me,'" Davis told the board. That date is the deadline set by U.S. District Court Judge Robert M. Duncan for submitting a plan.
"We want legitimate, authentic involvement of all segments of this community," Davis said. "We know we must build acceptance for this process if we expect to have acceptance for the plan that comes out of it."
Davis said 13 of the 16 members of the administrative committee are residents of the district and nine of them have children in the Columbus schools. Ten of the members are white and six are black. He said he will meet with the committee daily so he knows how the group is progressing.

"How many wrinkles to go?"

Speaking Of Your Health

by Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

Twice I've gone below the border on a holiday, and twice I've had my vacation ruined with severe abdominal cramps and diarrhea. Although I ate the same food that was eaten by the native friends I was visiting, they were unaffected by it. Can you explain this?
Miss J. E., Calif.

Dear Miss E.:
It is well known that certain people can develop an immunity to the microbes that produce severe diarrhea in others. Newcomers to an area who have not developed such an immunity can be stricken with severe abdominal symptoms.
It is generally accepted that bouts of diarrhea such as you described are usually associated with contaminated water, poor sanitation, inadequate sewage disposal and carelessness about personal hygiene.
When one comes from a well-controlled, hygienic area and is exposed to toxic microbes and chemicals in a new environment, there are very specific rules to be followed.
Drink only bottled water. A hidden danger lies in ice that may be contaminated. Even brushing the teeth should be done with bottled water.
Avoid all raw fruits and vegetables. Lettuce is particularly hazardous because the soil on which it grows is so frequently contaminated. Fruits that can be peeled are considered safe to eat.
Tourists are often tempted by exotic native foods. Only the lucky ones seem able to manage this. In general, it is a safe rule to avoid these dishes.

Visitors should come prepared with one of the many drugs that are now available and prescribed by doctors. They can quickly check intestinal upsets.
Since you have had two unpleasant experiences, why not consider holidaying north of the border next time?

Is there a greater advantage to taking a vitamin by injection than by mouth?

Mr. E. A., Conn.
In most instances, injections of vitamins are given when patients are unable to comfortably take them by mouth.
After an operation, or because of some intestinal disorder, vitamins and all other kinds of medication may, for a while, be given by injection.
In some instances, patients may have a special defect and an inability to absorb vitamins from the stomach or intestines. Here, too, injections are substituted.
The concentration of vitamins by mouth is often just as effective, and lasts just as long as vitamins by injection.

Letters To The Editor

EDITOR'S NOTE: While The Herald encourages open comments from its readers, the opinions expressed are not necessarily those of the management. Letters to the editor must be signed and should be of 300 words or less.

Dear Editor:
I would like to thank everyone that took time to express their concern and comments to me when they found I was leaving Big Bear. It was a hard decision after nineteen years with the company, six of them in this fine city. It was reached finally because of health and personal reasons.
I've enjoyed meeting and working with the people of Circleville and Pickaway County.
Thanks to Mr. Purcell of the Herald and the Circleville Police Department for all their help over the years.
A special thanks to the employees at the store for the beautiful watch and the many friends I have here in Circleville. I would also like to thank the Northridge Church of Christ for their friendship and prayers.
Sincerely,
DAVID W. MARQUIS
526 Swackhammer Rd.

Dear Editor:
In Friday, March 18, Roundtown in the Herald there was an article that the Pickaway County Health Department would be continuing investigations from 1976 into complaints of garbage, and refuse along Hargus Creek in Circleville.
Perhaps the above explains why, to date, no action has been taken to clean up a truck load of trash that some citizen (?) dumped along the Canal, west of Circleville... They're still on 76' complaints. If it takes that long for some action to be taken, the above mentioned mess should really be a putrid substance in another month.
The drive out Canal Road bordering the Old Canal could and should be one of the more scenic drives in Pickaway County. Instead, for the past few years it has become approximately four miles of garbage dump. It's widely used by the garbage trucks on their way to the present county landfill on S.R. 104. Especially, the ones who don't have contained beds and only partially covered beds. Follow one of them sometime, but not too close. You'll get covered up with cans, boxes and much worse flying out of the trucks.
Then there's the fishermen and often their families. Most of them loaded down with their fishing gear and lots of pop, beer and potato chips, to make their outing more enjoyable. This is fine; but apparently a large majority have enjoyed their fishing so much they're too exhausted to pick up their empty cans and papers.

Several years ago an effort was made to clean up this area. Trash containers were placed along the route, along with sturdy picnic tables... all anchored by chains. In less than a year all this was undone and most of the picnic tables and trash containers had been stolen. What a truly sad commentary on our American people — most of them Pickaway countians. Since so many appear to have no integrity or pride in keeping this area beautiful, why aren't at least some caught and arrested made?

The load of trash that was dumped alongside the road a couple weeks ago has been reported. Why is it still lying there? With the high March winds, it should blow around pretty good. Criminals should be served notice that anti-social behavior will not be tolerated. Those who do not heed the warning should be removed from the community until they prove they can live among decent human beings. Everyone should help to begin to reduce the many crimes running rampant today. We could begin by fighting the little things like this vandalism along the historic Canal, west of Circleville.

NEW YORK (AP) — Behind the simple maxim that "wages are limited by the ability to pay and the ability to produce" there is an interesting and perhaps surprising history, and maybe a lesson for today also.
It is not the capitalized philosophy of a robber baron. It is more closely identified with the years of President John F. Kennedy, when wage increases were tied to increases in productivity, and with the union movement.
In 1946, in the midst of a strike against General Motors, Walter Reuther, head of the United Auto Workers, used similar words. "It's an old idea," he said. "It's just common horse sense."
Reuther's men then lowered their demands and settled for an increase of 18.5 cents an hour. Shortly thereafter the Auto Workers found themselves criticized by the American Federation of Labor, for settling too high.
"Those unions which broke price ceilings to get 18.5 cents followed a shortsighted policy," said the AFL, whose secretary-treasurer at the time was George L. Meany, now head of the AFL-CIO. An official AFL report at the time continued:
"Had they been really willing to accept smaller increases and adjust their demands by genuine collective bargaining to industry's ability to pay, they would be better off today and so would all American workers."
The provision for paying wage increases by raising prices had a disastrous effect on the entire economy, the AFL said, because it led to inflation that brought serious losses to almost everyone.

The "ability to pay" philosophy has since become lost in a jungle of verbiage, of charges and countercharges and misinformation and ignorance, says John Q. Jennings, who headed federal mediation in Michigan at the time. Now a labor economic consultant, he would bring it into the open again and nourish it.
"We're wandering around in the dark not knowing what we're doing," he said. "I would restore and activate the ability to pay concept to collective bargaining." He would seek cooperation rather than confrontation.
Jennings, who has an international following, would restore the concept not through law — "controls, guidelines and presidential jawboning over work very long in peacetime" — but by an appeal to reason and understanding.
And in order to obtain that, he continues, we must educate ourselves.
"Most people don't know the simple arithmetic of business," he said. "They add it up all wrong. Even economists forget that 2 and 2 equals 4."
Business, which is directly affected by these shortcomings, hasn't done its share to educate, he feels. "Even today they're reluctant to show the real figures," he said. Nobody, he believes is willing to state the facts.

The Missionary Society of the Laurel Hills Church met on Thursday evening at the church with 14 members and two guests present. Mrs. Jacquie Bigham opened the meeting with a poem "Thoughts of Spring" and she gave the opening prayer. The opening song was "He Keeps Me Singing." According to Hank Bartholomew of the Hocking County Extension Service in Logan, many of the pines and evergreens are showing much browning of needles. In some cases whole areas of trees are brown. This is not a new disease but simply winter injury from the cold dry winter. The state Extension forester says the injury is the worst he has seen in his 18 years in Ohio. This should be expected due to the coldest January on record.

Many other landscape plants such as Euonymus, Azaleas, Pieris, English Ivy, Pachandra and others are showing similar damage. The dry fall and cold winter literally dried the plants out to where the needles died. However, the buds may still be alive. If this is the case the plants should make a slow recovery. If the plant buds are killed the plant will die also. At this point, all that can be done is to provide water if possible when the soil is dry and wait for spring to bring buds out of dormancy.

The 1977 4-H year will officially get underway with the 4-H Kickoff Potluck to be held March 29 at 6:30 p.m. at the Youth Center Auditorium in Logan, at the Fairgrounds. All 4-H advisors, members and parents are invited to attend.

Each family is suggested to bring their own table service, and two dishes of food. Drinks will be furnished by the Hocking County 4-H Comm.

Miss Beatrice Cleveland of the Ohio State University 4-H staff will speak on Evaluating 4-H members progress. 4-H donors and sponsors who are present will be introduced and thanked for their support.

For information of 4-H clubs contact the 4-H staff at the County Extension office on the Fairgrounds at Logan or call 385-3222. The 4-H program is available to all youth 9-19 years of age, regardless of race, creed, sex or national origin.

Nuns Sue Over Milk Substitute

NEW YORK (AP) — A group of nuns has filed a federal court suit accusing the Bristol-Meyers Co. of baby formula sales that promote malnutrition, disease and death in poverty-stricken Third World nations.

The suit, filed by Sisters of the Precious Blood, a 535-member order in Ohio, seeks to halt the sale of the breast milk substitute. The nuns say sale of the formula raises a health hazard because polluted water is used for preparation, increasing the infant mortality rate.

The sisters also charged that uneducated mothers in poor countries are urged by the company to give up breast feeding. As a result, "babies in the Third World are dying from malnutrition and disease which medical experts link to unnecessary bottle feeding," the nuns say.

They asked a court-directed limitation on Bristol-Meyers' marketing practices overseas.

The company has asked dismissal of the suit, arguing that it does not market its baby food in countries "where chronic poverty could lead to product misuse or harmful effects."

The nuns disagreed, citing sales in Sri Lanka and Indonesia where the per capita gross national product was less than $200 in 1974.

Attorneys for the nuns said Tuesday they are seeking an out-of-court settlement with Bristol-Meyers on the basis of a previously agreed-to change in Third World marketing practices by two other makers of baby formula, Borden and Abbott Laboratories.

A ruling on whether the case will go to trial is not expected for several weeks.

Propose Personal Alarms

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A design engineer, who recently received his master's degree at Ohio State University, has proposed development of a battery-powered personal alarm system to aid the handicapped.

A conceptual model for the personal alarm system was developed by Douglas E. Bachman in his work toward the degree in industrial design.

Bachman said in his thesis that the system would employ a collar-type apparatus which, when activated by certain neck movements, transmits a signal to a separate alarm unit.

The device, to be powered by a small battery, would send a radio signal to a secondary unit. The second unit would sound an alarm, Bachman said, which would let others know someone needs help.

"There is a trend toward greater independence among the handicapped," Bachman said.

More often, Bachman said, the severely handicapped are living and working in the community. Away from a sheltered environment, they face the hazard of an accident occurring when there is no help nearby, he said.

Bachman said he interviewed 40 handicapped individuals and found they shared a common concern over the need to obtain emergency help.

"Their sense of independence was tempered by the realization that they could become virtually helpless in certain situations," he said.

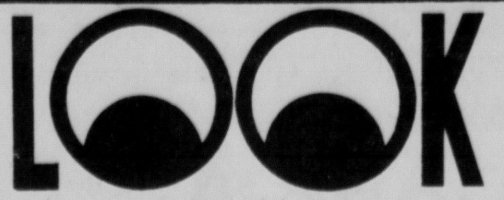

The collar device would allow those without control of their hands or arms to signal for help.

Bachman said he is looking into the possibility of manufacturing the device which would weigh six ounces or less.

He said he has not yet produced a prototype.

Dear Abby:

By Abigail Van Buren

Dog Funeral Fit For A Person

DEAR ABBY: My friend's Chihuahua died, and I attended the funeral, and I've got to ask somebody if I've led a sheltered life or not. I'm 50 years old, and until this week I never knew they had funerals for dogs and cats.

My friend's dog (Jimmy) was buried in a satin-lined casket no bigger than a shoe box. (It cost $900.) Jimmy was laid out in the "slumber room" and a "minister" actually held a service for the dear departed dog. The "funeral" (sans casket) cost $500.

That's not all. Jimmy was driven out to the pet cemetery in a limousine just as a deceased person would be. There were little tombstones all over the cemetery, and my friend says she is having one made for Jimmy to the tune of $850.

When I think of all the hungry children that could be fed with that kind of money I want to scream.

What are your thoughts on this, Abby? It makes absolutely no sense at all to me.

DAZED

DEAR DAZED: To each his own. And only a pet lover can understand the sense of putting away a beloved pet in such extravagant style. To them, their pets are their "children."

DEAR ABBY: Do you think our son has a problem? He is 16, a junior in high school and an average student who has always had a good relationship with his family and friends. While cleaning his room I found (under his bed) an unfinished six-page "story" he had written. It contained some very descriptive accounts of "his" sexual experiences — all made up. But what shocked me was the fact that he had written this in the first person as though he was the girl!

I showed it to my husband, and he was even more upset than I was.

Please guide us, as we want to do the right thing.

CONCERNED

DEAR CONCERNED: All adolescents fantasize, and it's not unusual for them to imagine themselves to be of the opposite sex while fantasizing. Unless your son shows signs of being disturbed or abnormal, there's little cause for concern.

DEAR ABBY: I want to say something in defense of women who go out in public with their hair in curlers. I do, and I'm sick of being put down because of it.

MY hair is very delicate and easily damaged, so permanents and hair driers are out for me. In order to look half-way decent, I have to set my hair every day and let it dry naturally without intense heat.

My husband works all day, and it's more important for me to look nice for HIM when he comes home than for some joker I never saw before who happens to be in the corner store.

Please print this, Abby. There are a lot of us women in the same boat.

WAUKEGAN WIFE

DEAR WIFE: I understand your plight. If you feel there is no need to apologize for your appearance—don't apologize.

Don't Judge Others Too Hard

Pray do not find fault with the man who limps,

Or stumbles along the road,
Unless you have worn the shoes he wears

Or struggled beneath his load.
There may be tacks in his shoes that hurt,

Though hidden away from view,
Or the burden he bears, placed on your back,

Might cause you to stumble, too.
Don't sneer at the man who's down today,

Unless you have felt the blow
That caused his fall, or felt the shame

That only the fallen know
You may be strong, but still the blows

That were his, if dealt to you.
In the self same way at the self same time,

Might cause you to stagger too.
Don't be harsh with the man who sins,

Or pelt him with word and stone,
Unless you are sure, yes, doubly sure,

That you have no sins of your own.
For, you know, perhaps, if the tempter's voice

Should whisper as soft to you,
As it did to him when he went astray,
T'would cause you to falter, too!

Important Federal Job: Califano's Cook

WASHINGTON (AP) — There's a new job in the Department of Health, Education and Welfare that pays $12,763 a year and sounds pretty important.

"The nature of the assignment requires a continuing day-to-day association with the secretary and other high-level executives during high-level policy discussions involving plans and objectives," the official job description says.

But in plain language, he is Secretary Joseph A. Califano Jr.'s personal cook.

The holder of the newly coined title of Personal Assistant to the Secretary (Special Activities) is Wiley Barnes, who recently retired from the U.S. Marine Corps where he managed the personal quarters of the commandant.

The job description that appeared recently in the Federal Register never came right out and said Barnes cooks Califano's lunch. It said he managed "the food supply service of the secretary's dining room."

It also said that the job demands "the utmost in personal discretion the nature of some of the incumbent's duties requires personal participation with the ongoing special activities and programs, thereby necessitating the need for an extremely confidential relationship with the secretary."

"He does much more than cook for the secretary," a spokesman for the department insisted Tuesday. "He manages the secretary's mess, handles the accounting and supervises the kitchen."

Barnes also plans meals for special groups, such as governors or members of Congress whom Califano invites over for working breakfasts or lunches, the spokesman said. In his first two weeks on the job, Barnes served meals to three VIP groups.

Califano and Hale Champion, HEW's undersecretary-designate, normally dine together in the secretary's dining room, which adjoins Califano's office, a special meeting room and kitchen.

2 Consumer Regulations Take Effect

WASHINGTON (AP) — If you are a struggling musician trying to pay for your leased clarinet, or if you can't get credit simply because of your color or religion or because you're over 65, you may find comfort in two new consumer laws.

The Consumer Leasing Act, one of the two laws taking effect today, is designed to make leasing companies let customers know exactly the terms of their lease contracts before they sign on the dotted line.

The second new consumer protection law extends three-year-old prohibitions against credit discrimination on the basis of sex or marital status. The new amendment to the Equal Credit Opportunity Law bans credit discrimination for reasons of race, color, religion, national origin or age.

Under the leasing act, whatever you lease, whether it's a clarinet or a new car, the government says the company you deal with must specify the number, amount and due dates of the payments and their total.

The amount you're paying in taxes and other fees, information about possible penalties resulting from non-payment, and your lease-purchase rights and what both sides can do to terminate the contract must also be provided.

The law, modeled after the Truth-in-Lending Act, also places restrictions on advertising by leasing companies.

The new law applies to all types of leased goods, as long as the contract is for at least four months and the value of the merchandise isn't over $25,000.

Jose Feliciano Wins Court Order

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Singer-songwriter Jose Feliciano has won a court order stopping RCA Records from releasing an album of the guitarist's hits without his approval.

Feliciano filed the suit to stop the release of an album containing his top-selling songs unless he was allowed to approve the selections, the album cover design and album notes.

Superior Court Judge David Thomas issued a temporary injunction against RCA on Tuesday, prohibiting release of the album before the lawsuit goes to trial. Feliciano was ordered to put up $50,000 bond to offset any damages RCA may suffer should the singer lose his case.

Young Thugs Going After Elderly

NEW YORK (AP) — Detectives Jerry Keegan and Donald Gaffney slide into their squad car, a retired yellow taxi cab that starts with a groan and runs with a death rattle.

There's no shotgun, no siren, no radio. They take a folder of crime reports, a book of mug shots, a fingerprinting kit and a camera.

They're part of the Bronx Senior Citizens Robbery Unit, a prototype police group that investigates crimes against people over 60 who are attacked in buildings.

They use the taxi because it's unobtrusive. It looks like a lot of other taxis in the Bronx. Many old people are embarrassed to be pinpointed as crime victims by the presence of a police car. Some fear reprisal.

Keegan and Gaffney cruise the Grand Concourse, a statelike canyon of buildings that has become a combat zone for old people and young muggers.

"See that park?" Gaffney asks. "In nice weather, the old people come out and sun themselves. You can see the kids watching them, circling at a distance, picking out their quarry."

"You can spot it right off. Like cats watching birds. It's unnatural for young people to be that interested in old folks."

Wearing civilian clothes, the two hefty veterans are on their way to interview crime victims. They also take pictures of injuries, useful evidence if the victim recovers by the time the case goes to trial.

In most other robbery cases, the victim is asked to go to a precinct to view suspects' pictures. But Keegan and Gaffney visit victims at their homes or hospital beds.

Individual attention is the key to their approach. After an attack, old people are especially distraught.

Perhaps they will have a cup of tea, look at a family album or listen to stories about life in gentler days.

Their unassigned duties include contacting relatives, stopping mail delivery, freezing bank accounts and taking victims to and from court.

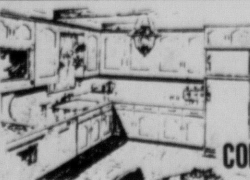

"Most are so amazed anyone takes an interest," Keegan says. "We still get Christmas cards from people we've visited."

They enter the hospital room of 79-year-old Sarah (she doesn't want her real name used) whose spine was broken by three burglars she surprised in her apartment. She had just returned from buying birthday cards for her grandchildren.

Gaffney and Keegan take her fingerprints to compare with those they lifted in the apartment.

Lying there large, pale and fragile, she tells them she had two rolls of pennies in her little bank. Did they break her Japanese vases? Was there a tin of papers from her cedar chest? She puts her inky fingerprinted hand to her forehead and cries.

Your Horoscope

By FRANCIS DRAKE

What kind of day will tomorrow be? To find out what the stars say, read the forecast given for your birth sign.

FOR FRIDAY

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 20): Don't hesitate to take up apprenticeship in something new if it is worthwhile, no matter what your age. No one has a monopoly on improvement.

TAURUS (Apr. 21 to May 21): Turbulent waters in some areas, but you are made of the stuff that doesn't collapse at the first sign of opposition or difficulty. Be your philosophical self.

GEMINI (May 22 to June 21): Influences somewhat adverse. If certain negotiations are pending, try to postpone decisions until Monday, when aspects will be more propitious.

CANCER (June 22 to July 23): All may not go exactly as you desire, but you will find many advantages, anyway - if you look carefully in all areas.

LEO (July 24 to Aug. 23): An auspicious period. If you cooperate smartly, you can make up for any lost time and break through new barriers to attainment. Personal relationships highly favored.

VIRGO (Aug. 24 to Sept. 23): Your innate perceptiveness will prove a great asset now. Through it, you will get a brand new slant on a puzzling job situation.

LIBRA (Sept. 24 to Oct. 23): Make your schedule a flexible one. There are possibilities of changes and variations in certain situations - all promising to be beneficial.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24 to Nov. 22): Don't sidestep obligations in favor of more desirable activities. You have a lot going for you, so it would be foolish to offset efforts of the past.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23 to Dec. 21): Don't undertake anything without knowing proper procedure. Find out how associates think and feel. Excellent progress indicated through alert thinking and action.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20): Your intuition should be strong now; but double-check to make sure you are not overlooking small details. Thus, all should go well.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19): Pay no attention to dissenters or pessimists. Go about your work and other activities with good will and a bit of finesse. You can have an unusually satisfactory day.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20): Business and financial matters slated for immediate advancement; also for future gains. But take no risks; conservative management stressed.

YOU BORN TODAY are endowed with a tremendous enthusiasm for life, boundless energy and an outstanding gift of leadership. You are both artistic and practical; tolerant and broad-minded; exceptionally versatile in your talents. You have a great love of beauty and, even if you do not follow one of the arts as a career, will almost inevitably choose one as an avocation. Music could be one of the finest outlets for your talents, but other fields in which you could attain eminent success include politics, the theater and science. Curb a tendency to speak without thinking at times; also an inclination to strike out at those whom you feel have slighted you in any way. Porta Martin Is Sweetheart Of L.E. Dance

PORTA MARTIN

By LIZ DORITAN
And MONA MARTIN

The Sweetheart Dance took place March 5, in the high school gymnasium. It lasted from 8 p.m. to 11 p.m. and was a formal dance.

The queen and her attendants were chosen March 4. Porta Martin was chosen queen, Stacey Brown was freshman attendant, Kim Williams was sophomore attendant, and LaDonna Brevard was Junior attendant.

The theme of the dance was "Fantasy Love" which utilized Disney characters. There was a live band, Zodiac, which provided the entertainment.

Many of the LE students said it was a great dance and they had a lot of fun.

Ninety per cent of the people of Indonesia are Moslem. The Balinese have remained Hindu and most Chinese in Indonesia are Buddhist-Confucianist. The Indonesian constitution guarantees freedom of religion.

Dance Student Explains Fundamentals

By TIM WINNER

Logan Elm's drama class had a special guest March 4. Dan Frey, a student of dance and theater, visited the classes and gave helpful information to them.

During his visit, Frey preformed different types of dances including jazz and tap. Students interested in entering the theatrical profession were given advice on how to get started and who to see. He gave students helpful tips in voice projection, dancing, and exercises.

Frey became interested in dancing from his sisters when he was a child. He learned all of his sisters' dance steps, who at the time were taking dance lessons, and started taking lessons himself at the age of seven.

At the age of 20 Dan still takes dancing and singing lessons. He says that it is hard work and that no one reaches the point where they should stop. Even though practice is important, Dan says that "making it big" in acting is 95 per cent luck and 5 per cent skill.

Dan is currently working at a factory in Columbus. He will soon be auditioning for "Guys and Dolls," an all dance performance.

Dan's great ambition is to go to New York or Las Vegas to perform.

Students Hear About School Of Broadcasting

The Logan Elm speech and drama classes were very impressed by Mr. Stemmn, a guest speaker from The American School of Broadcasting in Columbus, Ohio. Mr. Stemmn said, "We have schools all over the United States and have contact with almost all of the radio and television stations, therefore, the School of Broadcasting will help students find a job after graduation."

The school takes a total of 16 weeks and the fee includes a blazer of the school, all required books, field trips and a third class broadcasting license. "It takes over 600 employees to put the Carol Burnett show on every week," Stemmn said, "and there are more jobs waiting for you if you have the ability."

Tribe Talk Correction

An article that appeared in Tribe Talk March 9 wrongly reported that people who are absent and do not bring an excuse on returning to school are reported to county school attendance officials. Actually, only people who are later found to have been truant are reported; truancy is willful absence from school.

Gas Official Retains Poise

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Whipping boy and teacher, the man out front for Columbia Gas of Ohio, drew the initial blasts of rage when the company suggested homeowners turn down the heat.

But William Chaddock, news department manager for Columbia, managed to sound as though he kept his balance during those unpleasant days. That is, after all, what he was paid to do.

Chaddock looks back on what has been called the worst winter in 100 years and says he learned a few things about keeping the public informed. He also says he can't see where he would have made major changes in handling his job.

"Look," he says, reiterating the company's position that nature and not business caused the shortage, "Ohio just happened to be at the bottom of the pit this winter where temperatures were concerned."

"Our computers have since told us that the likelihood of those severe cold temperatures happening in that short a time span is one in 10,000."

Chaddock similarly toes the line when asked about the possibility that the gas shortage wasn't real but a contrivance to drive up prices. He freely admits that Columbia Gas of Ohio predicts increased supplies once gas prices are deregulated, but his company has no direct interest in gas production as an activity. It is a distributor of what other firms drill.

"The thing that hit Columbia the hardest was the school issue," Chaddock says of the company's inability to supply schools with all they needed to stay open in many cases. "We had been warning people all along about these shortages. The schools were bragging about how much money they had saved by their conservation efforts. Then bang."

Chaddock contends that the company, through him, was right in predicting toward the middle of February that residential conservation was sufficient to ease curtailments.

"There's a lot of intuition in this and we can't get tied down to hard, fast numbers," he said of the company's bulldog tenacity in predicting that residential conservation would offset the numbers that showed the company without enough gas to serve even homes through the rest of the winter.

Poisoning Accidents Preventable

Each year, over 3,000 people die from accidental poisoning and approximately 250 of these are young children.

The National Clearinghouse for Poison Control Centers estimates that accidents involving potentially hazardous substances occur to 800,000 children annually. In Ohio approximately 175 poisoning deaths are recorded each year. Dr. Frank R. Moore, Health Commissioner of the Pickaway County General Health District, says that these accidents are preventable if persons would take the following precautions:

Keep medicines and hazardous substances out of sight and reach of children;

Lock poisons and medicines or any toxic hazardous product up when not in use;

Never call medicines candy;

Always give or take medicines in good light where you can read the label;

Get rid of medicines when no longer needed;

Keep household products in original containers and use child-resistant caps;

Don't leave medicines or hazardous products within a child's reach while you answer the telephone or door;

Have handy the phone numbers of your doctor, poison control center, emergency squad, hospital and police.

It is important to remember that prevention is the cure for childhood poisoning. Dr. Moore in cooperation with the Accident Prevention and Product Safety Unit, Ohio Department of Health urges parents to "Poison Proof" your home and make every week Poison Prevention Week.

In Columbus, the Poison Control and Information Center is Children's Hospital. Telephone number is 228-1323.

Blake Quits As 'Baretta'

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Saying he's "smart enough to know that the American people get sick of anybody," actor Robert Blake says he is leaving his ABC television series "Baretta" in a year.

Blake said Wednesday he would complete his contract with Universal, which produces the program, by filming for the 1977-78 season.

In a letter to Sidney Sheinberg, president of MCA Inc., the parent company of Universal, Blake said, "I have nothing but pleasant memories from doing the show and have found it rewarding both personally and professionally."

"However, like all good things, there comes a time when one finds it necessary to move on to other challenges."

Blake, who portrays an undercover policeman on the show, said he felt "Baretta" got across to the public that "90 per cent of what the cops are doing are social problems, not legal problems."

The northern part of Henry County around Ridgeville Corners once was often referred to as the Hanover settlement because so many Germans took up land there. —AP

Laserphoto Modifications Ordered

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Food and Drug Administration has ordered four modifications in 68 of some 400 laserphoto machines manufactured for the Associated Press by the Harris Corp. of Melbourne, Fla.

The machines are new receivers and transmitters installed in the AP's Wirephoto network. They use a laser beam as a source of light.

An announcement by the FDA Wednesday said that the changes would be made at sites where the 68 machines are in use.

The 68 were manufactured between Aug. 2, 1976 and Sept. 17, 1976.

The four changes do not involve any radiation emission danger. They involve limiting access to the laser beam itself.

The receivers will get these two modifications: addition of a small metal shield inside the machine to make it impossible for anyone servicing it to look directly at the beam; and a label on the outside saying the machine contains a laser beam.

The transmitters will get a new interlock switch to shut them off automatically when the cover is opened. They will also get a new picture-feeding chute to increase from the current eight centimeters to 10 centimeters the distance between the point where a photo enters the machine and the point where exposure to a laser beam would begin inside the machine.

The FDA said the 18 transmitters were distributed in Georgia, Maryland, Massachusetts, Michigan, New Jersey, New Mexico and New York. The 50 receivers were located in Arkansas, Georgia, Illinois, Indiana, Louisiana, Michigan, Missouri, New Jersey, Ohio, Oklahoma and Wisconsin.

Sneek-A-Peek AT BOOKS IN THE CHILDREN'S LIBRARY

Adults as well as children are invited to "Free to Be You and Me," Saturday's free movie at the public library. A combination of animation, live action and song, this film takes a non-sexist approach to personal rights, cooperation and independence. Marlo Thomas introduces the 47-minute production.

New books for browsers in the Children's Room include Erika Weihs' "Count the Cats," a counting book vividly illustrated in full-page crayoned spreads of all sorts of cats. Look for this one in the picture book section!

If the flirtatious warm weather we've been having makes you think of baseball diamonds and tennis shoes, why not bone up on one of summer's favorite sports before Little League begins? Get a headstart by reading Paul J. Deegan's 3 baseball primers which cover the basics of hitting, bunting, baserunning, and pitching. (796.357)

The end of winter also signals the emergence of wildlife from their dens. If you want to learn more about the creatures you see, thumb through our animal books. New titles are "The Life Cycle of an Opossum" (599.2), "The Life Cycle of a Monarch Butterfly" (595.7), and "The Life Cycle of a Bullfrog" (597.8), three in a new series from Creative Education. Grade 3+ reading level with large type and excellent photography.

In the mood for a summer vacation? Transport yourself out West with a little imagination and a good travel book. Middle elementary students can handle the text in "Yellowstone National Park" (917.875) and "Yosemite National Park" (917.944). All ages can enjoy the scenic photographs.

If you think Spring and poetry are synonymous, don't miss "Digging for China" (811). This poem, presented in small picture book form, captures a boy's experience when he tries to dig through the world. He doesn't succeed, but he does gain new insight about his own spot of the globe. Illustrated by William Pene DuBois.

"Ride When You're Ready" is a high interest-low vocabulary story for readers in grades 3-6. One of Evelyn Bolton's horse stories, it's about an overweight girl lacking in self-confidence, who enters her first riding competition and must compete against a beautiful girl on a beautiful horse.

Finally, for our patrons who have been asking for Betsy Byars' "Midnight Fox", we're happy to announce that we finally have it! Here Tommy dreads spending the summer on a farm, but a black fox turns the visit into an awesome and beautiful experience. "A skillful picture of an individualist who is a real boy."

Blue Cross OKd At 2 Facilities

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Persons treated at two state mental health facilities in Ohio can now pay for treatment with their Blue Cross policies, according to Dr. Timothy Moritz, director of the Department of Mental Health and Mental Retardation.

The new contract with Blue Cross covers persons treated at Central Ohio Psychiatric Hospital and the Athens Mental Health and Mental Retardation Center. Moritz said the department is negotiating to extend the benefits to all of its facilities.

Moritz said the new provision gives patients at state facilities protection similar to that afforded patients in private hospitals.

ODNR Urges Fire Prevention Steps

The Ohio Department of Natural Resources' (ODNR) Division of Forestry is urging Ohioans to practice extreme caution and observe the forest fire protection laws before burning leaves, trash or other material outdoors.

"This spring is especially hazardous due to the lack of rainfall and the dryer than normal ground conditions," said Ernest Gebhart, Chief of the Forestry Division.

Gebhart said counties in Eastern and Southern portions of the state are most susceptible to forest and grass fires because of the area's dense forests and vegetation.

"Ohioans who own land or reside in the Forest Fire Protection District are not permitted to burn before 4 p.m. and must obtain a permit before starting a fire outdoors during March, April or May," Gebhart said. "Burning permits may be obtained from a local fire warden."

Gebhart said the Division is working to inform landowners who own property in the District but reside elsewhere of the forest fire protection laws.

The Forest Fire Protection District is administered by ODNR's Forestry Division in order to help prevent, detect and suppress wildfires on public and private lands in a 32-county area.

Counties in the Forest Fire Protection District that are most susceptible to fires are: Athens, Belmont, Carroll, Coshocton, Gallia, Guernsey, Harrison, Hocking, Holmes, Jackson, Jefferson, Lawrence, Meigs, Monroe, Morgan, Muskingum, Noble, Perry, Pike, Scioto, Tuscarawas, Vinton and Washington.

Also included in the District are portions of: Adams, Ashland, Fairfield, Highland, Knox, Licking, Lucas, Richland and Ross counties.

For more information concerning prevention of forest and grass fires, contact the local district forestry office or the Division of Forestry, Ohio Department of Natural Resources, Fountain Square, Columbus 43224 or phone (614) 466-7842.

Desai Heads India; Raps Soviets

NEW DELPHI, India (AP) - Morarji Desai, 81-year-old leader of the successful fight to unseat the government of Indira Gandhi, was sworn in today as India's fourth prime minister and immediately signaled a possible end to this country's special links with the Soviet Union.

At a news conference after taking the oath of office, Desai said the 1971 Indian-Soviet friendship treaty "must not come in the way of our friendship with any other state.... We won't have any special relations with any country."

Desai, a veteran of the Indian independence movement and a former leader of Mrs. Gandhi's Congress party, said his government would adopt a foreign policy of "proper nonalignment."

His 59-year-old predecessor, Indira Gandhi, was not present for the three-minute ceremony in the ornate Ashoka Hall of the presidential palace. But she was one of the first to send congratulations to the longtime foe who led his new Janata party to a stunning election triumph over her and the Congress party last weekend.

Having lost her seat in Parliament in the election, Mrs. Gandhi became a private citizen. However, her successor as the Congress leader in Parliament, Y.B. Chavan, said she would continue to take a leading part in the party.

Acting President B.D. Jatti swore in Desai as head of the new government three hours after the members of the new Parliament from his party unanimously approved him as their leader.

"The people have high hopes and the government will try to fulfill them," said Desai. "This has been a non-violent, new revolution by the Indian people."

He was chosen prime minister by the spiritual leader of the anti-Gandhi opposition, Jayaprakash Narayan, who canvassed the members of the new Parliament from the Janata and two allied parties, the Congress for Democracy and a regional Sikh party.

The Janata has 270 seats, the Congress for Democracy 28 and the Sikh party eight in the 542 seat lower house of Parliament.

Desai's only opponent for the post was Jagjivan Ram, 68, head of the Congress for Democracy. Both men are former Congress party leaders who broke with Mrs. Gandhi — Desai eight years ago and Ram last month.

When the choice was made known, most of the legislators from the ruling coalition met in the central hall of Parliament and unanimously adopted a resolution declaring Desai their leader.

Neither Ram nor his chief deputy, H.N. Bahuguna, were in the hall for the endorsement. But informed sources said the Congress for Democracy would support the Janata government in Parliament although it would not

Gay Rights Activist Gets Post

NEW YORK (AP) — Gay rights activist Robert Livingston says his appointment to New York City's Commission on Human Rights reflects the national political clout homosexuals have.

The best example of that progress, he says, is a White House meeting scheduled for Saturday between presidential adviser Midge Constanza and 14 gay rights activists. The meeting, organized by the National Gay Task Force, is the second of its kind in the last seven weeks.

Livingston takes over his post on the 15-member panel today.

"I think that my appointment is not an isolated act," Livingston said during a telephone interview Wednesday. "I think that there is movement in the right direction across the country."

He added: "I think it is timely recognition of the fact that homosexuals have votes and are a substantial minority in the city."

A spokesman for Mayor Abraham D. Beame denied that Livingston's appointment was politically motivated. Beame, a Democrat, is expected to seek a second term, and some gay activists regarded the appointment as an attempt to dampen the rights issue before this year's campaign.

The 45-year-old avowed homosexual, the son of fashion designer Mollie Parnis, was a theatrical producer in London and once produced the Joey Bishop Show on ABC-TV. He also published MORE, a journalism review.

Sunny and cool weather was in the forecast for Ohio today under the influence of a high pressure system from the western Great Lakes to the lower Ohio Valley.

Cool northwesterly winds on the eastern side of the high will keep temperatures in the 30s today in northern Ohio, ranging to the 40s in the central and southern sections of the state.

Cloudiness will persist in northeastern counties and there is a chance of flurries, especially near Lake Erie east of Cleveland.

Charge Man In Slaying

DENNISON, Ohio (AP) — A 24-year-old man has been charged with aggravated murder and kidnapping in connection with the death of his mother-in-law.

Authorities said Floyd Mullings, of Dennison, turned himself in Monday morning to Dennison Police Chief Thomas Meechan.

Police said the mother-in-law, Pearl Zobel, 54, was found dead Sunday morning in her home. A coroner ruled Mrs. Zobel died of strangulation.

Police said Mullings' wife, Kay, had separated with her husband two weeks earlier and was living with her mother. They say the man held his wife at knife-point for a time over the weekend, until she was able to flee with their 10-month-old son.

Mullings was held in the Tuscarawas County jail in lieu of $100,000 bail, pending a court hearing Friday.

Young Westfall Baseball Team Optimistic About Season

By TOM SPRING
Herald Sports Writer

The Westfall Mustangs will field a young team this season under first year varsity head coach John Butts. Butts, who coached the reserve squad last year, will move up some of the members to the varsity nine to join his five returning lettermen.

Returning to do the catching will be senior Rick Stillings who caught 23 games and batted .307 last season. Dave Clem, the shortstop, started all games for the Mustangs last season and with his slugging led the team in hits and runs scored. He batted .286 last year.

Neil Keller, a big senior, returns to the hot corner as third base will be his home.

Howard Rowland, another senior will play first base and pitch. The moundsman started five games for the Mustangs last year and posted a 2.88 earned run average.

The only returning junior letterman is hurler Tony Simon who also plays the outfield. Simon was a workhorse for the Mustangs last year as he started 10 games and posted a 3.19 earned run average.

Members who will round out the team include five juniors, three sophomores and three freshmen.

Junior Randy Adams, who pitches and plays third base was the leading hitter on the 1976 reserve team, and was its best pitcher. The big bopper clubbed four home runs and batted at a .427 clip.

Larry List, a six-foot two-inch junior, who like Keller, played basketball for the Scarlet and Gray, will be stationed at first base and the outfield.

Keith Kern will catch and play outfield, Carey Puckett will take care of the middle, playing second base and shortstop; Ted Everman will play second base and Tim McNeal will be in the outfield.

Eric Dick, who has done so in the past, will be the manager for Coach Butts' team.

"Unioto will probably be the top team in the league," Butts said.

"Mr. Neff comes up with very good teams. Year in and year out he comes up with a good baseball club," he said.

Butts speaks from experience. As a junior, he was a member of Don Neff's last baseball squad at Circleville High School.

Unioto finished second in the South Central Ohio League last year, posting an overall 11-9 record. Neff was named Ross County League Coach of the Year in 1976.

The Mustang mentor thinks Bishop Flaget and Ross Southeastern will also be title challengers in the Scioto Valley Conference.

Coach Butts said Simon, Rowland and Adams will be his three starters, while Henson and Whitten will share the bullpen.

"We're a little deeper in starting pitchers this year than we were last year," Butts said.

The key to the Mustangs success, he said, "Will depend on how last year's reserves adapt to varsity 'ball.'"

"I have to put in a new right side of the infield and a whole new outfield."

"We have a pretty tough schedule," Butts said. He said the first six games will tell what kind of a team the Mustangs are.

"We'll find out quick how good we are. If the newcomers adjust well, we could do very well in the league."

Mark Hosler will coach the reserve squad who will play a 14-game schedule.

The varsity will play a 32 game schedule including one doubleheader and the county tournament. Here is the

Tiant, Red Sox Bow To Orioles

By HERSCHEL NISSENSEN
AP Sports Writer

Luis Tiant, signed and sealed, is starting to deliver.

The veteran right-hander made a belated spring training debut Wednesday and hurled two innings as the Boston Red Sox bowed to the Baltimore Orioles 3-2.

It was only Tiant's sixth day in camp following a contract hassle, and he threw 30 pitches, allowing one run and two hits — singles by Mark Belanger and Ken Singleton plus Eddie Murray's sacrifice fly — while walking one and striking out two.

"Last year I only pitched 20 innings down here but I was ready when the season started," Tiant said. "I think I'll be ready when the season starts this year, too."

Before taking the mound, Tiant finally signed his newly extended contract. Terms were not disclosed but it was believed his $180,000-per-year contract was extended through 1978, with an option for 1979.

House allowed two decisive runs on a single by Belanger, a double by Singleton and a single by Murray.

Meanwhile, the Los Angeles Dodgers, who hope to challenge Cincinnati's world champions in the National League West, scored twice in the first inning on RBI hits by Reggie Smith and Rick Monday and nipped the Reds 2-1 behind the seventh pitching of Doug Rau and Charlie Hough.

Even though Oakland A's owner Charles O. Finley claimed the American League West for his team, the A's, were not listening. They dropped a 9-8 decision to the Chicago Cubs, who rallied for three runs in the ninth inning on Gene Clines' triple, an error, Joe Wallis' single and Dave Rosello's two-run double.

The San Diego Padres hammered three Seattle pitchers for 20 hits, including five triples, and needed all of them to beat the Mariners 17-15.

The Milwaukee Brewers outthrewed California 6-5 — Gorman

Thomas hit a pair — and edged the Angels 10-9. The Minnesota Twins bowed to the Montreal Expos 4-1 as Tony Perez drove in two runs with a single and double.

The Cleveland Indians lost 9-5 to the San Francisco Giants, and the Atlanta Braves lost twice. John Ellis tied the game with his second home run and Tom Grieve followed with the winner as the Texas Rangers beat one squad of Braves 9-8. Another group of Atlantics dropped a 10-inning 5-4 decision to the Houston Astros.

Houston star Cesar Cedeño suffered a torn ligament in the ring finger of his left hand during batting practice. He might have to go on the disabled list.

The St. Louis Cardinals unleashed an 18-hit attack and pounded the New York Mets 8-1, Brian Downing drove in five runs as the Chicago White Sox unloaded 18 hits and drubbed the Toronto Blue Jays 14-4 and Jason Thompson's two-run single highlighted a three-run eighth inning rally as the Detroit Tigers edged the Kansas City Royals 3-2.

Graig Nettles' three-run homer capped a six-run ninthinning that enabled the New York Yankees to beat the University of Florida 10-9, and Tim McCarver had three hits as Philadelphia turned back its Oklahoma City farm club 4-2 although Jim Kaat of the Phillies pitched for the minor league team.

Scramble Slated At Running Fox

Running Fox Golf Course, Chillicothe, will kick off the 1977 season with a scramble tournament Saturday it was announced today by Harry Hoffer, teaching pro and tournament director.

The season's schedule will include a spring roundup in April, the men's league which will be from April through August, a 4-ball best ball in May, Ladies Clinic during June, July and August, the Second Annual State Seal Tournament, two high school tournaments in the fall, a championship league on Sundays, interclub matches, a Fall roundup in October, and an area match play seniors tournament for persons 55 and older.

Last year the inaugural State Seal Tournament attracted 50 players and Hoffer expects the number of entrants to double this year, making it one of the biggest tournaments in the area. A meeting is scheduled Saturday at 2 p.m. for golfers interested in competing in the men's league.

The championship league on Sunday will attract golfers who consistently shoot in the 70s he reported.

Persons interested in the activities at Running Fox may contact either Hoffer or call the Chillicothe Golf Center.

Ohio All-Stars Named For Game

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Herb Williams, The Associated Press' Ohio Class AAA Player of the Year, was among the performers selected Wednesday night to play in the annual Ohio high school all-star basketball game.

Williams, the 6-foot-11 center from Columbus Marion-Franklin who averaged 25 points and 15 rebounds this winter, will lead the South against the North in the all-star classic June 11 in Canton.

Dave Olinger, The AP's Class AA Ohio Player of the Year, was among the players picked for the North team by the sponsoring Ohio High School Coaches Association, which has switched the contest from Marion to Canton.

The all-star classic, for the second year, will be split into Class AAA and Class AA-A contests.

The coaches for the North and South teams were expected to be selected today at a meeting of the coaches' association.

Williams' AAA mates on the South squad will be Chris Ash of Newark, Mark Green of Cambridge, Mike McBroom of Logan, Mike Fairrow of Chillicothe, Jim Rhoden of Lebanon, Vince Phelps of Springfield South and Todd Dietrich of Cincinnati Oak Hills.

Named to the North AAA allstars were Marty Cristo of Warren Western Reserve, Dennis Winn of Canton Timken, Mike Nicholls of Galion and John Flowers of Sylvania Southview.

Still to be selected are four AAA players from the North.

Southern Class AA-A players named were Kevin O'Dell of Arcanum, Marquis Miller of Columbus St. Charles, Kent Baker of Mount Gilead, Ed Andes of Shadyside, Greg Worley of Rock Hill, Mark Merritt of Lucasville Valley, Eddie Crowe of Carlisle and Art Fox of North Bend Taylor.

Selections for the Class AA-A North squad were Dave Mason of Youngstown Rayen, Ron Myers of Magnolia Sandy Valley, Dave Smith of Old Fort, Jim Hoops of Hamler Henry and Olinger.

Three Class AA-A players must yet be selected for the North all-stars.

Lee Trevino Skipping Masters

HILTON HEAD ISLAND, S.C. (AP) — Lee Trevino is skipping the Masters again — and this time it's not his idea.

"He did this on doctor's orders," a spokesman for Trevino's office in El Paso, Tex., said Wednesday, confirming a report by The Associated Press that the flamboyant Trevino — deeply troubled by a bad back — had withdrawn from the prestigious Masters, the first of the year's four major tests of golfing greatness.

In earlier years, Trevino had created a national furor by boycotting the esteemed Masters because, he said at the time, the Augusta National Golf Club course was not suited to his game.

Since winning the PGA national championship in 1974, however, Trevino has called a Masters title one of the prime goals of his career.

"I've got a chance at becoming only the fifth man in history to win all the Big Four," he said. "I'd be foolish not to try to make it. After all, Gene Sarazen, Ben Hogan, Jack Nicklaus and Gary Player make pretty good company."

They are the only players ever to win all four major titles — the Masters, U.S. and British Opens and the PGA. Trevino, one of the game's premier players and among the most popular players golf has ever known, won the U.S. Open in 1968 and 1971 and the British Open in 1971 and 1972.

His ailing back forced him out of a shot at the Masters, April 7-10 in Augusta, Ga. this year.

Houston Rockets Top Trail Blazers

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Moses Malone and Calvin Murphy gave the Houston Rockets a present for Malone's birthday — combining for 48 points as the Central Division leaders became the first team to clinch a National Basketball Association playoffs berth.

The Rockets did it by beating the Portland Trail Blazers 109-104 Wednesday night as Malone accounted for one point for each of his years — 23 — and Murphy had 25.

Elsewhere in the NBA, the New Orleans Jazz beat Detroit 95-89, the Kansas City Kings beat the New York Nets 107-96, the Washington Bullets edged the Cleveland Cavaliers 95-90, the Boston Celtics defeated the Atlanta Hawks 103-96, The Golden State Warriors downed the Philadelphia 76ers 128-120, the Los Angeles Lakers topped the Indiana Pacers 105-97 and the San Antonio Spurs edged the Denver Nuggets 122-120.

A's, Orioles Up For Sale?

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — Major league baseball owners, with the exception of Oakland's Charles O. Finley, assembled for their annual spring meeting today amid rumors that Finley's A's as well as the Baltimore Orioles are up for sale.

The Associated Press learned Wednesday night that Commissioner Bowie Kuhn has been involved in talks concerning the possible sale of the Orioles.

Meanwhile, George Heideman, owner of the Jenkintown, Pa., Steel Co., told The AP he has held a number of talks with Finley about buying the A's.

Neither Heideman nor Finley is expected to attend today's owners' meeting. Heideman, who came close to buying the old Washington Senators in the 1960s, said he was invited but can't make it. And Finley said he won't be here because he fears a move by the other owners to buy up his team.

"I don't want to hurt their feelings, but I'm afraid they might try to buy my club," Finley said Wednesday.

N-LV Coach Ignores NCAA Investigation

ATLANTA (AP) — Jerry Tarkanian, coach of fifth-ranked Nevada-Las Vegas, would just as soon skip the subject of his basketball team's investigation by the National Collegiate Athletic Association.

Asked Wednesday if he thought word of the investigation leaked out of NCAA headquarters in hopes of hampering the Rebels' bid for the national championship, Tarkanian said, "I've got a lot of thoughts on that but it's best that I don't express any of them."

And he didn't. Asked if it might affect his team in the NCAA tournament, he replied, "I don't think so."

He seemed more concerned with No. 4 North Carolina, his opponent Saturday in the 4:15 p.m. EST nightcap of the NCAA semifinals in Atlanta's Omni.

"I've never seen a team that did so many things and did them well," Tarkanian said Wednesday during a telephone news conference involving from his Chicago home. "I'm not going to Tampa and I'm not sending anyone to represent me."

Later, Finley confirmed having talked with Heideman. He also told The AP that he would sell his team to his fellow major league owners "with one stipulation — that they agree to keep the club in Oakland for at least 10 years."

Such a sale, he added, would have to be "signed in blood."

Informed sources told The AP that if either club is sold, it would be moved to Washington, D.C., and switched from the American League to the National, with limited interleague play beginning in 1978.

Details of the possible sale of the Orioles were extremely sketchy and the report was denied by club officials. But it was believed that board chairman Jerold C. Hoffberger wants to unload the club.

Kuhn was unavailable but The Baltimore Sun talked to Bob Wirz, director of public relations for the commissioner's office, who quoted Kuhn as saying: "I would deny that. I have not been involved in any such discussions."

General Manager Hank Peters said: "I can't comment officially on it because anything like that would have to come from Mr. Hoffberger, but I haven't heard a word about it, and I mean that sincerely. If anything were going on, I think I'd know about it."

Another report has baseball buying the A's from Finley, keeping the team in Oakland this season, then selling the franchise to Ed Cole, former chairman of the board of General Motors. The rumored price tag is $6 million, although Heideman indicated Finley's price is in the $8 million range. Cole would then move the franchise to Washington, satisfying a long-standing promise by Kuhn.

The franchise would switch to the National League, balancing the two leagues at 13 teams apiece. Presently, the AL has 14 teams and the NL has 12.

Finley's situation, under the heading of "franchise relocation," was one of the topics on the agenda of the owners, who were to meet in separate league sessions before joining for a general get-together.

Three-division play was another subject for discussion, with the AL virtually certain to approve it for 1978 and the NL having a better than even chance of accepting it.

NHL Playoff Competition Narrows

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

It is a time when teams struggling for playoff positions in the National Hockey League have to fight the temptation to watch the scoreboard and see how the competition is doing.

Boston Coach Don Cherry insists, for example, that "we cannot afford to worry about Buffalo," although the Bruins trail the first-place Sabres by four points in the Adams Division. "We have to play our schedule game by game. We have one game left with them at Buffalo, and it could be a key one for first place."

It could be, indeed, considering that both teams won Wednesday night — keeping the margin at four points. Boston has one more game to play than Buffalo, which has five games remaining.

The Sabres won for the 18th time in 25 games, besting Cleveland 4-2 and ruining the coaching debut of Harry Howell, who took over for Jack Evans. Evans was absent because of personal business.

The Bruins got a goal and three assists from Gregg Sheppard, while goalie Gerry Cheevers stopped 29 shots in picking up his third shutout of the season as Boston blanked the Detroit Red Wings 6-0.

The loss, Detroit's ninth by shutout this season, extended the Red Wings' winless string to 12 games.

In other NHL games, the New York Rangers downed Colorado 5-3, extending the Rockies' winless streak to 15 games; the Los Angeles Kings defeated the Chicago Black Hawks 3-1, and the Toronto Maple Leafs and New York Islanders skated to a 1-1 tie.

In the World Hockey Association, the Birmingham Bulls blanked the Phoenix Roadrunners 4-0 and the Quebec Nordiques beat the Cincinnati Stingers 6-4.

the coaches of the four semifinal teams.

He especially expressed concern about the Carolina "four corners" offense, a delay game often employed by Tar Heel Coach Dean Smith late in a game when his club is nursing a lead.

"A lot of teams are running the four corners," Tarkanian said. "It's not a matter of running it, it is how well you run it. It'll be new for us because we haven't seen anyone run it as well as Carolina."

"We get too much attention on our four corners," Smith said. "We also believe in the fast break. But no one does it any better than Vegas. We think we are surely facing the toughest team in the West. It will be one of the toughest tests we have faced."

The Tar Heels carry a 27-4 record into the game. Las Vegas has the top mark of the final four, 28-2.

Saturday's opener matches upstart North Carolina-Charlotte, 28-3 and ranked 17th, against No. 7 Marquette, 23-7.

Boys' Prep Cage Semifinals Slated

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Jene Davis may be only 30 years old and in his third coaching season, but already he's an historian of the Ohio high school basketball tournament.

Davis entertains no talk of a possible Saturday title meeting between No. 1 ranked Barborton and his No. 2 Columbus Linden-McKinley team.

"We play Cincinnati LaSalle, not Barborton," snapped Davis, looking only at tonight's semifinal match with the unheralded Lancers, 20-3. Linden-McKinley is 24-0.

Meanwhile, Barborton risks its 50-game winning streak, third longest in state history, against third-ranked Elyria, 240, in the other big school semifinal tonight in St. John Arena. "I remember in 1975," recalled Davis, "everybody had Canton McKinley and Kettering Alter in the finals. Instead, it ended up Linden and Cleveland Heights."

The Class AA and Class A semifinalists take over the Ohio State University facility Friday.

In Class AA, No. 4 Cleveland Latin, 22-2, goes against unranked Ottawa-Glandorf, 22-2, at 6 p.m. Friday, followed by No. 3 Columbus Mifflin, 21-3, against unrated Dayton Jefferson, 17-7, at 9:30 p.m.

In Class A, 1968 state victor Mansfield St. Peter's, 21-4, tangles with fourth-ranked Richmond Dale Southeastern, 23-1, at 2:30 p.m. Friday after Continental, 20-6, plays Fort Loramie, 18-8, at 11 a.m.

The title games are Saturday with the Class AAA showdown at 11:30 a.m., Class A a 3 p.m. and Class AA at 7:30 p.m. Barborton's streak is second only to Middletown's 76 in a row in 1956-57-58 and 54 straight by Bellpoint in 1924-25.

Barborton has a chance to become the first to win back-to-back big school titles since the Columbus East teams of Ed Ratleff and Dwight Lamar turned the trick in 1968-1969.

Immaculata Wins AIAW Contest

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Immaculata needed help to avoid being upset in the opening round of the Association of Intercollegiate Athletics for Women (AIAW) basketball tournament.

The help came from somewhere as the perennial Pennsylvania women's powerhouse rallied for an 83-73 victory Wednesday night in first-round action of the AIAW tournament.

Cathy Rush, Immaculata's veteran coach, thought the Mighty Macs had all the help they needed following a pregame visit from evangelist Oral Roberts.

"I don't know what it did for the girls, but I told them what it meant to me," said Ms. Rush. "It was quite a thrill."

Tennessee Tech Coach Marynell Meadors thought Immaculata got all the help it needed from the officials.

"The officials must have read the paper and saw where Immaculata was supposed to win," charged Ms. Meadors after Tech's 83-73 defeat Wednesday night.

Chris Evert Slowing Down?

NEW YORK (AP) — It may be little more than wishful thinking, but Chris Evert's contemporaries say they are beginning to detect some chinks in the armor of the world's No.1 woman tennis player.

"The pressure on her is tremendous — I think she is beginning to show signs of the strain," says Rosie Casals, who at 28 and with the semi-retirement of Billie Jean King, is the grand dame of the ladies' pro circuit. "I find her looking more and more to outside interests."

"It is hard to become No. 1 and, once there, maintain it," adds Kristien Shaw. "She must always be asking herself, 'Where do I go from here?' She is her own biggest threat. She has set such high standards she is challenging the other young women to come up and be better."

One of the most formidable of these new challengers is Martina Navratilova, 20, the Czech defector who has beaten Chris once this year, won four tour events and leads Miss Evert in money winnings.

"It wouldn't be so hard if you just had to beat Chris on the court," Martina said. "But you have to beat her in the head. Her big edge is psychological. She is mentally tough. No one plays the important points better."

"But sometimes she seems to be dragging a weight on the court. I don't know how long she can stand going out there every day and hearing fans cheer against her."

The ladies take another shot at the incredible Miss Evert this weekend in the Virginia Slims Championship at Madison Square Garden, giving rise again to those inevitable questions: Who can beat her? How long can the stony Ft. Lauderdale, Fla., miss with the twofisted backhand dominate women's fans? Is there an heiress on the horizon?

Holder of both the Wimbledon and U.S. crowns, winner of almost half a million dollars in prize money last season, Miss Evert, at 22, doesn't look like a candidate for early retirement.

In her entire professional career, only eight women have been able to beat her. Last year she dropped only four decisions on the circuit. She has built up commanding leads over her current rivals... 18-4 over Navratilova, 20-1 over Casals, 20-5 over Virginia Wade. She is 8-7 over King and 18-11 over Yvonne Goolagong, now on maternity leave.

"Concentration, determination and consistency — they are the reasons she wins," insists Britain's Miss Wade, who has won two of her last three meetings with Chris. "She doesn't have a great deal of variety — spins and things like that. Basically, she hits the ball the same way all the time. So she can't go off that much. It takes a superior performance to beat her."

Chris herself listens to all of these assessments and prophecies, and smiles enigmatically.

"I have to put out 100 per cent to win," she says. "Eighty per cent is not enough. There's always pressure, certainly, but I try not to think about it."

"I get tired of the travel, the constant reminder that I have another match to play, then another. I find my mind wandering. That's when I take a break and go to dinner or a ballet.

"Two years from now? Who knows?"

Doug Toole of South Bloomfield is a medical patient in Doctors Hospital,

North. Let's remember him with cards.

Mrs. Virgil Waldon and family would like their many friends, relatives and neighbors to know that mere words can never express their sincere and heartfelt gratitude for their many acts of kindness and concern during the illness of their loved one, Virgil Waldon. They are so grateful to all those who extended their sympathetic hearts to them and did so much to soften their grief at his passing.

The many get-well cards, phone call, visits to the hospitals and home, gifts, sympathy cards, beautiful floral offerings, food and prayers have meant so much in easing a long period of worry and sorrow. They feel they can never fully express their heartfelt gratitude to the Rev. John Currens for his spiritual guidance to Virgil during his illness and for his consoling message in his wonderful memorial service.

Special thanks to all the doctors and nurses who provided care, to our fine Emergency Squad for their assistance and to the Bastian Funeral Home for their kindness. They want every one to know they are sincerely grateful and pray that God will bless you all for your kindness.

A-C Schools Set Toddler Registration

Amanda-Clearcreek kindergarten and first grade registration for the 1977-78 school year will be held April 13, at the Amanda Elementary between 9 a.m. and 3 p.m. and at the Stoutsville Elementary April 14, during the same hours.

Parents of children now attending kindergarten at Amanda-Clearcreek do not have to be present. These children are already enrolled for first grade.

All parents of children who are eligible for kindergarten for 1977-78 school year are asked to attend. To be eligible for kindergarten, a child must be five years of age on or before September 30, 1977.

Parents of children who did not attend kindergarten this year, but who will be six years of age on or before September 30, 1977 and will attend first grade for the 1977-78 school year are also asked to attend.

Bring your child's birth certificate and record of shots and immunizations. Mrs. Miller, A-C district nurse, will be present to check shot records and to give information concerning immunizations, and to help in arranging for medical assistance if needed. Health forms will be provided for the required physical examination by your family doctor. These forms should be returned to the school by May 20. The children do not need to be present.

This registration is to obtain information concerning the number of students to be enrolled next year and to assist parents in procedures for registration. Preferences for morning or afternoon session attendance will be noted but classes will be set up according to need for bus transportation.

The kindergarten teacher will be available the day of registration to afford the parents the opportunity to discuss any situations which may be helpful for the child.

Students Discover Wonders Of Nature

MENTOR, Ohio (AP) — Every boy and girl in Marilyn Fais' fifth grade class can identify a yellow bellied sapsucker and a tufted titmouse.

Rather than swatting the wasps that occasionally buzz through an open window on a spring day, they capture them under glass and carefully take them back outside. A lost spider that wanders into class gets similar treatment.

Students have been known to bring snakes into class, but only for a day or two.

"We must always return every living creature to its natural habitat," she often reminds her class.

Most often that is somewhere in the 17 acres of woods that surrounds Headlands Elementary School where Mrs. Fais teaches.

That is where students often roam when they show up at school early to accompany Mrs. Fais on one of her almost daily nature walks.

Everything from plants that grow on the windowsill of her classroom to the creatures of nature that are brought in or come on their own, she says, is borrowed from nature.

Jobless Benefit Claims Decline

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The Bureau of Unemployment Services says the number of Ohioans filing claims for unemployment benefits decreased during the week ending March 19.

Administrator Albert G. Giles said 11,630 jobless Ohioans filed initial claims, compared with 12,614 persons the week before.

The total number of unemployment claims was estimated at 170,256 as of March 19, compared with a weekly unemployment average in March 1976 of 232,623.

titmouses and other creatures of nature at a homemade feeder outside one classroom window.

Sometimes early in the morning before students arrive or in the quiet of the empty room after they leave, Mrs. Fais says she sings a 19th century rhyme she learned as a child:

"All things bright and beautiful;
"All creatures great and small;
"All things wise and wonderful;
"The Lord God made them all."

She calls it her motto and her classroom reflects her awareness of the environment.

This year, her class has its own tree—a mature mountain ash they bought with $100 raised by last year's class by selling a bicentennial quilt they made in school.

This year, students made a rug from rags and donated it to the Cleveland Museum of Natural History.

Another rug is now underway. It will be raffled and the money used for another, as yet unidentified, class project.

"Teaching school is so great", Mrs. Fais said. "It gives you a chance to do the things which will develop in the children lifelong interests and appreciation for the environment."

A University of Michigan study has found that marriage practically triples a man's chances for success in his career.

Northwest, Northeast Get Wet

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Rain and snow fell today in the Northwest, where it was needed, and in the Northeast, where it was not.

Stockmen, already troubled with drought, were warned to provide shelter for newborn livestock as a cold front pushed eastward to the Central Plateau.

Travelers were advised to be cautious of snow and strong winds in Utah, northeast Nevada and higher elevations in Idaho, Oregon and northern California. Rain fell at lower elevations in California and the Pacific Northwest.

High wind warnings and travel advisories also were posted for parts of southern California.

Snow continued in scattered areas of Pennsylvania, New York and northern New England.

In New Hampshire, Public Service Co. crews worked through the night to

Judge Ammer Sets Hearing On Five-Year-Old Case

James Robert Hunt, the deaf mute who was arrested over five years ago on charges of breaking and entering and arson, will be tried in Pickaway County Common Pleas Court, according to Judge William Ammer.

Hunt of Route 2, Kingston, was arrested by Pickaway County Sheriff's Deputies after he allegedly broke into and set fire to the Elmwood Elevator office building on Route 361 April 19, 1972.

In a pre-trial hearing at that time, Hunt pled not guilty and not guilty by reason of insanity.

On Jan. 22, 1973, he was civilly committed by the Pickaway County Probate Court to Orient State Hospital.

The case, placed on the inactive list because of his commitment, was recently re-opened by Pickaway County Prosecutor James Kingsley after Hunt was acquitted by a jury in Ross County in November on a charge of murder.

Hunt also faces a charge of aggravated burglary in Ross County. Prior to the murder trial, Ross

County authorities committed Hunt to Lima State Hospital where he learned to communicate with a staff worker.

Hunt did not appear for a scheduled hearing in Pickaway County Common Pleas Court Wednesday, but there was a question as to notice of the appearance.

Judge Ammer has re-set the preliminary hearing for April 6. Local attorney John Farthing was appointed to represent him in the case.

In other court cases Wednesday, Judge Ammer ordered a pre-sentence report on one defendant and suspended the sentences of four others.

A pre-sentence report was ordered on Elizabeth A. Hollis, 215 W. Mound St., who pled guilty to grand theft.

She was charged with illegally obtaining food stamps and Aid to Dependant Children payments by not declaring an earned wage from April 8 to Aug. 31. Monetary value associated with the charge was $514.

Geraldine Compton, 35, Groveport, was placed on probation for two years providing she make full restitution of $850 in illegal ADC payments she received after Oct. 1, 1975.

She pled guilty to the grand theft offense Jan. 19 and was sentenced to a term of from six months to five years in the Marysville Reformatory for Women.

Judge Ammer suspended concurrent six month to five year terms in the Mansfield Reformatory for John M. Woolever, 27, Columbus, and placed him on probation for three years.

Woolever pled guilty Feb. 1 to charges of breaking and entering and grand theft. He was charged with stealing a farm tractor April 6, 1974.

In establishing probation, Judge Ammer ordered Woolever to make restitution for the tractor and to not associate with certain persons.

A six month to five year term in the Marysville Reformatory for Women for Janet K. Large, 34, Chillicothe, was suspended by Judge Ammer, and she was placed on probation for three years.

She pled guilty Jan. 26 to a charge of grand theft stemming from the illegal obtaining of money from April 25, 1975, to June 14, 1976.

In ordering probation, Judge Ammer said she must make restitution of $11,297.82 to the victim of the crime.

Chester Vanover, 20, 546½ E. Main St., was placed on probation for three years after Judge Ammer suspended a six month to five year term in the Mansfield Reformatory.

Vanover pled guilty Feb. 16 to a charge of breaking and entering. He was arrested Nov. 28 for unlawfully entering a local grain mill with the intent to commit a theft offense.

In establishing probation, Judge Ammer ordered Vanover to not associate with certain individuals and to make restitution of $865.

The State of Ohio was represented by Pickaway County Prosecutor James Kingsley in the cases.

Ted Lewis Board Meets

Members of the Ted Lewis Museum Inc. board of directors Wednesday authorized payment of 50 per cent of the cost of installation of a crime detection device at the museum in the old Second National Bank building.

The device will be installed if the Pickaway County Historical Society agrees to the installation and to pay half of the cost of $1,445.

Directors attending the meeting were: Judge William Ammer, president; Dr. Robert Liggett, David Yates, Judge O. Charles Hosterman, Link Mader and L. Robert Liston.

Liggett reported his committee is working on establishing criteria for the music scholarship to be presented by the board.

Judge Ammer named Polly Miller, Yates, Hosterman and Mader to a committee to plan the open house which will be held in early June.

The next meeting of the board will be Noon May 11 at the Colony House.

Circleville Safety Council, was master of ceremonies for the evening. He introduced the Rev. Melvin Maxwell who gave the invocation, then introduced Lawrence Whalen, manager of campaigns and congress of the safety and hygiene division.

Whalen said that he works with 52 local safety councils around the state, and is "impressed with the large turnout for the first safety banquet" in Circleville.

Because last night's dinner was the first gathering of the safety council, Whalen explained the safety division. He said it prints about 150 publications that can be distributed in the work place that deal with safety. Also, the division provides educational and training programs, including a 14 week course that has been used in Circleville through the Chamber of Commerce. He mentioned the All-Ohio Safety Congress to be held in Columbus April 12 through 14.

Whalen then presented the awards. Accepting for General Electric was Ed Farynowski, past chairman of the Safety Council.

Walter Hall received the 100 per cent award and Dave Scheible was presented the group award for PPG.

Tom Spring, staff writer for the Circleville Herald, accepted both awards for the Circleville Publishing Company. The Van Camp Materials Company award was accepted by T. D. Van Camp.

The guest speaker related experiences of his past years in a humorous manner for the audience. His speech "Forward Ever, Backward Never," included parts of his life as a professor and coach.

Struck has coached several high school and college athletic teams. He told the group that three areas should be heeded by everyone, in every situation. They are "to care, to share and to dare."

After this speech, Gephart reminded the audience that the Safety Council is still a young organization in the community and there is still room for the membership to grow.

Deputy Helps Remove Man From House

Pickaway County Deputy Sheriff Jim Fite assisted Ross County Sheriff's Deputies in forcing a Yellowbud man to surrender to authorities.

The incident began 12:20 a.m. Thursday when Howard Jordan, 24, barricaded himself inside his Yellowbud home, a half mile south of the Pickaway County line.

Jordan was armed with a 20 guage shotgun, Deputy Fite said.

After repeated attempts to "talk" Jordan from the home failed, members of the Ross County SWAT team fired a tear gas grenade into the home to flush him out.

He was taken into custody a short time later and charged with felonious assault. His wife, Judy, was charged with obstructing justice.

Members of the Union Twp. Fire Department were summoned to the scene to extinguish a blaze to the house which began when the tear gas grenade exploded.

Moderate damage was reported. Deputy Fite was requested to assist the Ross County Deputies by Pickaway County Sheriff Dwight Radcliff.

Correction

Pickaway County Deputy Sheriff Billy Huffman, who was suspended for three days by Sheriff Dwight Radcliff, reported for work Monday before walking off the job.

In a story in Wednesday's paper, The Herald reported that Huffman failed to report for work.

His three-day suspension, for conduct unbecoming an officer and dereliction of duty, will end Friday.

ANGIE MEETS STAR — Talking over the day's program at the 18th Cured Cancer Assembly at the Ohio Union, Columbus, are the American Cancer Society's 1977 Ohio Division Crusade Chairman, actor Greg Morris, and Pickaway County Unit's cured cancer representative, Angie Masters, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Masters of Ashville.

Common Situs Picketing Measure Loses By Upset

WASHINGTON (AP) — A bill that would have strengthened the hand of striking construction unions is dead not only for this year but for the foreseeable future, a dejected sponsor says.

In a stinging defeat for organized labor and the House Democratic leadership, the common situs picketing bill went down to a surprise defeat Wednesday night on a 217 to 205 vote.

Although it directly affected only the building trades, the vote was the first test of organized labor's strength in the new and heavily Democratic Congress.

The bill's prime sponsor, Rep. Frank Thompson Jr., D-N.J., said the vote killed the legislation for the foreseeable future. He also said the outcome bodes ill for labor's campaign against right-to-work laws.

Conservatives and business lobbied intensively against the bill, which would have allowed a union to shut down an entire construction site in a dispute with only one subcontractor.

House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill

said he had never seen organizations lobby as hard as the picketing bill's opponents. Before the vote, a pessimistic O'Neill chided labor for not mounting an effective drive to muster support for the bill.

The House passed a similar bill in 1975, 229 to 189. It was vetoed in January 1976 by then — President Gerald R. Ford.

"When you get careless along the line, the train goes off the track," O'Neill said. Despite the speaker's efforts to keep Democrats in line, 88 voted with 129 Republicans against the bill. Only 14 Republicans voted for it.

The majority was fashioned out of a coalition of Republicans and southern Democrats, including all nine from President Carter's home state of Georgia.

Carter, who won with overwhelming labor support in a narrow contest against Ford last fall, stayed out of the fray. Carter had said merely that he would sign the bill if Congress passed it.

Ford initially backed the common situs bill in 1975, but vetoed it under heavy pressure from conservatives.

Deputies Continue Probe Of Auto Larceny Case

Pickaway County Sheriff's Deputies Jim Deal and Danny Dewey are still attempting to unravel the suspected crimes committed by five Cleveland residents who were apprehended while driving a stolen car through the county shortly before midnight Wednesday.

Thus far, the deputies have tied three stolen cars to the case, the robbery of items from a Cleveland house a year ago, and the robbery of items from the same house last week to the three adults and two juveniles.

To further complicate the case, several traffic charges have been lodged and the Ohio State Highway Patrol is investigating an accident in which one of the men was struck by a car while being questioned by Deputy Dewey.

Those arrested and the charges are: Andrew James Holmes, 21, receiving stolen property;

Johnny Elswick, 17, receiving stolen property and possession of stolen credit cards;

Brian Carter, 16, receiving stolen property and driving a car with no operator's license;

John R. Temple, 29, displaying fictitious registration;

And Patricia Elswick, 45, who is being held for the Cleveland Police Department on a contempt of court charge stemming for a burglary investigation.

Temple was injured when he was struck by a car driven by Lawrence L. Hall, 26, Route 1, Lockbourne. Hall's vehicle drifted off the right side of Route 23 while it was being pursued by Ohio State Highway Patrol Trooper Ed Urban.

Hall, who was later stopped, was charged with operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of alcohol or drugs and possession.

Deputy Dewey, who stopped Temple's car, was in the process of copying the car's serial number from the driver's door when the accident occurred.

The car was parked on the east berm of Route 23 on the down slope of "Bunker Hill," about two miles south of South Bloomfield.

Temple was apparently standing beside the Deputy about two feet off

Speedy Drought Aid Seen By Congress

WASHINGTON (AP) — Quick action on President Carter's drought relief program is being predicted in Congress, despite grumbling about his plan to charge farmers 5 per cent interest on loans to buy water.

"Obviously the President shares my own sense of urgency regarding the severe drought," Rep. Morris K. Udall, D-Ariz., chairman of the House Interior Committee, said after the program was unveiled Wednesday.

"I am in substantial agreement with the proposals outlined in his message to the Congress and am confident the committee will act expeditiously on this urgent matter."

Rhodes Gas Solution Hits Snag

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A Federal Power Commission ruling that Gov. James A. Rhodes is relying on as a precedent for his plan to transmit Ohio self-help gas through federally regulated pipelines may not apply.

The FPC formally refuses to comment on the plan but it points out that the Colorado case Rhodes is banking on is not identical to the Ohio plan.

Rhodes has managed to extract a promise from Columbia Gas System Inc., parent to Columbia Gas of Ohio, that the conglomerate will carry so-called self-help gas in its interstate pipelines.

Those lines traditionally are reserved for gas committed to the interstate market. The FPC controls the movement and price of that gas. Interstate gas now costs about $1.44 per 1,000 cubic feet. The Ohio self-help gas would bring between $2 and $2.25 for the same quantity.

The self-help concept is a push by Rhodes to encourage independent drillers to develop Ohio gas wells on the assurance that the gas could be sold at the unregulated, higher price and in Ohio only.

There now are several self-help wells owned by industries but there was a problem last winter in getting the gas from the wells to the industry.

The Rhodes plan, agreed to by Columbia, will solve some of those problems.

But an FPC spokesman in Washington said that the Colorado case allowed intrastate (unregulated) gas to move in interstate (regulated) pipelines because those pipelines terminated in Colorado and there wasn't a chance that "one molecule of unregulated gas could leave the state."

Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., chairman of the Senate Committee on Energy and Natural Resources, also said he was pleased with parts of Carter's message, but added there were "some problems ... which will have to be reviewed very carefully."

He said that "in light of the emergency," the farmers should receive grants, not loans at 5 per cent interest.

At a House hearing on drought relief, Secretary of the Interior Cecil Andrus said Congress has provided for 5 per cent loans to farmers in other types of disaster relief programs and the Carter proposal was in line with this policy.

Rep. Lloyd Meeds, D-Wash., chairman of the House Interior subcommittee on water and power, said this seemed "untoward."

He added, "I suggest you rethink the entire approach of 5 per cent interest on disaster."

Carter asked Congress to approve a program of loans and grants totaling $844 million for farmers, businessmen and communities in the drought-stricken West and Midwest.

"If we are to be of real help to the people afflicted, time is of the essence," the President said.

Carter also said he had asked the interior and Agriculture Departments to make additional federal land available for grazing.

Some congressional sources predicted this would arouse opposition from environmentalists who have argued that public lands are grazed beyond their capacity already.

The Carter package also contains: —Temporary authority to allow the Economic Development Administration and the Farmers Home Administration to grant $150 million and loan $300 million to communities for emergency improvements to their water systems.

—A Small Business Administration program providing $50 million in low interest loans to small businesses in drought areas.

—A program that could provide $100 million in 5 per cent loans to farmers and ranchers in the drought areas to cover prospective losses.

awards. Second row: Ghay Holcomb, Division of Safety and Hygiene committee member; Lawrence J. Whalen, campaign and congress manager for the Division of Safety and Hygiene; Ed Farynowski, General Electric, group award; and T.D. Van Camp, Van Camp Materials Company, 100 per cent award.

Close to 80 people attended the first annual Safety Banquet sponsored in part by the Circleville Area Chamber of Commerce and the Industrial Commission of Ohio.

Awards were presented to four companies in Pickaway County for excellence in safety practices on the job. The dinner guests also heard a humorous talk by the evening's speaker, R. F. "Dutch" Struck.

For the Accident Prevention Contest held in 1976, Group Awards were presented to three companies that compiled the greatest number of man-hours worked with the least number of lost-time injuries. Winners in this category are the General Electric Lamp Plant, the Circleville Publishing Company and Pittsburgh Plate Glass, Industries, Inc.

In the 100 Per Cent Safety Award category, winners were chosen based on the entire year without a single lost-time injury. The Circleville Publishing Company, PPG Industries and Van Camp Materials qualified and received plaques for this honor.

The group safety award plaques noted that the companies were honored "for the contribution to safety by their supervisory personnel and employees." The safety merit certificates recognized the "100 per cent accident prevention record," of the companies that received them.

Both honors were sponsored by the Division of Safety and Hygiene of the state's Industrial Commission and the Circleville Chamber.

the edge of the road. Deputy Dewey, who spotted the car moments before it struck Temple, was able to throw himself against Temple's vehicle to avoid being hit. He suffered a minor injury to his back.

Four Ohio State Highway Patrol cars were called to direct traffic around the injured Temple, who was treated at the scene of the accident by the Harrisburg Squad. He was later checked at Berger Hospital for minor contusions and released.

The incident began about 11:30 p.m. when Deputy Deal was told of two suspicious cars on Route 23 by a passing truck driver. The trucker, using a citizen band radio, told the Deputy that the two cars had followed him from Waverly and had not passed his rig even though he allowed them several opportunities.

The Deputy, who was responding to a domestic disturbance in the northern part of the county, spotted the vehicles on Route 23 near Hagerty Road and followed the lead car, a 1975 white Ford Mustang II, when the second vehicle, an older model Ford, pulled to the berm.

Markets

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock prices pulled back again today, continuing their week-long decline.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks, down more than 25 points in the last five sessions, dropped more than a point in early trading.

Losers took a 5-3 lead over gainers among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Brokers said the market was still suffering the effects of the inflation and interest-rate worries that have weighed it down since early in the year.

They also noted uncertainty over the potential form and effects of the energy program President Carter is scheduled to outline on April 20.

Today's early prices included UAL, up 1/4 at 20 3/4; American Telephone & Telegraph, ahead 1/2 at 62 1/2, and Exxon, up 1/4 at 50.

On Wednesday the Dow Jones industrial average fell 8.64 to 942.32.

Losers outnumbered gainers 9-5 on the NYSE.

Big Board volume reached 19.36 million shares, against 18.66 million Tuesday.

The NYSE's composite index lost .41 to 54.52.

Whiskey Vat Pickles Enjoy Sales Boom

FARMINGDALE, N.Y. (AP) — Nat Stern pickles his pickles in charred oak barrels previously used for aging whiskey. Could that be the secret?

Nat Stern also has an abiding dislike of machinery. Could that be it?

Whatever it is, it has kept Stern's pickle works in business at the same old stand since 1894, a boon not only to the Stern family but also to four generations of Long Island gastronomes. Long Island is the only place on earth you can find a Stern pickle and surely worth the trip. Nat Stern does not export. That may be part of his secret too.

"We make pickles exactly the way they were made when this place opened," Nat Stern said.

"The formula is the same for the brine. The spices are the same. The amount of dill weed is the same. Nothing has changed. We have never used chemicals and never will. We do try to improve the quality of our cucumbers — we even provide the seed to our growers. But the pickling process is the same.

"As for the barrels, the fact that they once held whiskey has nothing to do with the taste of the pickle, at least I don't think it has.

"It's just that cooperage is practically a lost art nowadays. Distilleries are the best source of charred oak barrels because they can use them only once. The wood is what matters. You can't make a real pickle in anything except wood."

Nat Stern should know. He is 74, the son of the founder, and has spent many a pungent day at the pickle works.

Nat's father, Aaron Stern, came to America from Austria with not much more than a pushcart and a dream. Up and down Delaney St. on Manhattan's Lower East Side he peddled pickles.

"They weren't his own pickles, though," his son explained, "so he had no advantage over any other peddler with the same pickles. He figured that if he made his own pickles their quality would be the selling point and he could avoid the price-juggling rat race. That belief hasn't changed either."

So Aaron Stern moved to Long Island, out in the country where the cucumbers grew.

Most of that vast farmland has long since been parved over; Nat's cucumber suppliers follow the harvest from Mexico to Michigan. The pickle works, though, remains as Aaron Stern built it.

Nat and his nephew, Joe Steuer, have run the business since Aaron Stern died in 1952.

"My father's wish was that everything would remain the same, that we would operate the business the way he did," Nat Stern said. "We have honored his request.

"You will notice there is no machinery around here. That's the real secret of our pickles.

"If we got any bigger we would have to have machines put the pickles in jars. The way we do it, the way it has been done for 83 years, every pickle goes into the jar by hand. Only the best get in.

"That is the way it will continue to be done, by hand. Machines have no conscience."

Deputies Continue . . .

domestic call, circled in behind the older model Ford and both cars were stopped by the Deputies within 100 feet on Route 23 at Bunker Hill.

In checking the Mustang through the NCIC computer, Deputy Deal found that the license plate was registered to a 1974 beige Ford which had been stolen March 16 from Robyn L. Watts of Akron.

When the serial number of the Mustang was traced, Deputy Deal discovered that the vehicle had been stolen March 13 from its owner, Ron Kalas of Brookpark, near Cleveland.

The Deputy found that keys from a General Motors car were in the ignition switch, which fell out of the socket when they were moved.

With OSP Trooper Urban and South Bloomfield Deputy Marshall Harold Hopkins controlling traffic, Deputy Deal searched the car and found a sack containing new clothes.

Carter, the car's driver, and Holmes and Elswick were arrested by the Deputy.

In the meantime, Deputy Dewey was administering first aid to Temple, who had been struck by the Hall car.

Passengers in his car were Patricia Elswick, 45, Nancy Elswick, 18, and two young juveniles.

While questioning the three men at Sheriff's headquarters, Deputy Deal found a checkbook, Savings Bonds, and two credit cards owned by John P. Vacha of Cleveland.

In a telephone conversation with Vacha, Deputy Deal learned that the Savings Bonds and credit cards were included in about $600 worth of items which were stolen from his house March 16. At the same time, thieves also took his 1972 model car.

The checkbook was taken from Vacha's house in a 1976 burglary, he said.

Deputy Deal also discovered that Vacha's Bank Americard was used Wednesday to purchase $44.57 worth of clothing items from a K-Mart store in Chesapeake.

Deputy Dewey charged Temple with driving with fictitious registration when he found that 30-day license tags on the car had been altered to reflect that they were still valid.

Through the Salvation Army, the Deputies found lodging for the night for Mrs. Elswick, Nancy Elswick, and the two youngsters.

While talking with Cleveland Police, they discovered that an active warrant was on file for Mrs. Elswick, who they expected to arrest Thursday morning.

Nepotism Seen On Indiana Payrolls

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — State Rep. William Drozda, D-Gary, says at least 14 officials in the state unemployment office have close relatives on the payroll.

"This proves personal ties outweigh merit in the office's hiring and promotion policies, Drozda said Wednesday.

Division Director John F. Coppes, said, "I haven't had time to check it out" but added there was no wrongdoing "as far as I know."

Drozda called for an investigation by the State Board of Accounts, state and federal civil rights commissions and the State Personnel Division.

He said, "Fourteen families control many of the highest positions in the division."

Mental Health Program Expands

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The state mental health and mental retardation programs are experiencing rapid progress in construction of community care programs, according to Dr. Timothy B. Moritz, director of the Department of Mental Health and Mental Retardation.

Moritz said the department has completed or started 237 community projects in the last two years, costing $146.9 million, about 50 per cent funded by the state.

The construction increase means 37,611 patients are served in state-funded community facilities, more than twice the number of patients involved in such programs two years ago.

High Court Upholds Phone Charge

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Ohioans banking on the Supreme Court to reinstitute free telephone directory assistance were the losers Wednesday as the court upheld Cincinnati Bell's practice of charging for the service.

In a case brought by a group of Cincinnati Bell customers, the court upheld a Public Utilities Commission of Ohio ruling, dismissing the customer complaints that the charge for directory assistance calls was discriminatory.

Cincinnati Bell began charging 20 cents for all directory assistance calls over three a month in 1973 with PUCO approval. The plan also allowed Bell to charge for assistance in getting numbers in the 513 area code even though a customer might not have access to the appropriate directory.

Justice Paul W. Brown, writing for the 6-1 majority concluded:

"Other courts have stated, and we observe, that tariff structuring is essentially discriminatory. The recent trend of relating costs of service more directly to tariff structuring seems in this case to assure fairer and more nondiscriminatory rates to all classes of users to the extent that cost structuring can be shown to require those using a utility service pay for it . . ."

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Environmental Protection Agency has approved four experimental pesticides to partially combat an expected epidemic of caterpillars on cotton, America's fourth-ranked cash crop.

A fifth was also approved Wednesday to protect the pear crop in Oregon and Washington that is threatened by an aphidlike insect called the pear psylla. It could cause $13 million in losses without the insecticide BAAM, EPA said.

EPA administrator Douglas M. Costle said that between $20 million and $40 million worth of cotton may be threatened this summer by bollworms and budworms. Pesticide producers have told the agency they can produce enough of the chemicals to protect up to $15 million worth.

Costle said the chemicals' use was requested on an emergency basis by the two pear states and 11 cotton states several months ago.

He approved it even though damage to fish and other water life is possible and "weak evidence exists that BAAM may be a suspect cancer agent."

Restrictions were placed on use of all five pesticides, with the states controlling their application.

Costle said that the benefits outweigh the risks. Resistance to other pesticides is part of the problem in both cases, he said.

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Senators approved Wednesday a bill, already passed by the House, placing political restraints on gubernatorial appointments to the Ohio Retirement Study Commission.

It provides that not more than two of three appointments made by the governor to the 14-member commission may belong to the same political party.

The measure also requires Senate confirmation of the governor's appointees.

Sponsors said the bill was needed to conform the governor's appointive powers to those of the top two legislative leaders, each of whom name three members to the commission.

Rounding out the advisory agency are the directors of the five state retirement systems who are nonvoting members.

The Senate's 29-1 vote sent the measure to the governor.

No Damages Paid In Tank Accident

WASHINGTON (AP) — Allen Aaron Jackson enlisted in the Army to be trained as an automobile mechanic. Instead, at 21, his body was cut in half by a tank.

A federal court on Wednesday said it "deeply sympathizes" with Jackson, but it can't order the government to pay damages to him.

Jackson had sued for breach of contract, claiming he was promised two things by a recruiter: he would get mechanic's training; he would not be assigned to dangerous duty.

The Army says there was no such promise, at least not in writing. And even if there had been, the recruiter had no authority to make it and therefore it's not binding.

In May 1974, four months after he enlisted, Jackson took part in maneuvers at Ft. Riley, Kan. A tank ran over him. The lower half of his body, navel on down, had to be amputated.

Jackson's lawyers could not sue for negligence; the Supreme Court has said it knows of no law that permits a soldier to recover damages on that ground. The lawyers chose the unusual claim that there was breach of the enlistment contract and asked $5 million damages.

The U.S. Court of Claims on Wednesday issued its decision in case No. 259-76, Allen Aaron Jackson vs. The United States.

The court said it made a thorough, careful and comprehensive review "in view of the shocking severity of the plaintiff's injuries," but said it could find nothing in the enlistment papers that prevented the Army from using Jackson in training exercises.

"The court deeply sympathizes with the plaintiff for the severe injury he received while serving our country in the United States Army," said the judges. "However, the court is without jurisdiction, authority or power to grant him any relief. It may be that he could get help from Congress...."

Since that awful day in Kansas, Jackson has undergone 28 operations. He is now in the Hines (Ill.) Veterans Administration hospital being fitted for a prosthesis.

"He can sit up in a bucket which holds him rigid," says his father, Raymond, a Chicago bus driver. "When he dresses up in the prosthetic it will look like he's whole, but actually he's half. When he sits up he'll look like a whole man, that's about it."

The Army discharged Jackson and the Veterans Administration sends him $1,700 a month disability pay. It is small compensation.

"He had a girlfriend. She disappeared out of the picture," says his father. "He has only a couple of the friends he had, only a couple who have been true blue to him. All the pals he used to pal around with ... all he's got is family."

Trooper Recovers Stolen Auto

Post 65 of the Ohio Highway Patrol made a recovery of a stolen auto in the early hours of Thursday.

According to patrol personnel, at approximately 3 a.m. Thursday Trooper David Norman pulled his cruiser into the north bound rest area on U.S. 23 just south of the Franklin County line.

The trooper observed a 1977 Oldsmobile that was backed into a parking space. Upon a closer check of the vehicle, he discovered that it had a Kentucky registration, requiring only a license plate on the rear of the car. The vehicle specifications that are on new car windows were partially scratched also, as if an attempt had been made to remove them.

The circumstances aroused Norman's curiosity, and he ran a registration and vehicle identification number check on the car.

With the crime computer in a "down" status, the check on the car did not return for approximately 30 minutes. But when the computer did return the information it listed the car as one stolen from Ashland, Kentucky area. The driver of the car, identified as Stewart Scott, 22, of Ashland, Ky., was also wanted by Kentucky authorities, according to patrol personnel.

The vehicle was impounded, and Scott was taken to Post 65 headquarters, then on to Circleville City jail.

He appeared before Municipal Court Judge O. Charles Hosterman this morning, where he was bound over to authorities from Kentucky for extradition.

Post 65 reports that its Troopers have recovered three stolen autos to date in 1977.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Elections, Financial Institutions and Insurance Committee recommended passage Wednesday night of a bill that would have Ohio's governor and lieutenant governor elected as a team, starting in 1978.

The bill, by Committee Chairman Tony P. Hall, D-6 Dayton, implements a constitutional amendment adopted by the state's voters in 1976.

Under the measure, which now goes to the rules committee for assignment to a floor vote, candidates for the two top offices would run independently in the primary election.

The nominees then would team up for the November general election, with voters casting a single vote as they now do for president and vice president.

Hall's bill also relieves the lieutenant governor of his one existing legal duty under present law—presiding over the Senate.

The bill provides that the lieutenant governor in the future could be given additional duties either by the governor or the legislature.

Hall's measure further provides that the lieutenant governor will preside over a new commission established by it to help the state and its local subdivisions work toward the solution of common problems.

Wagering Bill Gains Support

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Sen. Lawrence Borst says his parimutuel wagering bill has enough support for a Senate override of Gov. Otis Bowen's veto.

Borst has guided the measure through the Senate and says there are 26 firm votes to override.

The House overrode the veto Wednesday with votes to spare despite defections by two Republicans who voted for the bill earlier. The vote was 54-46.

The Republicans who switched are Dan Burton of Indianapolis and Steve Collins of Portage. They said responses from constituents influenced their decision.

Florea Ponders Suit Against Army

LEBANON, Ohio (AP) — A mechanic who was arrested for being AWOL nearly seven years after he was sent home by the Army, said he is still considering legal action despite a recommendation for an honorable discharge.

"Well, I was a little surprised, but I expected it," said Larry Florea, 26, after receiving a letter from the Army at Ft. Knox, Ky., Wednesday.

The letter said the investigation into his case had been completed and Ft. Knox officials had recommended to the Department of the Army that Florea be given an honorable discharge plus pay for 135 days remaining service time.

The letter also told Florea he would probably be eligible for veterans benefits.

It was Florea's request to the Army for a discharge to enable him to apply for a VA loan in February that led to his arrest in Dayton, Ohio and transportation to Ft. Knox as being absent without leave since 1971.

"I still may take it to court," Florea said. "It's a relief. It looks like the Army has definitely admitted they made a mistake," Florea said from the service department of an auto dealer where he has worked as a mechanic since he said the Army lost his papers at Ft. Eustis, Va.

"Still, I feel like they really done me a disservice and I feel I need more than an honorable discharge."

Florea said he furnished

documented proof that he was told at Ft. Eustis to go home because his orders had not come in. He said he tried for several years to clear his status. Meanwhile, Florea married, went to work and fathered three children.

"It's hard to say anything concrete without sounding like we're going to hang Uncle Sam," said Florea's lawyer, Jerry Bryant. Bryant said he planned to review the latest information from the Army with Florea and that the final decision would rest with the Blanchester, Ohio resident.

"We still want to get a house," said Florea, who remains free on leave from Ft. Knox. The family lives in a trailer home.

Witness Says Leach Dangerous

CLEVELAND (AP) — A woman who was once Ashby Leach's hostage has challenged Leach's claims of non-violence at his kidnapping trial, saying he clubbed one hostage and threatened to shoot her if he could not get his way.

The 31-year-old defendant from Huntington, W. Va., said he hurt no one when he took 13 captives at the Chessie System offices here last Aug. 26.

Mara Louise Hoffman, the first hostage to see Leach, told the court Wednesday he fired his pistol at a light fixture in a fit of rage and said he might send a body down an elevator "to show police he meant business."

Defense cross-examination of Miss Hoffman was to open the ninth day of trial today.

Leach muttered "that's a lie" several times during Miss Hoffman's testimony, once drawing an objection from the prosecution. As his own cocounselor, he said he plans to cross-examine witnesses.

Miss Hoffman said she "heard the gun hit the bone" when Leach allegedly hit another captive with his pistol. She described how Leach herded the 13 hostages into a small file room and brandished a sawed off shotgun and pistol at them.

Her voice cracked as she told the court how police officers pulled her away from the site of the siege when she went to deliver a message.

Leach, a former Chessie employe and Marine medic in Vietnam, said he struck out against "policy...not people." Miss Hoffman said one of his first statements to her was that he "wanted to see the (Chessie) president...to change some policies."

A Page Of Opinion

Emotional Reaction

Fortunately, no responsible official has seconded UN Ambassador Andrew Young's suggestion that a law ought to be passed prohibiting the publication of "information regarding violent crimes." The remark was made following the takeover of three buildings in Washington by a gang of terrorists, and perhaps by now Young also has had second thoughts about the implications of his suggestion.

The idea that the destructiveness in men will go away if no one pays attention to it is dispelled every day on the streets of major cities. Muggers, rapists and assorted thugs certainly are not seeking publicity when they go on the rampage.

But even if one accepts the premise that terrorists are different and only seek public recognition — a questionable premise — who is to be the authority which shall decide whether the news media can report such assaults as the Washington takeover?

To consider seriously such a suggestion is to think nothing of tearing up the First Amendment.

The Merry Mix Up

By PHYLLIS BATTELLE
NEW YORK — Semantically speaking, the Women's Movement is out to change Mankind (you've heard of her).

For five years now, leaders have pressed for elimination of words which are considered traditionally sexist and discriminatory. You know — "man-made" should be "of human origin"; "manpower" should be "work force"; "man and wife" should be "husband and wife." And hundreds of other linguistic works of the devil (uncontestedly a male gender noun).

The most difficult demand to meet long has revolved around the sticky enigma of the singular personal pronoun. Traditionally, in writing, we have referred to an ungendered homo sapiens as a "he." As in, "If a person is ill, he should call a physician."

Feminists don't like that. Female persons become ill, too.

Dr. Benjamin Spock was the first renowned author to be challenged by the liberationists on this matter.

Cast in the role of a male chauvinist child expert, Doc Spock gave in to those who said his "Book of Baby and Child Care" was sexist. He had always considered "he" to be a bi-sexual pronoun, he said, until he saw the light of liberation. Then he knew he must change, but to what? The English language offers no singular pronouns that cover both sexes, as "they" or "them" do in the plural.

Should he state "he or she" every time he referred to a baby? Heck, no. He considered "an illegitimate hybrid — 's-he,' but there was no similar way to condense 'her-him' or 'her-his' gracefully.

Finally, he capitulated, and said future editions of his book would use "she" and "her" to cover both boys and girls. But he made an interesting prediction: "If the day comes when women receive equal justice, then the question will arise whether calling a child of either sex 'she' constitutes discrimination against boys. My literary heirs will have to tackle that problem when it comes up . . ."

Obviously, there has to be a solution that is fair to both sexes. And the only solution can be a new set of pronouns. A gentleman named Eldon F. Gunter, a director of The Bill Sandy Co., Inc., with a master's degree in adult education, writes us with an ingenious idea.

"How many times have you liberally agreed to start a bisexual theme about 'his or her' involvement in a particular activity? You launch out boldly, only to find yourself trapped on a never-ending 'his or her' treadmill. No matter how liberal and broadminded you are, you have no desire to write a novel using three words and eight letters every time you need a singular personal pronoun. So finally you take out your eraser — there's no choice — and eliminate the 'or hers' — rationalizing that when you're using the simple pronoun 'his,' you're really referring to all mankind. Excuse that. Personkind."

After tussling with this problem for months, Gunter makes the following proposal:

"Why don't we create the word 'Heis' — pronounced as in sighs — as the bisexual possessive for He or She.

"Since we want to combine the two words 'his' and 'her,' we can in this way retain the common 'h. Then, following a long held chivalrous (though chauvinistic) tradition of ladies first, we take the second letter of her and then the second letter of his. This gives us 'hei' (the order also helps us avoid 'hie,' which already has been spoken for); and, of course, since his and her are possessive, we distinguish our new pronoun by adding an s. 'The result is 'heis.' As in 'When a person is ill, heis physician should be called.'"

For the nominative 'he' and 'she,' Gunter suggests simply dropping the s. As in (to continue the sickening analogy), "If a person is ill, hei should call a physician."

What will this mean to you? Says Gunter, "It only means that in the future you will need only one word (hei) instead of three (he or she) to make a bisexual, singular, personal reference.

"With this in mind, you're likely to hit a new high as you hie to the nearest library to see if any earlier author has suggested this in heis writing."

Personally, I go for the idea, but a new words researcher over at Webster says it takes up to ten years for a revolutionary concept like this to catch on, since each editor has heis own strong opinion.

Heigh ho.

Plan Slated To Achieve Integration

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Acting Supt. Joseph L. Davis unveiled Tuesday a comprehensive effort to involve all segments of the community in drawing up a desegregation plan for Columbus public schools.

Davis told the Board of Education he has appointed a 16-member committee of school administrators to work fulltime on the project and a 50-member Community Input Panel that will meet with individuals to get comments and suggestions.

Davis said he has sent out 675 letters to persons and groups in the community to tell them about the involvement plan and to ask for their help.

Davis said Columbus area newspapers have been asked to print a coupon that interested persons can send to Dr. Howard Merriman, assistant superintendent for instruction, asking for a meeting with school officials. Davis named Merriman chairman of the input panel.

And, the acting superintendent said, members of the Student Interest Forum, made up of representatives from each of the district's senior high schools, will be asked for their views.

"I don't want anyone on June 6 saying, 'You wouldn't hear me,'" Davis told the board. That date is the deadline set by U.S. District Court Judge Robert M. Duncan for submitting a plan.

"We want legitimate, authentic involvement of all segments of this community," Davis said. "We know we must build acceptance for this process if we expect to have acceptance for the plan that comes out of it."

Davis said 13 of the 16 members of the administrative committee are residents of the district and nine of them have children in the Columbus schools. Ten of the members are white and six are black. He said he will meet with the committee daily so he knows how the group is progressing.

LAFF - A - DAY

Speaking Of Your Health

by Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

Twice I've gone below the border on a holiday, and twice I've had my vacation ruined with severe abdominal cramps and diarrhea. Although I ate the same food that was eaten by the native friends I was visiting, they were unaffected by it. Can you explain this?

Miss J. E., Calif.

Dear Miss E.:

It is well known that certain people can develop an immunity to the microbes that produce severe diarrhea in others. Newcomers to an area who have not developed such an immunity can be stricken with severe abdominal symptoms.

It is generally accepted that bouts of diarrhea such as you described are usually associated with contaminated water, poor sanitation, inadequate sewage disposal and carelessness about personal hygiene.

When one comes from a well-controlled, hygienic area and is exposed to toxic microbes and chemicals in a new environment, there are very specific rules to be followed.

Drink only bottled water. A hidden danger lies in ice that may be contaminated. Even brushing the teeth should be done with bottled water.

Avoid all raw fruits and vegetables. Lettuce is particularly hazardous because the soil on which it grows is so frequently contaminated. Fruits that can be peeled are considered safe to eat.

Tourists are often tempted by exotic

native foods. Only the lucky ones seem able to manage this. In general, it is a safe rule to avoid these dishes.

Visitors should come prepared with one of the many drugs that are now available and prescribed by doctors. They can quickly check intestinal upsets.

Since you have had two unpleasant experiences, why not consider holidaying north of the border next time?

Is there a greater advantage to taking a vitamin by injection than by mouth?

Mr. E. A., Conn.

Dear Mr. A.:

In most instances, injections of vitamins are given when patients are unable to comfortably take them by mouth.

After an operation, or because of some intestinal disorder, vitamins and all other kinds of medication may, for a while, be given by injection.

In some instances, patients may have a special defect and an inability to absorb vitamins from the stomach or intestines. Here, too, injections are substituted.

The concentration of vitamins by mouth is often just as effective, and lasts just as long as vitamins by injection.

Letters To The Editor

EDITOR'S NOTE: While The Herald encourages open comments from its readers, the opinions expressed are not necessarily those of the management. Letters to the editor must be signed and should be of 300 words or less.

Dear Editor:

I would like to thank everyone that took time to express their concern and comments to me when they found I was leaving Big Bear. It was a hard decision after nineteen years with the company, six of them in this fine city. It was reached finally because of health and personal reasons.

I've enjoyed meeting and working with the people of Circleville and Pickaway County.

Thanks to Mr. Purcell of the Herald and the Circleville Police Department for all their help over the years.

A special thanks to the employees at the store for the beautiful watch and the many friends I have here in Circleville. I would also like to thank the Northridge Church of Christ for their friendship and prayers.

Sincerely,
DAVID W. MARQUIS
526 Swackhammer Rd.

Dear Editor:

In Friday, March 18, Roundtown in the Herald there was an article that the Pickaway County Health Department would be continuing investigations from 1976 into complaints of garbage, and refuse along Hargus Creek in Circleville.

Perhaps the above explains why, to date, no action has been taken to clean up a truck load of trash that some citizen (?) dumped along the Canal, west of Circleville . . . They're still on 76' complaints. If it takes that long for some action to be taken, the above mentioned mess should really be a putrid substance in another month.

The drive out Canal Road bordering the Old Canal could and should be one of the more scenic drives in Pickaway County. Instead, for the past few years it has become approximately four miles of garbage dump. It's widely used by the garbage trucks on their way to the present county landfill on S.R. 104. Especially, the ones who don't have contained beds and only partially covered beds. Follow one of them sometime, but not too close. You'll get covered up with cans, boxes and much worse flying out of the trucks.

Then theres the fishermen and often their families. Most of them loaded down with their fishing gear and lots of pop, beer and potato chips, to make their outing more enjoyable. This is fine; but apparently a large majority have enjoyed their fishing so much they're too exhausted to pick up their empty cans and papers.

Several years ago an effort was made to clean up this area. Trash containers were placed along the route, along with sturdy picnic tables . . . all anchored by chains. In less than a year all this was undone and most of the picnic tables and trash containers had been stolen. What a truly sad commentary on our American people — most of them Pickaway countians. Since so many appear to have no integrity or pride in keeping this area beautiful, why aren't at least some caught and arrests made?

The load of trash that was dumped alongside the road a couple weeks ago has been reported. Why is it still lying there? With the high March winds, it should blow around pretty good. Criminals should be served notice that anti-social behavior will not be tolerated. Those who do not heed the warning should be removed from the community until they prove they can live among decent human beings. Everyone should help to begin to reduce the many crimes running rampant today. We could begin by fighting the little things like this vandalism along the historic Canal, west of Circleville.

Business World

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — Behind the simple maxim that "wages are limited by the ability to pay and the ability to produce" there is an interesting and perhaps surprising history, and maybe a lesson for today also.

It is not the capsulized philosophy of a robber baron. It is more closely identified with the years of President John F. Kennedy, when wage increases were tied to increases in productivity, and with the union movement.

In 1946, in the midst of a strike against General Motors, Walter Reuther, head of the United Auto Workers, used similar words. "It's an old idea," he said. "It's just common horse sense."

Reuther's men then lowered their demands and settled for an increase of 18.5 cents an hour. Shortly thereafter the Auto Workers found themselves criticized by the American Federation of Labor, for settling too high.

"Those unions which broke price ceilings to get 18.5 cents followed a shortsighted policy," said the AFL, whose secretary-treasurer at the time was George L. Meany, now head of the AFL-CIO. An official AFL report at the time continued:

"Had they been really willing to accept smaller increases and adjust their demands by genuine collective bargaining to industry's ability to pay, they would be better off today and so would all American workers."

The provision for paying wage increases by raising prices had a disastrous effect on the entire economy, the AFL said, because it led to inflation that brought serious losses to almost everyone.

The "ability to pay" philosophy has since become lost in a jungle of verbiage, of charges and countercharges and misinformation and ignorance, says John Q. Jennings, who headed federal mediation in Michigan at the time. Now a labor economic consultant, he would bring it into the open again and nourish it.

"We're wandering around in the dark not knowing what we're doing," he said. "I would restore and activate the ability to pay concept to collective bargaining." He would seek cooperation rather than confrontation.

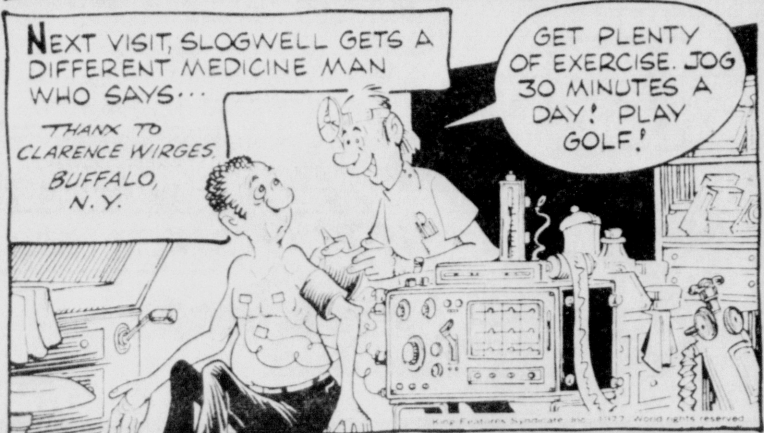

Jennings, who has an international following, would restore the concept not through law — "controls, guidelines and presidential jawboning over work very long in peacetime" — but by an appeal to reason and understanding.

And in order to obtain that, he continues, we must educate ourselves.

"Most people don't know the simple arithmetic of business," he said. "They add it up all wrong. Even economists forget that 2 and 2 equals 4."

Business, which is directly affected by these shortcomings, hasn't done its share to educate, he feels. "Even today they're reluctant to show the real figures," he said. Nobody, he believes is willing to state the facts.

Steven Ross, 3 year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Wilson R. Ross underwent a tonsilectomy at Berger Hospital on Tuesday.

According to Hank Bartholomew of the Hocking County Extension Service in Logan, many of the pines and evergreens are showing much browning of needles. In some cases whole areas of trees are brown. This is not a new disease but simply winter injury from the cold dry winter. The state Extension forester says the injury is the worst he has seen in his 18 years in Ohio. This should be expected due to the coldest January on record.

Many other landscape plants such as Euonymus, Azaleas, Pieris, English Ivy, Pachisandra and others are showing similar damage. The dry fall and cold winter literally dried the plants out to where the needles died. However, the buds may still be alive. If this is the case the plants should make a slow recovery. If the plant buds are killed the plant will die also. At this point, all that can be done is to provide water if possible when the soil is dry and wait for spring to bring buds out of dormancy.

The 1977 4-H year will officially get underway with the 4-H Kickoff Potluck to be held March 29 at 6:30 p.m. at the Youth Center Auditorium in Logan, at the Fairgrounds. All 4-H advisors, members and parents are invited to attend.

Each family is suggested to bring their own table service, and two dishes of food. Drinks will be furnished by the Hocking County 4-H Comm.

Miss Beatrice Cleveland of the Ohio State University 4-H staff will speak on Evaluating 4-H members progress. 4-H donors and sponsors who are present will be introduced and thanked for their support.

For information of 4-H clubs contact the 4-H staff at the County Extension office on the Fairgrounds at Logan or call 385-3222. The 4-H program is available to all youth 9-19 years of age, regardless of race, creed, sex or national origin.

Nuns Sue Over Milk Substitute

NEW YORK (AP) — A group of nuns has filed a federal court suit accusing the Bristol-Meyers Co. of baby formula sales that promote malnutrition, disease and death in poverty-stricken Third World nations.

The suit, filed by Sisters of the Precious Blood, a 535-member order in Ohio, seeks to halt the sale of the breast milk substitute. The nuns say sale of the formula raises a health hazard because polluted water is used for preparation, increasing the infant mortality rate.

The sisters also charged that uneducated mothers in poor countries are urged by the company to give up breast feeding. As a result, "babies in the Third World are dying from malnutrition and disease which medical experts link to unnecessary bottle feeding," the nuns say.

They asked a court-directed limitation on Bristol-Meyers' marketing practices overseas.

The company has asked dismissal of the suit, arguing that it does not market its baby food in countries "where chronic poverty could lead to product misuse or harmful effects."

The nuns disagreed, citing sales in Sri Lanka and Indonesia where the per capita gross national product was less than $200 in 1974.

Attorneys for the nuns said Tuesday they are seeking an out-of-court settlement with Bristol-Meyers on the basis of a previously agreed-to change in Third World marketing practices by two other makers of baby formula, Borden and Abbott Laboratories.

A ruling on whether the case will go to trial is not expected for several weeks.

Propose Personal Alarms

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A design engineer, who recently received his master's degree at Ohio State University, has proposed development of a battery-powered personal alarm system to aid the handicapped.

A conceptual model for the personal alarm system was developed by Douglas E. Bachman in his work toward the degree in industrial design.

Bachman said in his thesis that the system would employ a collar-type apparatus which, when activated by certain neck movements, transmits a signal to a separate alarm unit.

The device, to be powered by a small battery, would send a radio signal to a secondary unit. The second unit would sound an alarm, Bachman said, which would let others know someone needs help.

"There is a trend toward greater independence among the handicapped," Bachman said.

More often, Bachman said, the severely handicapped are living and working in the community. Away from a sheltered environment, they face the hazard of an accident occurring when there is no help nearby, he said.

Bachman said he interviewed 40 handicapped individuals and found they shared a common concern over the need to obtain emergency help.

"Their sense of independence was tempered by the realization that they could become virtually helpless in certain situations," he said.

The collar device would allow those without control of their hands or arms to signal for help.

Bachman said he is looking into the possibility of manufacturing the device which would weigh six ounces or less.

He said he has not yet produced a prototype.

Dear Abby:

By Abigail Van Buren

Dog Funeral Fit For A Person

DEAR ABBY: My friend's Chihuahua died, and I attended the funeral, and I've got to ask somebody if I've led a sheltered life or not. I'm 50 years old, and until this week I never knew they had funerals for dogs and cats.

My friend's dog (Jimmy) was buried in a satin-lined casket no bigger than a shoe box. (It cost $900.) Jimmy was laid out in the "slumber room" and a "minister" actually held a service for the dear departed dog. The "funeral" (sans casket) cost $500.

That's not all. Jimmy was driven out to the pet cemetery in a limousine just as a deceased person would be. There were little tombstones all over the cemetery, and my friend says she is having one made for Jimmy to the tune of $850.

When I think of all the hungry children that could be fed with that kind of money I want to scream.

What are your thoughts on this, Abby? It makes absolutely no sense at all to me.

DAZED

DEAR DAZED: To each his own. And only a pet lover can understand the sense of putting away a beloved pet in such extravagant style. To them, their pets are their "children."

DEAR ABBY: Do you think our son has a problem? He is 16, a junior in high school and an average student who has always had a good relationship with his family and friends. While cleaning his room I found (under his bed) an unfinished six-page "story" he had written. It contained some very descriptive accounts of "his" sexual experiences — all made up. But what shocked me was the fact that he had written this in the first person as though he was the girl!

I showed it to my husband, and he was even more upset than I was. Please guide us, as we want to do the right thing.

CONCERNED

DEAR CONCERNED: All adolescents fantasize, and it's not unusual for them to imagine themselves to be of the opposite sex while fantasizing. Unless your son shows signs of being disturbed or abnormal, there's little cause for concern.

DEAR ABBY: I want to say something in defense of women who go out in public with their hair in curlers. I do, and I'm sick of being put down because of it.

MY hair is very delicate and easily damaged, so permanents and hair dryers are out for me. In order to look half-way decent, I have to set my hair every day and let it dry naturally without intense heat.

My husband works all day, and it's more important for me to look nice for HIM when he comes home than for some joker I never saw before who happens to be in the corner store.

Please print this, Abby. There are a lot of us women in the same boat.

WAUKEGAN WIFE

DEAR WIFE: I understand your plight. If you feel there is no need to apologize for your appearance—don't apologize.

Don't Judge Others Too Hard
Pray do not find fault with the man who limps,

Or stumbles along the road,
Unless you have worn the shoes he wears

Or struggled beneath his load.
There may be tacks in his shoes that hurt,

Though hidden away from view,
Or the burden he bears, placed on your back,

Might cause you to stumble, too.
Don't sneer at the man who's down today,

Unless you have felt the blow
That caused his fall, or felt the shame

That only the fallen know
You may be strong, but still the blows

That were his, if dealt to you,
In the self same way at the self same time,

Might cause you to stagger too.
Don't be harsh with the man who sins,

Or pelt him with word and stone,
Unless you are sure, yes, doubly sure,

That you have no sins of your own.
For, you know, perhaps, if the tempter's voice

Should whisper as soft to you,
As it did to him when he went astray,
Would cause you to falter, too!

Important Federal Job: Califano's Cook

WASHINGTON (AP) — There's a new job in the Department of Health, Education and Welfare that pays $12,763 a year and sounds pretty important.

"The nature of the assignment requires a continuing day-to-day association with the secretary and other high-level executives during high-level policy discussions involving plans and objectives," the official job description says.

But in plain language, he is Secretary Joseph A. Califano Jr.'s personal cook.

The holder of the newly coined title of Personal Assistant to the Secretary (Special Activities) is Wiley Barnes, who recently retired from the U.S. Marine Corps where he managed the personal quarters of the commandant.

The job description that appeared recently in the Federal Register never came right out and said Barnes cooks Califano's lunch. It said he managed "the food supply service of the secretary's dining room."

It also said that the job demands "the utmost in personal discretion ... the nature of some of the incumbent's duties requires personal participation with the ongoing special activities and programs, thereby necessitating the need for an extremely confidential relationship with the secretary."

"He does much more than cook for the secretary," a spokesman for the department insisted Tuesday. "He manages the secretary's mess, handles the accounting and supervises the kitchen."

Barnes also plans meals for special groups, such as governors or members of Congress whom Califano invites over for working breakfasts or lunches, the spokesman said. In his first two weeks on the job, Barnes served meals to three VIP groups.

Califano and Hale Champion, HEW's undersecretary-designate, normally dine together in the secretary's dining room, which adjoins Califano's office, a special meeting room and kitchen.

2 Consumer Regulations Take Effect

WASHINGTON (AP) — If you are a struggling musician trying to pay for your leased clarinet, or if you can't get credit simply because of your color or religion or because you're over 65, you may find comfort in two new consumer laws.

The Consumer Leasing Act, one of the two laws taking effect today, is designed to make leasing companies let customers know exactly the terms of their lease contracts before they sign on the dotted line.

The second new consumer protection law extends three-year-old prohibitions against credit discrimination on the basis of sex or marital status. The new amendment to the Equal Credit Opportunity Law bans credit discrimination for reasons of race, color, religion, national origin or age.

Under the leasing act, whatever you lease, whether it's a clarinet or a new car, the government says the company you deal with must specify the number, amount and due dates of the payments and their total.

The amount you're paying in taxes and other fees, information about possible penalties resulting from non-payment, and your lease-purchase rights and what both sides can do to terminate the contract must also be provided.

The law, modeled after the Truth-in-Lending Act, also places restrictions on advertising by leasing companies.

The new law applies to all types of leased goods, as long as the contract is for at least four months and the value of the merchandise isn't over $25,000.

Jose Feliciano Wins Court Order

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Singer-songwriter Jose Feliciano has won a court order stopping RCA Records from releasing an album of the guitarist's hits without his approval.

Feliciano filed the suit to stop the release of an album containing his top-selling songs unless he was allowed to approve the selections, the album cover design and album notes.

Superior Court Judge David Thomas issued a temporary injunction against RCA on Tuesday, prohibiting release of the album before the lawsuit goes to trial. Feliciano was ordered to put up $50,000 bond to offset any damages RCA may suffer should the singer lose his case.

Young Thugs Going After Elderly

NEW YORK (AP) — Detectives Jerry Keegan and Donald Gaffney slide into their squad car, a retired yellow taxi cab that starts with a groan and runs with a death rattle.

There's no shotgun, no siren, no radio. They take a folder of crime reports, a book of mug shots, a fingerprinting kit and a camera.

They're part of the Bronx Senior Citizens Robbery Unit, a prototype police group that investigates crimes against people over 60 who are attacked in buildings.

They use the taxi because it's unobtrusive. It looks like a lot of other taxis in the Bronx. Many old people are embarrassed to be pinpointed as crime victims by the presence of a police car. Some fear reprisal.

Keegan and Gaffney cruise the Grand Concourse, a stately canyon of buildings that has become a combat zone for old people and young muggers.

"See that park?" Gaffney asks. "In nice weather, the old people come out and sun themselves. You can see the kids watching them, circling at a distance, picking out their quarry."

"You can spot it right off. Like cats watching birds. It's unnatural for young people to be that interested in old folks."

Wearing civilian clothes, the two hefty veterans are on their way to interview crime victims. They also take pictures of injuries, useful evidence if the victim recovers by the time the case goes to trial.

In most other robbery cases, the victim is asked to go to a precinct to view suspects' pictures. But Keegan and Gaffney visit victims at their homes or hospital beds.

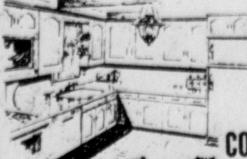

Individual attention is the key to their approach. After an attack, old people are especially distraught.

Perhaps they will have a cup of tea, look at a family album or listen to stories about life in gentler days.

Their unassigned duties include contacting relatives, stopping mail delivery, freezing bank accounts and taking victims to and from court.

"Most are so amazed anyone takes an interest," Keegan says. "We still get Christmas cards from people we've visited."

Porta Martin Is Sweetheart Of L.E. Dance

PORTA MARTIN

By LIZ DORITAN
And MONA MARTIN

The Sweetheart Dance took place March 5, in the high school gymnasium. It lasted from 8 p.m. to 11 p.m. and was a formal dance.

The queen and her attendants were chosen March 4. Porta Martin was chosen queen, Stacey Brown was freshman attendant, Kim Williams was sophomore attendant, and LaDonna Brevard was Junior attendant.

The theme of the dance was "Fantasy Love" which utilized Disney characters. There was a live band, Zodiac, which provided the entertainment.

Many of the LE students said it was a great dance and they had a lot of fun.

Dance Student Explains Fundamentals

By TIM WINNER

Logan Elm's drama class had a special guest March 4. Dan Frey, a student of dance and theater, visited the classes and gave helpful information to them.

During his visit, Frey preformed different types of dances including jazz and tap. Students interested in entering the theatrical profession were given advice on how to get started and who to see. He gave students helpful tips in voice projection, dancing, and exercises.

Frey became interested in dancing from his sisters when he was a child. He learned all of his sisters' dance steps, who at the time were taking dance lessons, and started taking lessons himself at the age of seven.

At the age of 20 Dan still takes dancing and singing lessons. He says that it is hard work and that no one reaches the point where they should stop. Even though practice is important, Dan says that "making it big" in acting is 95 per cent luck and 5 per cent skill.

Dan is currently working at a factory in Columbus. He will soon be auditioning for "Guys and Dolls," an all dance performance.

Dan's great ambition is to go to New York or Las Vegas to perform.

The Logan Elm speech and drama classes were very impressed by Mr. Stern, a guest speaker from The American School of Broadcasting in Columbus, Ohio. Mr. Stern said, "We have schools all over the United States and have contact with almost all of the radio and television stations, therefore, the School of Broadcasting will help students find a job after graduation."

The school takes a total of 16 weeks and the fee includes a blazer of the school, all required books, field trips and a third class broadcasting license. "It takes over 600 employees to put the Carol Burnett show on every week," Stern said, "and there are more jobs waiting for you if you have the ability."

Tribe Talk Correction

An article that appeared in Tribe Talk March 9 wrongly reported that people who are absent and do not bring an excuse on returning to school are reported to county school attendance officials. Actually, only people who are later found to have been truant are reported; truancy is willful absence from school.

Gas Official Retains Poise

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Whipping boy and teacher, the man out front for Columbia Gas of Ohio, drew the initial blasts of rage when the company suggested homeowners turn down the heat.

But William Chaddock, news department manager for Columbia, managed to sound as though he kept his balance during those unpleasant days. That is, after all, what he was paid to do.

Chaddock looks back on what has been called the worst winter in 100 years and says he learned a few things about keeping the public informed. He also says he can't see where he would have made major changes in handling his job.

"Look," he says, reiterating the company's position that nature and not business caused the shortage, "Ohio just happened to be at the bottom of the pit this winter where temperatures were concerned."

"Our computers have since told us that the likelihood of those severe cold temperatures happening in that short a time span is one in 10,000."

Chaddock similarly toes the line when asked about the possibility that the gas shortage wasn't real but a contrivance to drive up prices. He freely admits that Columbia Gas of Ohio predicts increased supplies once gas prices are deregulated, but his company has no direct interest in gas production as an activity. It is a distributor of what other firms drill.

"The thing that hit Columbia the hardest was the school issue," Chaddock says of the company's inability to supply schools with all they needed to stay open in many cases. "We had been warning people all along about these shortages. The schools were bragging about how much money they had saved by their conservation efforts. Then bang."

Chaddock contends that the company, through him, was right in predicting toward the middle of February that residential conservation was sufficient to ease curtailments.

"There's a lot of intuition in this and we can't get tied down to hard, fast numbers," he said of the company's bulldog tenacity in predicting that residential conservation would offset the numbers that showed the company without enough gas to serve even homes through the rest of the winter.

Poisoning Accidents Preventable

Each year, over 3,000 people die from accidental poisoning and approximately 250 of these are young children.

The National Clearinghouse for Poison Control Centers estimates that accidents involving potentially hazardous substances occur to 800,000 children annually. In Ohio approximately 175 poisoning deaths are recorded each year. Dr. Frank R. Moore, Health Commissioner of the Pickaway County General Health District, says that these accidents are preventable if persons would take the following precautions:

Keep medicines and hazardous substances out of sight and reach of children;

Lock poisons and medicines or any toxic hazardous product up when not in use;

Never call medicines candy;

Always give or take medicines in good light where you can read the label;

Get rid of medicines when no longer needed;

Keep household products in original containers and use child-resistant caps;

Don't leave medicines or hazardous products within a child's reach while you answer the telephone or door;

Have handy the phone numbers of your doctor, poison control center, emergency squad, hospital and police.

It is important to remember that prevention is the cure for childhood poisoning. Dr. Moore in cooperation with the Accident Prevention and Product Safety Unit, Ohio Department of Health urges parents to "Poison Proof" your home and make every week Poison Prevention Week.

In Columbus, the Poison Control and Information Center is Children's Hospital. Telephone number is 228-1323.

Blake Quits As 'Baretta'

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Saying he's "smart enough to know that the American people get sick of anybody," actor Robert Blake says he is leaving his ABC television series "Baretta" in a year.

Blake said Wednesday he would complete his contract with Universal, which produces the program, by filming for the 1977-78 season.

In a letter to Sidney Sheinberg, president of MCA Inc., the parent company of Universal, Blake said, "I have nothing but pleasant memories from doing the show and have found it rewarding both personally and professionally."

"However, like all good things, there comes a time when one finds it necessary to move on to other challenges."

Blake, who portrays an undercover policeman on the show, said he felt "Baretta" got across to the public that "90 per cent of what the cops are doing are social problems, not legal problems."

The northern part of Henry County around Ridgeville Corners once was often referred to as the Hanover settlement because so many Germans took up land there. —AP

Laserphoto Modifications Ordered

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Food and Drug Administration has ordered four modifications in 68 of some 400 laserphoto machines manufactured for the Associated Press by the Harris Corp. of Melbourne, Fla.

The machines are new receivers and transmitters installed in the AP's Wirephoto network. They use a laser beam as a source of light.

An announcement by the FDA Wednesday said that the changes would be made at sites where the 68 machines are in use.

The 68 were manufactured between Aug. 2, 1976 and Sept. 17, 1976.

The four changes do not involve any radiation emission danger. They involve limiting access to the laser beam itself.

The receivers will get these two modifications: addition of a small metal shield inside the machine to make it impossible for anyone servicing it to look directly at the beam; and a label on the outside saying the machine contains a laser beam.

The transmitters will get a new interlock switch to shut them off automatically when the cover is opened. They will also get a new picture-feeding chute to increase from the current eight centimeters to 10 centimeters the distance between the point where a photo enters the machine and the point where exposure to a laser beam would begin inside the machine.

The FDA said the 18 transmitters were distributed in Georgia, Maryland, Massachusetts, Michigan, New Jersey, New Mexico and New York. The 50 receivers were located in Arkansas, Georgia, Illinois, Indiana, Louisiana, Michigan, Missouri, New Jersey, Ohio, Oklahoma and Wisconsin.

Sneek-A-Peek AT BOOKS IN THE CHILDREN'S LIBRARY

Adults as well as children are invited to "Free to Be You and Me," Saturday's free movie at the public library. A combination of animation, live action and song, this film takes a non-sexist approach to personal rights, cooperation and independence. Marlo Thomas introduces the 47-minute production.

New books for browsers in the Children's Room include Erika Weihs' "Count the Cats," a counting book vividly illustrated in full-page crayoned spreads of all sorts of cats. Look for this one in the picture book section!

If the flirtatious warm weather we've been having makes you think of baseball diamonds and tennis shoes, why not bone up on one of summer's favorite sports before Little League begins? Get a headstart by reading Paul J. Deegan's 3 baseball primers which cover the basics of hitting, bunting, baserunning, and pitching. (796.357)

The end of winter also signals the emergence of wildlife from their dens. If you want to learn more about the creatures you see, thumb through our animal books. New titles are "The Life Cycle of an Opossum" (599.2), "The Life Cycle of a Monarch Butterfly" (595.7), and "The Life Cycle of a Bullfrog" (597.8), three in a new series from Creative Education. Grade 3+ reading level with large type and excellent photography.

In the mood for a summer vacation? Transport yourself out West with a little imagination and a good travel book. Middle elementary students can handle the text in "Yellowstone National Park" (917.875) and "Yosemite National Park" (917.944). All ages can enjoy the scenic photographs.

If you think Spring and poetry are synonymous, don't miss "Digging for China" (811). This poem, presented in small picture book form, captures a boy's experience when he tries to dig through the world. He doesn't succeed,

Blue Cross OK'd At 2 Facilities

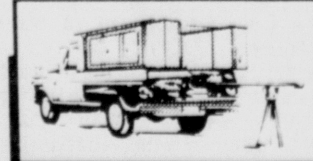

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Persons treated at two state mental health facilities in Ohio can now pay for treatment with their Blue Cross policies, according to Dr. Timothy Moritz, director of the Department of Mental Health and Mental Retardation.

The new contract with Blue Cross covers persons treated at Central Ohio Psychiatric Hospital and the Athens Mental Health and Mental Retardation Center. Moritz said the department is negotiating to extend the benefits to all of its facilities.

Moritz said the new provision gives patients at state facilities protection similar to that afforded patients in private hospitals.

ODNR Urges Fire Prevention Steps

The Ohio Department of Natural Resources' (ODNR) Division of Forestry is urging Ohioans to practice extreme caution and observe the forest fire protection laws before burning leaves, trash or other material outdoors.

"This spring is especially hazardous due to the lack of rainfall and the dryer than normal ground conditions," said Ernest Gebhart, Chief of the Forestry Division.

Gebhart said counties in Eastern and Southern portions of the state are most susceptible to forest and grass fires because of the area's dense forests and vegetation.

"Ohioans who own land or reside in the Forest Fire Protection District are not permitted to burn before 4 p.m. and must obtain a permit before starting a fire outdoors during March, April or May," Gebhart said. "Burning permits may be obtained from a local fire warden."

Gebhart said the Division is working to inform landowners who own property in the District but reside elsewhere of the forest fire protection laws.

The Forest Fire Protection District is administered by ODNR's Forestry Division in order to help prevent, detect and suppress wildfires on public and private lands in a 32-county area.

Counties in the Forest Fire Protection District that are most susceptible to fires are: Athens, Belmont, Carroll, Coshocton, Gallia, Guernsey, Harrison, Hocking, Holmes, Jackson, Jefferson, Lawrence, Meigs, Monroe, Morgan, Muskingum, Noble, Perry, Pike, Scioto, Tuscarawas, Vinton and Washington.

Also included in the District are portions of: Adams, Ashland, Fairfield, Highland, Knox, Licking, Lucas, Richland and Ross counties.

For more information concerning prevention of forest and grass fires, contact the local district forestry office or the Division of Forestry, Ohio Department of Natural Resources, Fountain Square, Columbus 43224 or phone (614) 466-7842.

Charge Man In Slaying

DENNISON, Ohio (AP) — A 24-year-old man has been charged with aggravated murder and kidnaping in connection with the death of his mother-in-law.

Authorities said Floyd Mullings, of Dennison, turned himself in Monday morning to Dennison Police Chief Thomas Meehan.

Police said the mother-in-law, Pearl Zobel, 54, was found dead Sunday morning in her home. A coroner ruled Mrs. Zobel died of strangulation.

Police said Mullings' wife, Kay, had separated with her husband two weeks earlier and was living with her mother. They say the man held his wife at knife-point for a time over the weekend, until she was able to flee with their 10-month-old son.

Mullings was held in the Tuscarawas County jail in lieu of $100,000 bail, pending a court hearing Friday.

Desai Heads India; Raps Soviets

NEW DELPHI, India (AP) — Morarji Desai, 81-year-old leader of the successful fight to unseat the government of Indira Gandhi, was sworn in today as India's fourth prime minister and immediately signaled a possible end to this country's special links with the Soviet Union.

At a news conference after taking the oath of office, Desai said the 1971 Indian-Soviet friendship treaty "must not come in the way of our friendship with any other state.... We won't have any special relations with any country."

Desai, a veteran of the Indian independence movement and a former leader of Mrs. Gandhi's Congress party, said his government would adopt a foreign policy of "proper nonalignment."

His 59-year-old predecessor, Indira Gandhi, was not present for the three-minute ceremony in the ornate Ashoka Hall of the presidential palace. But she was one of the first to send congratulations to the longtime foe who led his new Janata party to a stunning election triumph over her and the Congress party last weekend.

Having lost her seat in Parliament in the election, Mrs. Gandhi became a private citizen. However, her successor as the Congress leader in Parliament, Y.B. Chavan, said she would continue to take a leading part in the party.

Acting President B.D. Jatti swore in Desai as head of the new government three hours after the members of the new Parliament from his party unanimously approved him as their leader.

"The people have high hopes and the government will try to fulfill them," said Desai. "This has been a non-violent, new revolution by the Indian people."

He was chosen prime minister by the spiritual leader of the anti-Gandhi opposition, Jayaprakash Narayan, who canvassed the members of the new Parliament from the Janata and two allied parties, the Congress for Democracy and a regional Sikh party.

The Janata has 270 seats, the Congress for Democracy 28 and the Sikh party eight in the 542 seat lower house of Parliament.

Desai's only opponent for the post was Jagjivan Ram, 68, head of the Congress for Democracy. Both men are former Congress party leaders who broke with Mrs. Gandhi — Desai eight years ago and Ram last month.

When the choice was made known, most of the legislators from the ruling coalition met in the central hall of Parliament and unanimously adopted a resolution declaring Desai their leader.

Neither Ram nor his chief deputy, H.N. Bahuguna, were in the hall for the endorsement. But informed sources said the Congress for Democracy would support the Janata government in Parliament although it would not

Gay Rights Activist Gets Post

NEW YORK (AP) — Gay rights activist Robert Livingston says his appointment to New York City's Commission on Human Rights reflects the national political clout homosexuals have.

The best example of that progress, he says, is a White House meeting scheduled for Saturday between presidential adviser Midge Constanza and 14 gay rights activists. The meeting, organized by the National Gay Task Force, is the second of its kind in the last seven weeks.

Livingston takes over his post on the 15-member panel today.

"I think that my appointment is not an isolated act," Livingston said during a telephone interview Wednesday. "I think that there is movement in the right direction across the country."

He added: "I think it is timely recognition of the fact that homosexuals have votes and are a substantial minority in the city."

A spokesman for Mayor Abraham D. Beame denied that Livingston's appointment was politically motivated. Beame, a Democrat, is expected to seek a second term, and some gay activists regarded the appointment as an attempt to dampen the rights issue before this year's campaign.

The 45-year-old avowed homosexual, the son of fashion designer Mollie Parnis, was a theatrical producer in London and once produced the Joey Bishop Show on ABC-TV. He also published MORE, a journalism review.

Young Westfall Baseball Team Optimistic About Season

By TOM SPRING
Herald Sports Writer

The Westfall Mustangs will field a young team this season under first year varsity head coach John Butts. Butts, who coached the reserve squad last year, will move up some of the members to the varsity nine to join his five returning lettermen.

Returning to do the catching will be senior Rick Stillings who caught 23 games and batted .307 last season.

Dave Clem, the shortstop, started all games for the Mustangs last season and with his slugging led the team in hits and runs scored. He batted .286 last year.

Neil Keller, a big senior, returns to the hot corner as third base will be his home.

Howard Rowland, another senior will play first base and pitch. The team include five juniors, three sophomores and three freshmen.

Junior Randy Adams, who pitches and plays third base was the leading hitter on the 1976 reserve team, and was its best pitcher. The big bopper clubbed four home runs and batted at a .427 clip.

Larry List, a six-foot two-inch junior, who like Keller, played basketball for the Scarlet and Gray, will be stationed at first base and the outfield.

Keith Kern will catch and play outfield, Carey Puckett will take care of the middle, playing second base and shortstop; Ted Everman will play second base and Tim McNeal will be in the outfield.

Eric Dick, who has done so in the past, will be the manager for Coach Butts' team.

"Unio will probably be the top team in the league," Butts said.

"Mr. Neff comes up with very good teams. Year in and year out he comes up with a good baseball club," he said.

Butts speaks from experience. As a junior, he was a member of Don Neff's last baseball squad at Circleville High School.

Unio finished second in the South Central Ohio League last year, posting an overall 11-9 record. Neff was named Ross County League Coach of the Year in 1976.

The Mustang mentor thinks Bishop Flaget and Ross Southeastern will also be title challengers in the Scioto Valley Conference.

Coach Butts said Simon, Rowland and Adams will be his three starters, while Henson and Whitten will share the bullpen.

"We're a little deeper in starting pitchers this year than we were last year," Butts said.

The key to the Mustangs success, he said, "Will depend on how last year's reserves adapt to varsity 'ball'."

"I have to put in a new right side of the infield and a whole new outfield."

"We have a pretty tough schedule," Butts said. He said the first six games will tell what kind of a team the Mustangs are.

"We'll find out quick how good we are. If the newcomers adjust well, we could do very well in the league."

Mark Hosler will coach the reserve squad who will play a 14-game schedule.

The varsity will play a 32 game schedule including one doubleheader and the county tournament. Here is the

Tiant, Red Sox Bow To Orioles

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

Luis Tiant, signed and sealed, is starting to deliver.

The veteran right-hander made a belated spring training debut Wednesday and hurled two innings as the Boston Red Sox bowed to the Baltimore Orioles 3-2.

It was only Tiant's sixth day in camp following a contract hassle, and he threw 30 pitches, allowing one run and two hits — singles by Mark Belanger and Ken Singleton plus Eddie Murray's sacrifice fly — while walking one and striking out two.

"Last year I only pitched 20 innings down here but I was ready when the season started," Tiant said. "I think I'll be ready when the season starts this year, too."

Before taking the mound, Tiant finally signed his newly extended contract. Terms were not disclosed but it was believed his $180,000-per-year contract was extended through 1978, with an option for 1979.

House allowed two decisive runs on a single by Belanger, a double by Singleton and a single by Murray.

Meanwhile, the Los Angeles Dodgers, who hope to challenge Cincinnati's world champions in the National League West, scored twice in the first inning on RBI hits by Reggie Smith and Rick Monday and nipped the Reds 2-1 behind the seventh pitching of Doug Rau and Charlie Hough.

Even though Oakland A's owner Charles O. Finley claimed the American League West for his team, the A's were not listening. They dropped a 9-8 decision to the Chicago Cubs, who rallied for three runs in the ninth inning on Gene Clines' triple, an error, Joe Wallis' single and Dave Rosello's two-run double.

The San Diego Padres hammered three Seattle pitchers for 20 hits, including five triples, and needed all of them to beat the Mariners 17-15.

The Milwaukee Brewers outthrewed California 6-5 — Gorman

Thomas hit a pair — and edged the Angels 10-9. The Minnesota Twins bowed to the Montreal Expos 4-1 as Tony Perez drove in two runs with a single and double.

The Cleveland Indians lost 9-5 to the San Francisco Giants, and the Atlanta Braves lost twice. John Ellis tied the game with his second home run and Tom Grieve followed with the winner as the Texas Rangers beat one squad of Braves 9-8. Another group of Atlantans dropped a 10-inning 5-4 decision to the Houston Astros.

Houston star Cesar Cedeño suffered a torn ligament in the ring finger of his left hand during batting practice. He might have to go on the disabled list.

The St. Louis Cardinals unleashed an 18-hit attack and pounded the New York Mets 8-1. Brian Downing drove in five runs as the Chicago White Sox unloaded 18 hits and drubbed the Toronto Blue Jays 14-4 and Jason Thompson's two-run single highlighted a three-run eighth inning rally as the Detroit Tigers edged the Kansas City Royals 3-2.

Graig Nettles' three-run homer capped a six-run ninthinning that enabled the New York Yankees to beat the University of Florida 10-9, and Tim McCarver had three hits as Philadelphia turned back its Oklahoma City farm club 4-2 although Jim Kaat of the Phillies pitched for the minor league team.

Cincinnati Bengals Cage Game Slated

The Cincinnati Bengals will play the champions of the Chillicothe city league, Don's IGA, in a basketball game 8 p.m. Friday at Unio High School.

Manning the team from Cincinnati will be Archie Griffin, Boobie Clark, Gary Burley, Stan Fritts, Lennell Elliott, Bob Johnson, Ken Kuhn, Dave Lapham, and Rufus Mayes.

A raffle for an autographed Bengals football will be held at halftime.

The event is sponsored by Don's IGA and Unio High School Athletics.

Scramble Slated At Running Fox

Running Fox Golf Course, Chillicothe, will kick off the 1977 season with a scramble tournament Saturday it was announced today by Harry Hoffer, teaching pro and tournament director.

The season's schedule will include a spring roundup in April, the men's league which will be from April through August, a 4-ball best ball in May, Ladies Clinic during June, July and August, the Second Annual State Seal Tournament, two high school tournaments in the fall, a championship league on Sundays, interclub matches, a Fall roundup in October, and an area match play seniors tournament for persons 55 and older.

Last year the inaugural State Seal Tournament attracted 50 players and Hoffer expects the number of entrants to double this year, making it one of the biggest tournaments in the area. A meeting is scheduled Saturday at 2 p.m. for golfers interested in competing in the men's league.

The championship league on Sunday will attract golfers who consistently shoot in the 70s he reported.

Persons interested in the activities at Running Fox may contact either Hoffer or call the Chillicothe Golf Center.

Ohio All-Stars Named For Game

Lee Trevino Skipping Masters

HILTON HEAD ISLAND, S.C. (AP) — Lee Trevino is skipping the Masters again — and this time it's not his idea. "He did this on doctor's orders," a spokesman for Trevino's office in El Paso, Tex., said Wednesday, confirming a report by The Associated Press that the flamboyant Trevino — deeply troubled by a bad back — had withdrawn from the prestigious Masters, the first of the year's four major tests of golfing greatness.

In earlier years, Trevino had created a national furor by boycotting the esteemed Masters because, he said at the time, the Augusta National Golf Club course was not suited to his game.

Since winning the PGA national championship in 1974, however, Trevino has called a Masters title one of the prime goals of his career.

"I've got a chance at becoming only the fifth man in history to win all the Big Four," he said. "I'd be foolish not to try to make it. After all, Gene Sarazen, Ben Hogan, Jack Nicklaus and Gary Player make pretty good company."

They are the only players ever to win all four major titles — the Masters, U.S. and British Opens and the PGA. Trevino, one of the game's premier players and among the most popular players golf has ever known, won the U.S. Open in 1968 and 1971 and the British Open in 1971 and 1972.

His ailing back forced him out of a shot at the Masters, April 7-10 in Augusta, Ga. this year.

Houston Rockets Top Trail Blazers

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Moses Malone and Calvin Murphy gave the Houston Rockets a present for Malone's birthday — combining for 48 points as the Central Division leaders became the first team to clinch a National Basketball Association playoffs berth.

The Rockets did it by beating the Portland Trail Blazers 109-104 Wednesday night as Malone accounted for one point for each of his years — 23 — and Murphy had 25.

Elsewhere in the NBA, the New Orleans Jazz beat Detroit 95-89, the Kansas City Kings beat the New York Nets 107-96, the Washington Bullets edged the Cleveland Cavaliers 95-90, the Boston Celtics defeated the Atlanta Hawks 103-96, The Golden State Warriors downed the Philadelphia 76ers 128-120, the Los Angeles Lakers topped the Indiana Pacers 106-97 and the San Antonio Spurs edged the Denver Nuggets 122-120.

A's, Orioles Up For Sale?

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — Major league baseball owners, with the exception of Oakland's Charles O. Finley, assembled for their annual spring meeting today amid rumors that Finley's A's as well as the Baltimore Orioles are up for sale.

The Associated Press learned Wednesday night that Commissioner Bowie Kuhn has been involved in talks concerning the possible sale of the Orioles.

Meanwhile, George Heideman, owner of the Jenkintown, Pa., Steel Co., told The AP he has held a number of talks with Finley about buying the A's.

Neither Heideman nor Finley is expected to attend today's owners' meeting. Heideman, who came close to buying the old Washington Senators in the 1960s, said he was invited but can't make it. And Finley said he won't be here because he fears a move by the other owners to buy up his team.

"I don't want to hurt their feelings, but I'm afraid they might try to buy my club," Finley said Wednesday.

N-LV Coach Ignores NCAA Investigation

ATLANTA (AP) — Jerry Tarkanian, coach of fifth-ranked Nevada-Las Vegas, would just as soon skip the subject of his basketball team's investigation by the National Collegiate Athletic Association.

Asked Wednesday if he thought word of the investigation leaked out of NCAA headquarters in hopes of hampering the Rebels' bid for the national championship, Tarkanian said, "I've got a lot of thoughts on that but it's best that I don't express any of them."

And he didn't. Asked if it might affect his team in the NCAA tournament, he replied, "I don't think so."

He seemed more concerned with No. 4 North Carolina, his opponent Saturday in the 4:15 p.m. EST nightcap of the NCAA semifinals in Atlanta's Omni.

"I've never seen a team that did so many things and did them well," Tarkanian said Wednesday during a telephone news conference involving from his Chicago home. "I'm not going to Tampa and I'm not sending anyone to represent me."

Later, Finley confirmed having talked with Heideman. He also told The AP that he would sell his team to his fellow major league owners "with one stipulation — that they agree to keep the club in Oakland for at least 10 years."

Such a sale, he added, would have to be "signed in blood."

Informed sources told The AP that if either club is sold, it would be moved to Washington, D.C., and switched from the American League to the National, with limited interleague play beginning in 1978.

Details of the possible sale of the Orioles were extremely sketchy and the report was denied by club officials. But it was believed that board chairman Jerold C. Hoffberger wants to unload the club.

Kuhn was unavailable but The Baltimore Sun talked to Bob Wirz, director of public relations for the commissioner's office, who quoted Kuhn as saying: "I would deny that. I the coaches of the four semifinal teams.

He especially expressed concern about the Carolina "four corners" offense, a delay game often employed by Tar Heel Coach Dean Smith late in a game when his club is nursing a lead.

"A lot of teams are running the four corners," Tarkanian said. "It's not a matter of running it, it is how well you run it. It'll be new for us because we haven't seen anyone run it as well as Carolina."

"We get too much attention on our four corners," Smith said. "We also believe in the fast break. But no one does it any better than Vegas. We think we are surely facing the toughest team in the West. It will be one of the toughest tests we have faced."

The Tar Heels carry a 27-4 record into the game. Las Vegas has the top mark of the final four, 28-2.

Saturday's opener matches upstart North Carolina-Charlotte, 28-3 and ranked 17th, against No. 7 Marquette, 23-7.

have not been involved in any such discussions."

General Manager Hank Peters said: "I can't comment officially on it because anything like that would have to come from Mr. Hoffberger, but I haven't heard a word about it, and I mean that sincerely. If anything were going on, I think I'd know about it."

Another report has baseball buying the A's from Finley, keeping the team in Oakland this season, then selling the franchise to Ed Cole, former chairman of the board of General Motors. The rumored price tag is $6 million, although Heideman indicated Finley's price is in the $8 million range. Cole would then move the franchise to Washington, satisfying a long-standing promise by Kuhn.

The franchise would switch to the National League, balancing the two leagues at 13 teams apiece. Presently, the AL has 14 teams and the NL has 12.

Finley's situation, under the heading of "franchise relocation," was one of the topics on the agenda of the owners, who were to meet in separate league sessions before joining for a general get-together.

Three-division play was another subject for discussion, with the AL virtually certain to approve it for 1978 and the NL having a better than even chance of accepting it.

NHL Playoff Competition Narrows

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

It is a time when teams struggling for playoff positions in the National Hockey League have to fight the temptation to watch the scoreboard and see how the competition is doing.

Boston Coach Don Cherry insists, for example, that "we cannot afford to worry about Buffalo," although the Bruins trail the first-place Sabres by four points in the Adams Division. "We have to play our schedule game by game. We have one game left with them at Buffalo, and it could be a key one for first place."

It could be, indeed, considering that both teams won Wednesday night — keeping the margin at four points. Boston has one more game to play than Buffalo, which has five games remaining.

The Sabres won for the 18th time in 25 games, besting Cleveland 4-2 and ruining the coaching debut of Harry Howell, who took over for Jack Evans. Evans was absent because of personal business.

The Bruins got a goal and three assists from Gregg Sheppard, while goalie Gerry Cheevers stopped 29 shots in picking up his third shutout of the season as Boston blanked the Detroit Red Wings 6-0.

The loss, Detroit's ninth by shutout this season, extended the Red Wings' winless string to 12 games.

In other NHL games, the New York Rangers downed Colorado 5-3, extending the Rockies' winless streak to 15 games; the Los Angeles Kings defeated the Chicago Black Hawks 3-1, and the Toronto Maple Leafs and New York Islanders skated to a 1-1 tie.

In the World Hockey Association, the Birmingham Bulls blanked the Phoenix Roadrunners 4-0 and the Quebec Nordiques beat the Cincinnati Stingers 6-4.

Chris Evert Slowing Down?

NEW YORK (AP) — It may be little more than wishful thinking, but Chris Evert's contemporaries say they are beginning to detect some chinks in the armor of the world's No.1 woman tennis player.

"The pressure on her is tremendous — I think she is beginning to show signs of the strain," says Rosie Casals, who at 28 and with the semi-retirement of Billie Jean King, is the grand dame of the ladies' pro circuit. "I find her looking more and more to outside interests."

"It is hard to become No. 1 and, once there, maintain it," adds Kristien Shaw. "She must always be asking herself, 'Where do I go from here?' She is her own biggest threat. She has set such high standards she is challenging the other young women to come up and be better."

One of the most formidable of these new challengers is Martina Navratilova, 20, the Czech defector who has beaten Chris once this year, won four tour events and leads Miss Evert in money winnings.

"It wouldn't be so hard if you just had to beat Chris on the court," Martina said. "But you have to beat her in the head. Her big edge is psychological. She is mentally tough. No one plays the important points better."

"But sometimes she seems to be dragging a weight on the court. I don't know how long she can stand going out there every day and hearing fans cheer against her."

The ladies take another shot at the incredible Miss Evert this weekend in the Virginia Slims Championship at Madison Square Garden, giving rise again to those inevitable questions: Who can beat her? How long can the stony Ft. Lauderdale, Fla., miss with the twofisted backhand dominate women's fans? Is there an heirress on the horizon?

Holder of both the Wimbledon and U.S. crowns, winner of almost half a million dollars in prize money last season, Miss Evert, at 22, doesn't look like a candidate for early retirement.

In her entire professional career, only eight women have been able to beat her. Last year she dropped only four decisions on the circuit. She has built up commanding leads over her current rivals ... 18-4 over Navratilova, 20-1 over Casals, 20-5 over Virginia Wade. She is 8-7 over King and 18-11 over Yvonne Goolagong, now on maternity leave.

"Concentration, determination and consistency — they are the reasons she wins," insists Britain's Miss Wade, who has won two of her last three meetings with Chris. "She doesn't have a great deal of variety — spins and things like that. Basically, she hits the ball the same way all the time. So she can't go off that much. It takes a

Chris herself listens to all of these assessments and prophecies, and smiles enigmatically.

"I have to put out 100 per cent to win," she says. "Eighty per cent is not enough. There's always pressure, certainly, but I try not to think about it."

"I get tired of the travel, the constant reminder that I have another match to play, then another. I find my mind wandering. That's when I take a break and go to dinner or a ballet.

"Two years from now? Who knows?"

Doug Toole of South Bloomfield is a medical patient in Doctors Hospital,

North. Let's remember him with cards.

Mrs. Virgil Waldon and family would like their many friends, relatives and neighbors to know that mere words can never express their sincere and heartfelt gratitude for their many acts of kindness and concern during the illness of their loved one, Virgil Waldon. They are so grateful to all those who extended their sympathetic hearts to them and did so much to soften their grief at his passing.

The many get-well cards, phone calls, visits to the hospitals and home, gifts, sympathy cards, beautiful floral offerings, food and prayers have meant so much in easing a long period of worry and sorrow. They feel they can never fully express their heartfelt gratitude to the Rev. John Currens for his spiritual guidance to Virgil during his illness and for his consoling message in his wonderful memorial service.

Special thanks to all the doctors and nurses who provided care, to our fine Emergency Squad for their assistance and to the Bastian Funeral Home for their kindness. They want every one to know they are sincerely grateful and pray that God will bless you all for your kindness.

Students Discover Wonders Of Nature

MENTOR, Ohio (AP) — Every boy and girl in Marilyn Fais' fifth grade class can identify a yellow bellied sapsucker and a tufted titmouse.

Rather than swatting the wasps that occasionally buzz through an open window on a spring day, they capture them under glass and carefully take them back outside. A lost spider that wanders into class gets similar treatment.

Students have been known to bring snakes into class, but only for a day or two.

"We must always return every living creature to its natural habitat," she often reminds her class.

Most often that is somewhere in the 17 acres of woods that surrounds Headlands Elementary School where Mrs. Fais teaches.

That is where students often roam when they show up at school early to accompany Mrs. Fais on one of her almost daily nature walks.

Everything from plants that grow on the windowsill of her classroom to the creatures of nature that are brought in or come on their own, she says, is borrowed from nature.

The students spot the sapsuckers,

Jobless Benefit

Claims Decline

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The Bureau of Unemployment Services says the number of Ohioans filing claims for unemployment benefits decreased during the week ending March 19.

Administrator Albert G. Giles said 11,630 jobless Ohioans filed initial claims, compared with 12,614 persons the week before.

The total number of unemployment claims was estimated at 170,256 as of March 19, compared with a weekly unemployment average in March 1976 of 232,623.

Sometimes early in the morning before students arrive or in the quiet of the empty room after they leave, Mrs. Fais says she sings a 19th century rhyme she learned as a child:

"All things bright and beautiful;
"All creatures great and small;
"All things wise and wonderful;
"The Lord God made them all."
She calls it her motto and and her classroom reflects her awareness of the environment.

This year, her class has its own tree—a mature mountain ash they bought with $100 raised by last year's class by selling a bicentennial quilt they made in school.

This year, students made a rug from rags and donated it to the Cleveland Museum of Natural History.

Another rug is now underway. It will be raffled and the money used for another, as yet unidentified, class project.

"Teaching school is so great", Mrs. Fais said. "It gives you a chance to do the things which will develop in the children lifelong interests and appreciation for the environment."

Northwest, Northeast Get Wet

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Rain and snow fell today in the Northwest, where it was needed, and in the Northeast, where it was not.

Stockmen, already troubled with drought, were warned to provide shelter for newborn livestock as a cold front pushed eastward to the Central Plateau.

Travelers were advised to be cautious of snow and strong winds in Utah, northeast Nevada and higher elevations in Idaho, Oregon and northern California. Rain fell at lower elevations in California and the Pacific Northwest.

High wind warnings and travel advisories also were posted for parts of southern California.

Snow continued in scattered areas of Pennsylvania, New York and northern New England.

In New Hampshire, Public Service Co. crews worked through the night to restore electricity to central and coastal communities hit with up to 14 inches of heavy, wet snow. As many as 35,000 homes were without electricity for some periods.

Clear skies brought frost and freezing temperatures to Virginia, North Carolina and eastern and central Tennessee.

Showers were reported in western Maryland. Light rain fell in Texas, Oklahoma and Louisiana.

Early morning temperatures ranged from 10 degrees at Marquette, Mich., to 72 at Key West, Fla.

Judge Ammer Sets Hearing On Five-Year-Old Case

James Robert Hunt, the deaf mute who was arrested over five years ago on charges of breaking and entering and arson, will be tried in Pickaway County Common Pleas Court, according to Judge William Ammer.

Hunt of Route 2, Kingston, was arrested by Pickaway County Sheriff's Deputies after he allegedly broke into and set fire to the Elmwood Elevator office building on Route 361 April 19, 1972.

In a pre-trial hearing at that time, Hunt pled not guilty and not guilty by reason of insanity.

On Jan. 22, 1973, he was civilly committed by the Pickaway County Probate Court to Orient State Hospital.

The case, placed on the inactive list because of his commitment, was recently re-opened by Pickaway County Prosecutor James Kingsley after Hunt was acquitted by a jury in Ross County in November on a charge of murder.

Hunt also faces a charge of aggravated burglary in Ross County. Prior to the murder trial, Ross

County authorities committed Hunt to Lima State Hospital where he learned to communicate with a staff worker.

Hunt did not appear for a scheduled hearing in Pickaway County Common Pleas Court Wednesday, but there was a question as to notice of the appearance.

Judge Ammer has re-set the preliminary hearing for April 6. Local attorney John Farthing was appointed to represent him in the case.

In other court cases Wednesday, Judge Ammer ordered a pre-sentence report on one defendant and suspended the sentences of four others.

A pre-sentence report was ordered on Elizabeth A. Hollis, 215 W. Mound St., who pled guilty to grand theft.

She was charged with illegally obtaining food stamps and Aid to Dependent Children payments by not declaring an earned wage from April 8 to Aug. 31. Monetary value associated with the charge was $514.

Geraldine Compton, 35, Groveport, was placed on probation for two years providing she make full restitution of $850 in illegal ADC payments she received after Oct. 1, 1975.

She pled guilty to the grand theft offense Jan. 19 and was sentenced to a term of from six months to five years in the Marysville Reformatory for Women.

Judge Ammer suspended concurrent six month to five year terms in the Mansfield Reformatory for John M. Woolever, 27, Columbus, and placed him on probation for three years.

Woolever pled guilty Feb. 1 to charges of breaking and entering and grand theft. He was charged with stealing a farm tractor April 6, 1974.

In establishing probation, Judge Ammer ordered Woolever to make restitution for the tractor and to not associate with certain persons.

A six month to five year term in the Marysville Reformatory for Women for Janet K. Large, 34, Chillicothe, was suspended by Judge Ammer, and she was placed on probation for three years.

She pled guilty Jan. 26 to a charge of grand theft stemming from the illegal obtaining of money from April 25, 1975, to June 14, 1976.

In ordering probation, Judge Ammer said she must make restitution of $11,297.82 to the victim of the crime. Chester Vanover, 20, 546½ E. Main St., was placed on probation for three years after Judge Ammer suspended a six month to five year term in the Mansfield Reformatory.

Vanover pled guilty Feb. 16 to a charge of breaking and entering. He was arrested Nov. 28 for unlawfully entering a local grain mill with the intent to commit a theft offense.

In establishing probation, Judge Ammer ordered Vanover to not associate with certain individuals and to make restitution of $865.

The State of Ohio was represented by Pickaway County Prosecutor James Kingsley in the cases.

Ted Lewis Board Meets

Members of the Ted Lewis Museum Inc. board of directors Wednesday authorized payment of 50 per cent of the cost of installation of a crime detection device at the museum in the old Second National Bank building.

The device will be installed if the Pickaway County Historical Society agrees to the installation and to pay half of the cost of $1,445.

Directors attending the meeting were: Judge William Ammer, president; Dr. Robert Liggett, David Yates, Judge O. Charles Hosterman, Link Mader and L. Robert Liston.

Liggett reported his committee is working on establishing criteria for the music scholarship to be presented by the board.

Judge Ammer named Polly Miller, Yates, Hosterman and Mader to a committee to plan the open house which will be held in early June.

The next meeting of the board will be Noon May 11 at the Colony House.

Young Democrats Meet

The first meeting in 1977 of the Pickaway County Young Democrats was held March 16 in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Billman. Kathy Moorehart, a new member, was introduced.

Bob Bensonhaver, president, reported on the expense account filed for 1976 and the organization's full charter for the Ohio Young Democrats.

ATTENDS BUSINESS SEMINAR — William Fee, tire sales and service manager of Circleville Oil Company, a Firestone tire dealership in Circleville, Ohio, receives a certificate upon completion of a week-long sales and management seminar at the headquarters of The Firestone Tire & Rubber Company in Akron, Ohio. Congratulating Fee are Lawrence J. Lombardo, right, Firestone vice president for trade sales, and William F. Tierney, manager of wholesale sales. Representatives from Firestone dealerships across the country attend the seminars held annually to update dealers in new developments in the tire industry and discuss sales and management objectives. Dealers also tour one of Firestone's Akron tire plants and visit the company's farm tire test center near Columbiana.

Circleville Safety Council, was master of ceremonies for the evening. He introduced the Rev. Melvin Maxwell who gave the invocation, then introduced Lawrence Whalen, manager of campaigns and congress of the safety and hygiene division.

Whalen said that he works with 52 local safety councils around the state, and is "impressed with the large turnout for the first safety banquet" in Circleville.

Because last night's dinner was the first gathering of the safety council, Whalen explained the safety division. He said it prints about 150 publications that can be distributed in the work place that deal with safety. Also, the division provides educational and training programs, including a 14 week course that has been used in Circleville through the Chamber of Commerce. He mentioned the All-Ohio Safety Congress to be held in Columbus April 12 through 14.

Whalen then presented the awards. Accepting for General Electric was Ed Farynowski, past chairman of the Safety Council.

Walter Hall received the 100 per cent award and Dave Scheible was presented the group award for PPG. Tom Spring, staff writer for the Circleville Herald, accepted both awards for the Circleville Publishing Company. The Van Camp Materials Company award was accepted by T. D. Van Camp.

The guest speaker related experiences of his past years in a humorous manner for the audience. His speech "Forward Ever, Backward Never," included parts of his life as a professor and coach.

Struck has coached several high school and college athletic teams. He told the group that three areas should be heeded by everyone, in every situation. They are "to care, to share and to dare."

After this speech, Gephart reminded the audience that the Safety Council is still a young organization in the community and there is still room for the membership to grow.

Deputy Helps Remove Man From House

Pickaway County Deputy Sheriff Jim Fite assisted Ross County Sheriff's Deputies in forcing a Yellowbud man to surrender to authorities.

The incident began 12:20 a.m. Thursday when Howard Jordan, 24, barricaded himself inside his Yellowbud home, a half mile south of the Pickaway County line.

Jordan was armed with a 20 guage shotgun, Deputy Fite said.

After repeated attempts to "talk" Jordan from the home failed, members of the Ross County SWAT team fired a tear gas grenade into the home to flush him out.

He was taken into custody a short time later and charged with felonious assault. His wife, Judy, was charged with obstructing justice.

Members of the Union Twp. Fire Department were summoned to the scene to extinguish a blaze to the house which began when the tear gas grenade exploded.

Moderate damage was reported.

Deputy Fite was requested to assist the Ross County Deputies by Pickaway County Sheriff Dwight Radcliff.

Correction

Pickaway County Deputy Sheriff Billy Huffman, who was suspended for three days by Sheriff Dwight Radcliff, reported for work Monday before walking off the job.

In a story in Wednesday's paper, The Herald reported that Huffman failed to report for work.

His three-day suspension, for conduct unbecoming an officer and dereliction of duty, will end Friday.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market, getting little solace from President Carter regarding inflation, opened lower today.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks dropped more than one point in the early going, and losers took a lead over gainers among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Traders, hoping the President's news conference might spark a rally in the afternoon session Thursday, ended the day with renewed selling.

Carter said it might be several more weeks before he would unveil his anti-inflation plan, and analysts were worried about the delay in dealing with the problem.

Oil stocks have been declining generally, fearing the government's upcoming energy program will restrict gasoline use.

Today's early prices included Illinois Power, topping the active list, up 1 1/2 to 56.

Gulf & Western was up 1/4 to 14 1/2.

On Thursday the Dow Jones industrial average dropped 6.65 to 935.67, bringing its loss for the last six trading days to 32.33 points.

Declines outnumbered advances by about a 7-4 margin on the NYSE.

The NYSE's composite index fell .27 to 54.25.

Women Marines Try Mock Combat

QUANTICO, Va. (AP) — Lt. Gayle Hand lay flat on her stomach in a cold, muddy trench, firing bursts at an advancing enemy from the M16 rifle propped in front of her.

The bullets were blanks, but the training was real for the former kindergarten teacher and 21 other female officers. On Thursday they became the first women in the history of the Corps to undergo combat training.

"I wanted to do something different," the 28-year-old Rural Retreat, Va., woman said during a lull in the two-day simulated war. "I like this pretty well, but eventually I'll go back to kindergarten. You can be a lady there."

Since Jan. 8, the newly commissioned female Marine officers have been trained alongside male officers in patrolling, amphibious operations, the use of terrain, weapons and underfire tactics. All are second lieutenants in a 21-week training period at Quantico Marine Base.

"It's very difficult to tell the men from the women," said Lt. Col. Pieter Hogaboam, a tactics group chief. "Once you put gear on them and helmets and give them rifles, they're all little green people. They're all Marines."

The women are not expected to see real combat. "They're not prepared for the front line, but for support roles," explained Lt. Col. Barbara Dolyak.

Lt. Col. Edward M. Mockler, an operations officer, said the women were undergoing combat training "to expose them and familiarize them with their environment so they will do their own job better."

Jannie Loftis, 22, of Ceres, Calif., said at first she didn't care for combat training. "But the culture shock is wearing off, and some of it is becoming fun," she said. "I really have a good time shooting my rifle today, and I hated my rifle when I first got it."

The women's training is a little less rigorous, Mockler said. Instead of doing pullups, they hang by their arms. The women's obstacle course is less difficult. While the men run 3 miles, the women only run 1 1/2 miles. However, several times a week both run up to 6 miles.

Dolyak said the women's performance is about equal with the men's. Women rank sixth and seventh in the company of 266 officers. Some women are in the middle of some at the bottom.

Medical Teaching Program Pushed

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Ohio's two newest medical schools could proceed with contracts with area hospitals for clinical teaching facilities under a measure passed by the Senate 30-0 on Thursday.

Sen. Marcus A. Roberto's bill provides that the Medical College of Northeast Ohio and Wright State University may spend capital improvements funds to expand or renovate nonprofit hospitals for ambulatory teaching facilities.

The last legislature appropriated $11.9 million for that purpose, but the schools found other statutes prohibited them from making improvements on private property.

Roberto, D-18 Ravenna, said his measure overcomes that obstacle and provides for 25-year leases with the hospitals. The alternative would be to construct separate teaching hospitals at a cost of $40 million or $50 million each, he said.

The bill went to the House.

Ethics Panel Urges Solons To Reject Mileage Payments

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A House ethics panel plans to formally advise lawmakers next month that they should not accept a mileage travel allowance for weeks when they do not attend sessions here.

Rep. Arthur Wilkowski, D-46 Toledo, chairman of the Ethics Committee, said Thursday the admonition will be followed by legislation making the practice illegal.

Under present policy when the General Assembly is in session, legislators automatically receive the 15 cents-a-mile allowance whether they attend or not.

Wilkowski said the committee would formally recommend at its next meeting April 20 an end to that practice and draft legislation to back up the advice with a law.

Existing law states that legislators are entitled to mileage, but does not say specifically that they must attend sessions to collect it.

At the same time, Wilkowski said he saw nothing wrong with legislators accepting the allowance for out-of-pocket travel expenses when they share a ride or use some means of transportation other than an automobile. Both are common practices, he noted.

The mileage is paid for one round trip weekly. Additional compensation is not provided for extra trips to Columbus, nor do lawmakers receive reimbursement for other expenses, such as hotel room bills.

The Lucas County attorney said it would be extremely difficult to police the mileage allowance, and added, "I'm not going to put the members of this House in a position where they will squeal on each other."

During the course of a meeting attended by only three ethics members, the committee learned of another relatively common practice—charging the state for long distance calls made by lawmakers within their districts.

Joseph Sommer, executive secretary of the House, confirmed the practice. He said monthly House telephone bills ran up to $15,000, with about $8,000 of it going for long distance calls. Sommer could not provide a breakdown for the cost of calls made outside of Columbus, but charged to House lines.

"It is very difficult to put a tight type of control over the telephones," Sommer said. "Apparently, it's in the minds of many members that this is justified."

Wilkowski and Rep. Alan Norris, R-27 Westerville, agreed that it was, if the calls related to legislative business and not pure politics or outside concerns. The committee also decided to research state law that directs that it "shall" investigate formal complaints against House members and "may" investigate charges.

Wilkowski said clarification of the panel's responsibility was needed as well as a definition of what was meant by "charges." He questioned whether the term extended to allegations reported in newspapers, or even to "rumors."

"I'm not concerned with any individual at this point," he said when asked if the committee was considering investigating a particular legislator.

Bill Fights Closed Meets

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Two lawmakers of opposing parties joined Thursday to introduce a bill that would end closed political caucuses in the legislature.

Reps. Charles R. Saxbe, R-75 Mechanicsburg, and Dennis E. Eckart, D-18 Euclid, said in a joint statement that "the citizens have a right to know who is making policy and why they are making it."

The legislature, when it enacted the open meetings "sunshine law" last session, exempted senators and House members with regard to closed caucuses.

Saxbe and Eckart said "since that time, the party caucuses have been held behind closed doors...it's time the legislature realized our 'do as we say, not as we do' attitude won't be tolerated."

The two House members said groups which have expressed interest in their legislation include the Ohio Civil Liberties Union, the Citizens League of Greater Cleveland and the Ohio Council of Churches.

A Page Of Opinion

Enjoyable But Puzzling

Sleep is a subject that has confounded many scientists, made fools of the wisest men and soothed every tired mind from the beginning of time. Science today has no illusions about the human need for sleep, as it once did. It knows every person needs sleep, but it does not know why. It recognizes the inconsistency which enables some persons to be completely rested after six hours of sleep, while others require eight, but it does not know why.

Sleep is one of the few traditional inefficiencies of human behavior which have not been even slightly altered in the face of a faster, more demanding, less patient, civilization.

Researchers have developed a little insight into the mystery after centuries of puzzlement and inquiry. It is the brain, not the body's muscular structure, which benefits most from the complete hibernation of human activity.

That the study of sleep should be a growing field is demanded by its mysteries. The reasons behind increased activity in this area are not so readily accepted. Sleep, above all practical considerations, is an enjoyable habit and one which cannot be encroached upon easily.

A Bit Jealous

By JIM BISHOP

Jealousy is the shadow of love. If the sun is high, it is short, hidden under the heart of affection. If light is waning, it is long, a caricature of the thing it imitates.

It is common and ignoble. Most adults will admit failures in life, but deny jealousy. Some psychologists assert that a certain amount of jealousy is normal. No one ever weighed that amount.

As an emotion, it injures at least two persons: the one who is afflicted, and the object of the jealousy. No one ever drew happiness from it — nor contentment. It is spawned by insecurity and fear and it strikes all humans from infants to the aged and infirm.

Humans are prone to think of jealousy as a dangerous emotion common to lovers. This is so because that type of jealousy reaches the newspapers. We kill, maim, scandalize and divorce in the name of love.

Infants become jealous and fretful when deprived of the complete attention of mother. Weaning an infant can induce it. A baby lives in a self-centered world of love and attention. It cannot concede that love and attention should be divided among others.

Husbands are jealous of wives. Wives are jealous of husbands. It isn't even necessary for one or the other to admire someone outside the family circle. A gradual, and perhaps normal, diminution of affection will do it.

A highschool boy cannot bear to see his steady date laughing with another boy. A highschool girl despises the girls who lavish attention on her "steady." They are cheap, loose, immoral. She is the only one in the world who is "good" for him.

Women weep when they kill. "I did it because I love him." Men who feel threatened tend to threaten. "I forbid you to ever speak to that man. If you do, I will walk out and you'll never see me again." This is called coun-terpunching.

Mothers dread to admit that they see growing daughters as competition. Daughters often play dangerous little games with daddy. None of it is innocent. There is nothing upstanding about daddy's desire to screen his daughter's dates, a scene which often drives a boy off into the shadows.

Grandmothers with sons are more menacing than grandmothers with daughters. They lavish more overt affection on junior than they did when he was growing. Softly, subtly, they can make a daughter-in-law appear to be a selfish slob.

Jealousy is common in business. Partners belittle each other's contribution to success. The man on top worries about the executive next in line. The manager knows he can do a better job than the president. The loser can tick off the failures of the boss at random. Sometimes, this neurosis is dormant. It strikes in unexpected flashes of lightning. At a party, a husband finds his wife in an engaging conversation with a strange man. They appreciate Lawrence Welk's music. You can't stand Welk. Nor the stranger.

This type of jealous surfaces on the drive home. She shouts that he has no reason to be jealous. Inwardly, she is pleased that she has aroused him. He insists on a minute-by-minute explanation of what she sees in such an obviously "dumb guy."

There is also the "forbid" type of jealousy. Each one sets parameters for the other. Each forbids the other to see this person or that, or to stop in the homes of friends, or to accept gifts or give them, or to kiss on the cheek in greeting.

These are all unnatural ground rules designed to protect an insecure love. They lead to innocent questions, such as "I thought you'd be home hours ago. Where have you been?" They also lead to days and nights of silence.

The perennially jealous person is miserable. He is possessive and threatened at that same time. Nothing he can do will make him feel confident. It occurs to him that nobody ever designed a chastity belt for men.

Thus we are led to believe that jealousy is an instinctive emotion, not one which is learned. And that sweetly defined rationalization helps to explain me to myself.

I am only the tiniest bit jealous. If I catch Kelly smiling at another man, I do not mention it. I do not ask for an explanation.

Urge Boost On Tax

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The Ohio Workers' Compensation Advisory Council has recommended a 30 per cent increase in rates paid by employers to keep the lid on a $1.3 billion deficit.

The unanimous proposal, approved Tuesday, follows a March 10 disclosure of the actuarial deficit in the State Insurance Fund. It finances the compensation program for injured workers into which 250,000 Ohio employers pay.

New rates are adopted by the Ohio Industrial Commission each June and become effective July 1.

Last July, the rate was increased 28.75 per cent by the OIC. In 1975 the rate went up 10.48 per cent. Individual employer rates vary according to injury risk and incidence.

OIC Chairman William Johnston said the recommendation may be followed, but that additional study must go into any final decision on rate levels.

A new workers' compensation reform law, effective in January, says that "rates shall be set at a level that assures that actuarial soundness of the fund."

The council also opposed any move to allow private insurance companies to write part or all of the workers' compensation coverage for Ohio's 4.5 million workers.

A half cup of ice cream has just about the same caloric content as a three-inch plain cookie, says National Geographic.

Speaking Of Your Health

by Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

I am convinced that as long as one fat, obese man or woman exists there will always be misinformation about this universal disorder.

Thousands of readers write to me hoping to learn that somewhere, some place, there exists the ideal diet that will help them to lose weight, not feel hungry, not depend on weight-reducing drugs, not have a desire for sweets or fattening foods and, especially, to be assured that every pound taken off will never return.

Such a miracle does not exist. What does exist are some basic scientific truths about obesity that are indisputable.

The first truth is that calories do count and must be counted if weight is to be controlled. The rule is a simple one. When the number of calories consumed is greater than the number of calories required by the body for fuel, a gain in weight is inevitable. The reverse, of course, is just as accurate. When the number of calories expended in all daily physical activities is greater than the number of calories consumed in a day, there will be a loss of weight.

Any new-fangled diet that does not take into consideration this rule must lead to failure in a weight-loss program.

The only variation from this truth occurs when there is some physiologic or metabolic disorder. Overactivity of the thyroid gland affects metabolism and thus play a role in gaining or losing weight, without necessarily being related to calorie intake. Although this and other metabolic conditions, are relatively uncommon they are often inaccurately offered as an excuse for gaining weight.

There are other familiar excuses for excessweight created by the people who bemoan their fat. How often have we heard:

"Everything I eat turns to fat."

"I just look at food and I gain weight."

"Overweight runs in my family. It's hereditary."

"I eat nothing for breakfast, nothing for lunch and just a small steak and salad for dinner. Still I can't lose an ounce."

The obese are ingenious in seeking out such farfetched, unrealistic causes for their inability to lose weight. Excuses, excuses, excuses. It's easier to create them than to look for the hidden calories that are the real culprits in the fight against fat.

Dear Editor:

The annual motor vehicle license sale commences April 1, 1977 for the blue and red stickers to be issued this year.

It is absolutely necessary that motor vehicle registration be accurate. Ohio Revised Code (O.R.C.) 4501.04 provides that 34 per cent of the moneys collected from motor vehicle license fees shall be distributed to municipal corporations and counties which constitute the residential district of registration.

Additionally O.R.C. 4504.04 permits certain political subdivisions to levy and collect a $5 license fee on all vehicles in the district of registration. In this jurisdiction Circleville currently relies on such funding to provide road and street repair and improvements.

The two provisions above are significant. However, in addition to the above, O.R.C. 5735.23 and 5735.27 provide that 30 per cent of the revenue from the gasoline excise tax and 7.5 per cent of the next 2 cents gasoline tax levied are to be distributed to the municipal corporations in Ohio based on motor vehicle registrations.

Needless to say, the value and importance of correct motor vehicle registrations has a direct relationship to the capacity of Circleville to provide well constructed and maintained streets and highways. After this winter, the need is even more critical.

Very truly yours,
JOHN R. ADKINS

NEW YORK (AP) — Who is Satra? Earlier this year a company named Satra announced it had obtained television rights to the Moscow Olympics in 1980, challenging the media to find a quick answer to the question.

Since then the company apparently has lost the TV rights to National Broadcasting Co., against whom it has filed a $275 million suit, companion to another $275 million suit against the International Olympic Committee.

That nobody could quickly describe Satra is in the nature of things, because Satra is a trading corporation, which its founder, Ara Oztemel, describes as "a company that explores needs and then goes out and finds a supply."

As such, Satra does not have the ready identification of smaller companies that have their names imprinted on trucks and real estate and advertisements. Satra does have some of these, but its main occupation is trading.

It conducts a huge amount of commerce with the Soviet Union and has since the very early 1950s, when Oztemel, an American born in Turkey, began importing chrome ore. The company is now the biggest U.S. chrome importer.

But Satra has grown far beyond the business of chrome mining and importing. It also imports other minerals, metals and alloys. It sells U.S. automotive steel to the Soviets. It imports-exports for its own account and for others.

It holds exclusive rights to distribute Soviet motorcars, motorcycles, bicycles, farm equipment and certain industrial machinery in West Germany, the United Kingdom, Canada and the United States.

Beginning next year it will sell and service the Lada, a sturdy Fiat-like car here, and hopes to develop sales of 50,000 to 60,000 units a year.

Ara Oztemel, 50, and a few associates own almost all of Satra.

He left Turkey in 1944 after his father died without a will, permitting the state to claim the estate. He worked here for the War Shipping Administration.

After the war he studied engineering at Northeastern University, graduating in 1949 but remaining in graduate school until 1951. After working as an engineer for Stone & Webster and Polaroid, Oztemel sought sources of chrome in Turkey and the Soviet Union.

As he explains it, "Satra was the first company to establish meaningful postwar trade relations with Eastern European countries, and is one of a limited number of companies accredited by the Soviet government to maintain offices in Moscow."

One thing led to another, as it always does for the successful trader. A good trader instinctively is on the alert for solving needs by bringing the supply together with the demand. When he is effective, the trader takes a cut.

A trader is a problem-solver, an adventurer, an opportunist, an exploiter, a diplomat, an acquirer of whatever skills and knowledge are needed to be effective. Oztemel, who spends 50 per cent of his time abroad, is effective.

Dear Abby:

By Abigail Van Buren

Should Girlfriends Play Second To Guys

DEAR ABBY: I am a mature 17-year-old girl. Last week I had planned to go to a movie with another girl, my best friend. She called at the last minute to say that a guy she knew had come into town unexpectedly and asked her to go out with him, so our date was off. (She said she knew I'd "understand.")

I felt very hurt and let down. My mother said I was wrong to feel that way because it was only natural for a girl to prefer to go out with a guy than with another girl, if a guy suddenly came into the picture. Do you agree?

Board Eyes Student Suit

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The Hamilton Local board of education took no action Wednesday after discussing the lawsuit of a 15-year-old high school junior who wants to participate in June graduation ceremonies.

Board members would not discuss the case after reconvening from the private executive session with two attorneys. The lawsuit against the school board seeks a court order allowing Kimberly Clark, who is completing high school in three years, to participate in graduation ceremonies at suburban Hamilton Township High School on June 15.

The student has been told to pick up her diploma in the principal's office because its school policy to include only seniors in graduation ceremonies.

Supt. Roger Hoffman said Miss Clark must have been considered a senior throughout the current academic year to graduate with the class.

Board president Frank Peters said Wednesday's session was the first time members discussed the lawsuit together.

Franklin County Common Pleas Court Judge G.W. Fais will hear the case on March 30.

Fact-Finders Study Grid Loss

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A state-appointed blue ribbon fact-finding committee to determine why a college football game was lost?

It didn't happen in Ohio, rest assured. It was instead the idea of Pennsylvania Gov. Milton J. Shapp, who of course, was not really serious.

"Following the very narrow defeat of the Penn State football team by an unnamed Ohio club," Shapp said in a recent letter to Gov. James A. Rhodes, "I immediately set up a blue-ribbon fact finding committee to determine if, in actuality, our Nittany Lions did lose fair and square, or if some diabolical and dastardly scheme prevented this outstanding football team from achieving their duly deserved victory."

Shapp said the panel found that since Penn State had won so many of the previous meetings with Ohio State — three — the Buckeyes should be allowed one win "lest you may not play the Nittany Lions again."

Besides, he said, by losing, Penn State would be able to up the bet on the next game to two bushels of Ohio apples.

In the meantime, Shapp agreed to pay off the bet for last year's defeat by sending Rhodes "some of Pennsylvania's finest mushrooms."

Sen. Harry Meshel, D-33 Youngstown, breathed a sign of relief, he said, when the Senate amended a bill that set penalties for tampering with motor vehicles odometers to defraud prospective buyers.

The amendment made all allowances for owners of automobiles which have exceeded 99,999 miles and then started over again with zero.

"I've got a '75 LTD with 120,000 miles on it. I want to sell it in a couple of months, and I wouldn't want to be cited for rolling back the mileage to 25,000," he said.

Meshel said he wanted to thank the Senate "for taking care of me."

Restaurateur Wins Lottery, $130,000

CLEVELAND (AP) — George Packis, who sells Ohio lottery tickets in his Savoy restaurant and bar in downtown Cleveland, says he makes a habit of buying "leftovers" when ticket sales end every week.

Thursday night one of his leftovers won him $130,000 in the Pot O'Gold game.

And Packis, 47, who lives in Westlake, gets to come back to try again next week.

Jasper Schember of Akron, who was last week's top winner with $40,000, had to settle for an additional $7,000 Thursday night.

Packis said he buys 10 to 20 tickets every week from the leftovers before returning unsold tickets to the Lottery Commission.

He said he and his wife, Annette, have three sons, and his winnings will go primarily to finance college educations.

Dorothy Rouse of Bellaire was top winner in the Double Play game with $62,000. Other Double Play winners were Grace Distefano of Columbus, $26,000, and Patsy Wilson of Dayton, $10,000.

Other Pot O'Gold winners included Joan Brooker of Lorain, $9,800; Diana Dorsey, also of Lorain, $8,500; Gerald Arnold, Medina, $8,100, and Harley Trueblood, Anderson, Ind., $6,900.

Rep. Gene Damschroder, R-85 Fremont, finds no sympathy for legislators seeking to increase their own mileage payments from 15 to 18 cents a mile.

Damschroder commutes to Columbus and back in a twinengine airplane which he says costs more than 50 cents a mile.

Acknowledging that he does so by choice, he says nevertheless that the present payments are enough.

He recently returned $7,000 to the state, which represented a $3,500-a-year pay increase the legislature voted itself starting Jan. 1, 1975.

It could have been a drastic ploy or mere circumstance, but Gov. Rhodes kept the chairman of the board of the nation's largest integrated gas company waiting for 10 minutes, at a conference earlier this week.

Rhodes finally came out of his private office into the cabinet room, after House Speaker Vern Riffe declared, "let's get this show on the road."

"This is Mr. Clarke," Rhodes told television newsmen, introducing Bernard J. Clarke, head of the Columbia Gas System, a seven-state combine. "You know the other gentlemen, you can focus on him (Clarke)." Clarke, 56, had been seated at a conference table, talking quietly with Marvin White, chairman of Columbia Gas of Ohio, a subsidiary.

The governor, who jawboned Columbia's No. 2 man earlier this month, gave no reason for his tardiness. He is usually early for engagements.

Don't laugh, a courier told the Statehouse press room clerk, as he handed him a news release.

The handout announced that "sterilization of secondhand mattresses" would be discussed at a meeting Monday of the state Bedding Advisory Board. The meeting will be open, it specified.

What the board actually intends to discuss, the release revealed in a later paragraph, is mandatory treatment or disinfecting of used mattresses before they are resold to the public.

Carter Unafraid Of Diplomacy

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter isn't showing his cards, but he has described the deck that his administration will put on the negotiating table in Moscow next week.

It's a different way of dealing in matters diplomatic, and what it suggests is that Carter doesn't consider foreign policy to be an arcane science reserved for the experts.

Instead, as he describes it, diplomacy is not all that different from politics: you build your constituency and then you make your move.

The President told his news conference on Thursday that he wants the world to know "I am not just speaking as a lonely voice" on foreign policy judgments, but with strong support of Congress and the country.

Carter said that is why he speaks publicly about matters that once were reserved for the private councils of government.

"I believe that it is very important for the American people to know the framework within which discussions might take place, and to give me through their own approval strength as a party to some of the resolutions of disputes, and also to make sure that when I speak, I don't speak with a hollow voice"

At the same time, Carter said, his willingness to talk isn't tipping the hand of his negotiators. He said his statements have not been so specific as to prevent both parties in a dispute from negotiating "with a fairly clean slate ahead of them."

So, as he sends Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance off for Moscow today, it is with a published agenda.

On the list:

—Strategic arms limitations, "and actual reductions for a change."

—U.S. and Soviet constraints on arms sales to other nations.

—Mutual reduction of military forces in Europe.

—Control, and possibly elimination, of all nuclear testing, both weapons and peaceful devices.

—Demilitarization of the Indian Ocean, an end to outside interference in southern Africa and cooperation on a Middle East peace conference later this year.

That is not new business. As candidate and President, Carter had discussed all those objectives before. But now, in a nationally televised news conference, he spelled them out briefly and simply as matters to be put on the table at this first round of high level talks in Moscow.

"I think it is very important that the strength of the presidency itself be recognized as deriving from the people of this nation, and I think it is good for us even in very complex matters, when the outcome of negotiations might still be in doubt, to let the members of Congress and the people of this country know what is going on," he said.

That may work better and it may not. But Carter always said it was the way he would function in foreign affairs.

Men And Women In Military Service

Russell Harless, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fredrick Harless of Route 2, Lancaster, enlisted in the U.S. Air Force today, according to MSgt Dave Hunter, here.

Upon graduation from the Air Force's six weeks basic military training, Russell will receive training in the Inventory Management. Harless is a 1975 graduate of Logan Elm High School.

He will be earning credits toward a Career Education Certificate through the Community College of the Air Force while attending basic and other Air Force technical training schools.

Donald L. Thompson Jr., 21, son of Mr. and Mrs. Donald L. Thompson, Kingston, recently was promoted to army sergeant while serving as a tank driver in Company B, 3rd Battalion, 68th Armor of the 8th Infantry Division in Mannheim, Germany.

The 1974 graduate of Zane Trace High School entered the Army in August 1974. His wife, Sharon, is with him in Germany.

Airman Timothy H. Hegarty, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert H. Hegarty of Harrisburg, has graduated at Keesler AFB, Miss., from the U.S. Air Force technical training course for avionics communications specialists.

Airman Hegarty, now trained to install and repair airborne communications equipment, is being assigned to Wurtsmith AFB, Mich., for duty with a unit of the Strategic Air Command. Completion of the course enables the airman to receive academic credits through the Community College of the Air Force.

Airman Hegarty is a 1974 graduate of Westfall High School. His wife, Marna, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William E. Rhinesmith of William sport.

ROTARY AUCTION — Rotarians were very spirited in their bidding at the annual auction for crippled children. The event has always created much interest in the club, with a great variety of items, such as original paintings, homemade pies and cakes, and various household items. Col. Jim Ford donated his services as auctioneer for this worthy cause. The Rotary Club gathered approximately $900 at the auction. The donkey basketball game between Rotary and the Mound-builders Kiwanis Club will be played in the high school gym Wednesday evening starting at 7:30 p.m. Pictured above are Col. Jim Ford, Dick Plum, Pastor Carl Zehner, and Dick Tootle.

County Welfare Office Given Training Grant

The Ohio Department of Public Welfare announces the Division of Social Services, Bureau of Services for Families and Children, Children's Protective Services Unit, has received a $65,000 grant for child abuse-neglect from the Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

The grant was awarded to demonstrate a multi-disciplinary training curriculum which is being provided by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare in 21 counties. They are: Ashtabula, Champaign, Clark, Coshocton, Delaware, Fairfield, Fayette, Franklin, Hamilton, Knox, Licking, Marion, Morrow Muskingum, Madison, Pickaway, Perry, Ross, Union, Washington and Williams.

The program is funded for 12 months. The training will begin in Pickaway County on March 30-31 at 8:30 a.m. The project will terminate July 31.

Curriculum will be offered to County Welfare Departments with children's services responsibilities, Children's Services Boards, mental health personnel, school personnel, law enforcement agencies and the medical profession.

The overall goal of the project is to reduce child abuse-neglect through early detection in multi-disciplinary treatment of stress situations in approximately one-fourth of the state. It is estimated that as many as 10,000 families will receive direct benefit from this demonstration project.

The five disciplines that will be invited to receive the training are representative of the professionals that are now providing some segment of protective services to abused and/or neglected children in Ohio. As a result of the same disciplines receiving the training it is hoped that protective services to children and families will be far more consistent and comprehensive.

The Ohio Department of Public Welfare intends to continue the training after the curriculum has been tested in the first program year. The 21 project counties will be assisting in planning and providing the training to all other Ohio counties in 1977.

Area Fights Water Waste

HAMILTON TOWNSHIP, N.J. (AP) — This Northeast area is not faced with the drought problems of the Midwest and West, but the town fathers are steamed up about the waste of water by residents.

Their first attack will be on long shower takers.

"The public sees a ... commercial on television with some guy stepping away from the shower, lathering up and just letting the water keep pouring down," said Arthur J. Julian, public works director. "The attitude is that water is something that's free and that the supply is endless. Well it just isn't."

A standard showerhead sprays about six gallons per minute, he said. So the town will give away showerheads that spray about two gallons per minute, emitting a soft mist instead of a pounding spray.

Julian estimates a saving of three million gallons of water daily if the town's 32,000 households use the showerheads. He says the saving in water costs will offset the $150,000 tab to distribute the showerheads.

The next step, says Mayor John K. Rafferty, is to do something about all that water in toilet tanks.

Hemophilia Research Needs Funds

CINCINNATI (AP) — A New England professor of medicine who helped pioneer a system of "self transfusion" for hemophiliacs in 1970 says further research has been hampered by a lack of funds.

Dr. Peter Levine, director of the Hemophilia center in Worcester, Mass., and a professor of medicine at the University of Massachusetts, said the 1970 program which gave impetus to a nationwide effort has been successful.

Levine, who spoke at the third annual symposium on hemorrhage and thrombosis at Good Samaritan Hospital, also said it is untrue that the blood of hemophiliacs lacks a clotting agent.

"...the factor is there," he said. "What we are trying to do through research is to find out why it doesn't work."

"What we have discovered," Levine said, "is that the problems with the molecules takes several forms." However, he said, funds from the National Institute of Health and foundations are in short shrift and "research centers are closed down all over or cutting back."

Levine said the cost of treating the bleeding disease would plummet if research is able to find out why clotting factors in the blood of the victims do not work and develop a treatment.

His group is now working on the problem with one medical researcher and one biochemist. He said he has room for four more. He said research will also develop more knowledge about the opposite disease, thrombosis, which is caused by too much clotting in the blood veins.

Barberton, McKinley Clash

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The one game Ohio's boys prep basketball fans have waited all season long for is now one day away—No. 1 Barberton vs. No. 2 Columbus Linden-McKinley.

And the rival coaches, Barberton's Jack Greynolds and Jene Davis of Linden-McKinley, are making championship noises for their 25-0 teams.

"We've got a lot of guns. If we can't beat you with one, we'll go to something else," said Greynolds after Barberton's press demoralized No. 3 Elyria 80-55 in the semifinal opener Thursday night.

"We'll match up with Barberton real well, much better than we did with LaSalle. They were much more physical and taller," said Davis following a 74-69 escape of the unheralded Cincinnati team.

But before Saturday's big school summit meeting, the Class AA and Class A schools play their semifinals today in St. John Arena.

In Class A, Continental, 20-6, of Putnam County tangled with Fort Loramie, 18-8, of Shelby County while 1968 victor Mansfield St. Peter's, 21-4, went against fourth-rated Richmond Dale Southeastern, 23-1, of Ross County.

The Class AA semifinals tonight send No. 4 Cleveland Latin, 22-2, against Ottawa-Glandorf, 22-2, and No. 3 Columbus Mifflin, 21-3, against Dayton Jefferson, 17-7.

It took two classy All-Ohioans to propel Barberton and Linden-McKinley into their showdown.

Todd Penn, only 5-foot-9, but twice all-state, ran the Panther's four-corner offense in the fourth quarter. He scored 11 of his 26 game-high points in the closing eight minutes.

Penn's performance brought Linden-McKinley from behind with seven minutes to play.

Carter Scott, Barberton's springy 6-2 All-Ohioan, did his damage early against Elyria, to help hand the Pioneers their first loss in 25 games this season. He collected 1 of his 21 in the first half as Barberton rolled up an impressive 45-18 margin.

Barberton's two-season winning spell has reached 52 games. And the Magics' romp did not surprise Greynolds. "We've played 48 of our last 51 games about the same. We're not cocky or brash, just that we are confident of our ability."

Coach Mike Riley, his taller Elyria team unraveled by Barberton's press, put it much stronger.

"Their skill level of play for a high school team is just something to behold," said Riley.

No wonder the Elyria coach was dazzled. Barberton put all its regulars in double figures, sank 63 per cent of its shots and hit hot streaks of 14, 10 and 10 straight points in the first half alone.

Richard Montague, a 6-9 All-Ohioan, put in 20 points before fouling out and Hubert Oliver added 18 for the Pioneers. Twins Marty and Mark Bodnar each had 14 points for Barberton.

McGuire Wants Retirement Win

ATLANTA (AP) — Sometime this weekend, before the Marquette Warriors play basketball, Al McGuire will slap on a pair of dungarees and sneakers and climb aboard his motorcycle for a ride to nowhere.

Even in so public an event as the NCAA playoffs, McGuire needs his privacy.

"It's just my way," says the theatrical, unorthodox Marquette coach. "I like getting off by myself. I'll do what has to be done for the NCAA tournament. After that, I like my own time."

McGuire is a rebel with a cause. He has his last chance for a national championship because he is retiring at the end of the season.

An NCAA trophy would be the perfect going-away present for the coach who has everything else.

His teams all have been extensions of his personality. And this year's Marquette model is no different. The Warriors play high-tension, low-scoring basketball.

"I'm a defensive coach for a reason," McGuire says, half-seriously. "I didn't score as a player. I was a slow player and I guess subconsciously I work on defense."

McGuire's opposing coach at North Carolina-Charlotte, Lee Rose, also has a lot of drive, but for a different reason. Rose aches for recognition and certainly will have that if his 49ers beat McGuire's Warriors in Saturday's semifinals at the Omni.

Rose has been waging a virtual one-man battle for acceptance of the UNC-Charlotte program since arriving there two years ago. Part of his hope was to join the Atlantic Coast Conference, but his team was shut out there, leaving him bitter.

In North Carolina's Dean Smith, there is a wistful melancholy despite all his enormous successes. Among Smith's achievements are six ACC tournament titles and seven regular-season championships in the last 11 seasons while going to 11 national tournaments in that span.

However, Smith never has won the national championship, and this all-consuming fire will be burning within him as his Tar Heels face Nevada-Las Vegas.

Considered the dean of American basketball coaches, literally and figuratively, Smith is appearing in the prestigious final four for the fifth time in his career. But the last four times, he watched the national title go to some other team.

Jerry Tarkanian, the coach of Nevada-Las Vegas, has other pressures to deal with — most notably his own ambitions. Perhaps none of the four coaches is as intense as the passionate Rebels' leader nicknamed "Tark The Shark."

Tarkanian's total involvement shows during a game, when he is either chewing on his nonexistent fingernails or turning the wrath of his bite on a towel.

Tarkanian's pressure has not been alleviated, either, by the NCAA, which is investigating the Nevada-Las Vegas program for possible recruiting violations. Long Beach State had similar problems when Tarkanian coached there and the 49ers' program was left in shambles upon his departure four years ago.

Pirates Blast Red Sox

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Call Boston the black and blue Red Sox.

The only thing for which the baseball team can be thankful is that Thursday, March 24 is behind them. The fact that they were shelled 8-1 by the Pittsburgh Pirates was the least of their problems.

They also lost two veteran pitchers and an All-Star centerfielder through the most eccentric of mishaps.

"Awful," said Boston Manager Don Zimmer. "Just awful."

Lynn is expected to miss the next seven to 10 days while it was not immediately determined how much time Wise and Jenkins would miss.

Meanwhile, the Cincinnati Reds bruised Los Angeles pitching for 15 hits, including four home runs, in downing the Dodgers 11-9. Mike Lum hit two of the homers, including the shot that broke a 9-9 tie. Ray Knight and Joel Youngblood also connected for Cincinnati.

Milwaukee's Cecil Cooper drove in five runs, including three with a home run off newly-acquired A's pitcher Doc Medich, pacing the Brewers' 10-8 triumph over Oakland.

The expansion Toronto Blue Jays won for the sixth time in 14 outings as Jim Mason had three hits, scored twice and drove in the winning run during a 4-3 victory over the Chicago White Sox. Toronto's expansion mates in the American League, the Seattle Mariners, evened their record at 7-7 by outscoring the Cleveland Indians 16-13 with help from two-run homers by Ruppert Jones and Dan Meyer.

Bob Forsch pitched six scoreless innings and Ken Rudolph's two-run, sixth-inning double helped the St. Louis Cardinals beat the Baltimore Orioles 4-0.

Both New York teams lost, giving up 10 runs apiece. Tommy Hutton's three-run homer in the bottom of the ninth helped the Philadelphia Phillies beat the Mets 10-8, while Roy Smalley homered twice, powering the Minnesota Twins' 10-4 triumph over the Yankees.

Frank Tanana struck out eight in seven innings and Joe Rudi's ninth-inning single drove in the winning run as the California Angels edged the San Francisco Giants 4-3.

Jerry Turner's home run capped a five-run eighth-inning burst by San Diego and lifted the Padres to a 6-2 decision over the Chicago Cubs.

Cookie Rojas drove in four runs, the last two on a tiebreaking single in the 10th inning, giving the Kansas City

Royals a 5-3 victory over the Texas Rangers.

Cesar Gonzalez tripled home the winning run in the ninth inning, giving the Houston Astros a 2-1 triumph over the Detroit Tigers.

In split squad games, Gerald Hannahs, Don Carrithers and Joe Kerrigan held Atlanta to one hit, pitching the Montreal Expos to a 2-0 victory over one part of the Braves squad while Atlanta's Andy Messersmith held a Texas squad to two hits over six innings in helping the Braves beat the Rangers 4-1.

Immaculata

Beats MC

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Immaculata and Delta State, the only finalists in the brief history of the Association of Intercollegiate Athletics for Women basketball tournament, have moved within one game of a sixth straight championship matchup.

Tennessee and Louisiana State could break the domination of the two AIAW powers in tonight's semifinals.

Immaculata ripped Mississippi College 100-78, LSU defeated Baylor 71-64, Tennessee ousted Kansas State 81-69 and defending champion Delta State romped over Southern Connecticut 75-49 in Thursday's quarter-finals.

LSU, 28-7, meets Immaculata, 29-3, and Delta State, 30-3, plays Tennessee, 26-4, tonight.

Sandy Miller scored a careerhigh 33 points and grabbed 17 rebounds, leading Immaculata over Mississippi College. The Mighty Macs were in command throughout. Alfreda Craft of Mississippi College, 20-12, scored 37 points.

"I was surprised we handled them that easily," said Immaculata Coach Cathy Rush.

Spurs Beat Rockets; Win 118-112

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Larry Kenon did not do much in support of the theory that an athlete plays better when he is rested.

It was the fourth quarter of the San Antonio Spurs' game against the Houston Rockets Thursday night, and Kenon was tired. "I was just trying to stay active and get some second effort," he said.

That second effort turned into 14 final-period points and carried the Spurs to a 118-112 victory over the Rockets.

San Antonio led 95-94 with 6:11 remaining when Kenon struck for six consecutive points, putting the Spurs ahead 101-94 with 4:40 left.

"You could see both teams were tired — I knew I was," said Kenon. "But I just got my good rhythm."

The rhythm helped Kenon finish with 23 points and 17 rebounds, as the Spurs became the first team to rebound the Rockets in the last 17 games. San Antonio, with Billy Paultz and Mark Olberding combining for 17 more rebounds, ended up with a 55-48 edge.

The Spurs' Billy Paultz contributed 28 points and George Gervin added 25 while Calvin Murphy and Dwight Jones led Houston with 28 and 25 points, respectively.

In the other National Basketball Association games Thursday night, the New Orleans Jazz topped the Cleveland Cavaliers 92-87 and the Buffalo Braves trimmed the Phoenix Suns 107-102.

Three of the other 107 golfers after the $2,650 first prize on the 6,800-yard Cypress Creek Country Club course are a stroke back with 71s. They were Doc Doctor of Buffalo, N.Y., Mike Preston of Creamridge, N.J., and Art Russell of Freeport, Tex.

Testing Week Completed At PRJVC

By BECKY WOLFORD
"Tests... Tests... Tests." Around Pickaway-Ross JVC last week that's all you would have heard.

Starting on Tuesday March 15, all students enrolled in the trade and industrial programs took part in the State Achievement Tests.

Three sections of the test were given, starting with English Grammar on Tuesday. On Wednesday each of the individual programs took a test that would place them, in their class only, according to how they rated on their tests. Finally, on Thursday each program took a test that would rate their program against all other similar programs in the state.

The purpose of these tests is to see how one vocational school differs in teaching methods from another. When the tests are returned, each student will be able to see where he, as an individual, ranks against his fellow classmates. Also, each teacher will be able to tell where he or she is lacking in teaching emphasis.

These tests are considered part of the Vocational Industrial Clubs of America (VICA) learning program.

Guidance Guidelines

All interested students and their parents are invited to a Spring Tea April 3 from 2 until 4 p.m. at Holzer Medical Center School of Nursing. Guided tours of the dormitory and schools will be held.

Workers available for low-level jobs are becoming a vanishing species. A shortage of this kind of worker is foreseen by the Federal Labor Department: cooks and kitchen workers, laundry machine operators, janitors, domestic servants, and many kinds of helpers and laborers. About 1 in 10 U.S. workers have been employed in such jobs in recent years.

A representative form Capital University will be here on Thursday at 10:46 a.m. Interested students and parents are invited to attend this session.

Scheduling for 1977-78 by the present Junior Class will be held Monday and Wednesday next week.

One of Circleville High School's students attending the Pickaway-Ross Joint Vocational Center is Greg Pearce. He is enrolled in the junior drafting program.

Greg is 17 years old, and he resides with his mother, Mrs. Doris Pearce, at 1470 Kingston Pike. His hobbies include building car models. After he graduates, Greg plans to go to California. Greg feels that he is learning more at vocational school about what he wants to do in the future.

"Come on down! It's a lot more fun, and it is easier to learn the subject you want to take as a career," says Greg.

European Trip Itinerary Explained

By KELLY STEELE
Florence, Pompeii, Rome, Venice, and Pisa are some of the cities which 16 CHS students will be visiting soon. Mrs. Winifred Breegle and her Latin students will depart from Columbus on April 7 for a 10-day trip to Italy. From Columbus, aboard a Pan Am 707, they will fly to Philadelphia, and there they are off to Rome.

Over Easter weekend the visitors will view St. Peter Basilica, the Trevi Fountain, the Roman Forum, the Colosseum, the Pantheon, and the Catacombs.

On the fourth day of the tour, Pompeii will be the main attraction. The city, destroyed by an eruption of Vesuvius in 79 A.D., was, as Mrs. Breegle commented, "most impressing to the students" on the last tour in 1975. Also that day they will visit a cameo factory where they will watch as the cameos are made.

From Pompeii the tour will return to Rome where they will visit the Vatican Museum and the miraculous Tivoli Fountains at the famous Villa d'Este. The fountains, 1,000 in number, all work naturally by the force of gravity.

Next they will travel to Florence and on to a chocolate factory in the famous university town, Perugia. In Florence, plans are made to stop at the Uffizi Gallery to see Michelangelo's famous statue of David.

The final days will be spent in Venice, watching Murano glass blowers, in Pisa, and then returning to Rome.

The tourists will return to Columbus April 16.

Chaperones for the event along with Mrs. Breegle are Mr. and Mrs. P.J. Ranck and Mrs. Robert Chalfin.

yearbook will be edited by Kathy Fisher. Assistant editor is Eric Hart.

The business manager is Barb Bobo, who will be assisted by Sharon Stevenson. The office of sports editor is held by Greg Berrigan.

Teacher Relates History To Present Day

STEVE LUST

By JOEL BAKER
"To get kids interested in history," says Steve Lust, American History teacher, "is important because history is relevant to today's problems." The Otterbein graduate has taught at CHS for four years. He took courses at Ohio State for accreditation as a drivers' education instructor.

In his spare time, Lust enjoys gardening and watching sports. He is active in the Humane Society. He is also the president of the Circleville Educational Association, the organization of teachers in the Circleville system.

Lust is the advisor of the Junior Class. He organizes the concession booth at football games, runs other fund-raising events, and supervises the prom preparations.

Lust says he became interested in history because of good history teachers in his high school. He feels that history is interesting, and he hopes to get his students involved with it.

Students who do not work up to their potential are the most discouraging part of teaching, according to Lust.

'Web Of Murder' Presented By Seniors

By BRETT ALLEN
This year's Senior Class Play, "Web of Murder," will be presented April 22 and 23 at 8 p.m. in the CHS auditorium. Neal Handler, director of the play, commented, "I think this is an excellent play, and the players are doing a good job in learning their lines and working together."

The play is about an old lady named Minerva and her will. Under hypnosis Minerva predicts that she will die along with three others in the family. The audience is kept in suspense by these murders and Minerva's will.

Minerva Osterman is played by Sally Schlegler. Minerva is a forceful, domineering woman in her 60's. She rules the house with an iron hand and is very outspoken and rude.

Belle Hamilton is Minerva's niece and is played by Deb Butler. She is a vivacious girl of about 29.

Dr. Adler, played by Arthur Whitfield, is a tall, thin man of commanding presence. He also has large and piercing eyes.

Keith Latimer is a handsome, virile man of 28. This part is played by Mark Rustin.

Mary Hamilton is an attractive girl of about 23. She is Belle's sister and Keith's fiancée. Mary is a smart but conservative dresser and is played by Susan Mullet.

Nora is a housekeeper, who is about 58 years old. She is a calm and gentle person who has a kind face and sympathetic manner. This part is played by Kathy Fischer.

Pete Martinelli is played by Dan DeFrank. Pete is Belle's fiancée; he is an energetic but not-too-bright rugged man of about 30. Stephanie Osterman, played by Beth McNaughton, is a quiet, plain-looking woman, about 37 years old. She is Minerva's daughter and is rather drab.

The Man is played by Jerry Yeatts. He is a suave and dark man of 35, who possesses a sinister yet charming manner.

Handler would like to encourage everyone to come see this year's play. He says, "For an enjoyable evening, I recommend seeing this fine play."

Travel advisories were posted in parts of Nevada, Wyoming and mountain areas of Southern California.

Shows and thundershowers fell in most Pacific coast states overnight, and snow was reported at higher elevations.

Rain also fell along the Gulf coast and in northern Florida.

Frost and freezing temperatures were reported in West Virginia, the mid-Atlantic coast states and the Carolinas.

Early morning temperatures ranged from 11 degrees at Marquette, Mich., to 75 at Key West, Fla.

The forecast called for showers from the Rockies through the Central and Southern Plateau, with some snow at higher elevations. Rain also was forecast for southeast Texas and the lower Mississippi Valley. Snow was to continue in some northern New England areas.

Temperatures were to be cool in the Northeast and from the northern Rockies into California and Arizona. Unseasonably mild weather was expected in the Plains and Mississippi Valley.

Tests Show Chicks Not Dumb Clucks

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Chicken Little notwithstanding, feathery farm creatures may not be such dumb clucks after all, a university researcher says.

If they have to, chickens can perform tough tasks normally considered the domain of brainy animals like monkeys, said Rutgers University nutritionist Robert Squibb.

"Over the years, they've put monkeys at the top of the intelligence scale and the bird at the bottom of the heap," he said. "But he's not so darn dumb. He can really do marvelous things."

Squibb blamed chickens' "bad public relations image" for evolution of such derogatory terms as "dumb cluck," adding: "We bought it too until we tried this."

Squibb has trained chickens to figure out how to press three buttons in proper sequence in a box-like contraption to get food to drop from a slot.

"It took considerable intelligence to figure it out," Squibb said Thursday in an interview. "It's amazing how rapidly they learned."

He said that after the chickens mastered the button sequence, it was changed. The birds figured out the new required routine within 7 to 10 days, he said.

"He's as intelligent as a monkey in solving this problem," Squibb said of the chicken. "It's really amazing. I'd hate to be sitting myself in that little box. It would drive you crazy."

'Sunset' Bill Goes To House

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Although a series of so-called "sunset" bills have been introduced in both houses, the one sponsored by Rep. A. G. Lancione, D-99 Bellaire, is the first to emerge from a standing committee.

The House Governmental Affairs Committee reported it back to the House floor Thursday with a recommendation for passage. It now awaits assignment to a floor vote by the rules committee, of which Lancione is chairman.

The "sunset" bill requires periodic legislative review of state agencies and provides that an agency, board, or commission will go out of existence after six years unless its life is renewed by the legislature.

It is an increasing popular concept in legislative bodies among the states and in Congress.

Validation Stickers On Sale In April For A-K Car Owners

Ohio Bureau of Motor Vehicles Registrar Dean Dollison issued a reminder today that passenger car owners whose last names begin with the letters A through K have the month of April to purchase their 1977 passenger car validation stickers and registrations.

Deputy Registrars who will be issuing passenger car registrations beginning April 1 in Pickaway County are:

Mary J. Zahard, Pickaway County Court House; Stanley T. Ramsay, 204 Long St., Ashville; Mary Ellen Schwartz, 10 N. Main St., New Holland; and Rose E. McDill, 218 S. Allen St., Williamsport.

The BMV Chief stated that those drivers who presently have the familiar Ohio red and white license plates on their passenger cars will only need to obtain a 1977 validation sticker and registration card this year.

The blue validation sticker for April registrants is to be placed in the lower right-hand corner of the rear license plate on passenger cars. A through K vehicle owners must display their validation stickers on their cars by midnight, April 30, or face legal penalties for having an improperly registered vehicle.

Registrar Dollison offered this advice to vehicle owners when registering their passenger cars:

Be sure to bring your Ohio Certificate of Title (or memorandum certificate of title) and your 1976 registration card with you when renewing your registration. Both are needed to renew your registration. If your title has been lost, you must obtain a duplicate title from the same county clerk of courts office which issued the original title. If your 1976 registration card has been lost, a verification card can be completed at the deputy registrar office, which will allow you to obtain your 1977 registration.

If your schedule permits, visit a nearby license agency on a weekday, but avoid noon-time crowds. Lines are usually short, and you'll be making it easier for people who can only register after work or on weekends.

Remember to take enough money to

Circus Set For Fair

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The Ohio Expositions Commission announced Thursday that Ringling Brothers Barnum & Bailey Circus, the "Greatest Show on Earth," has been hired to perform at the Ohio State Fair.

The circus will be in an open air setting on the infield of the fairgrounds grandstand from Aug. 22 to Aug. 28.

A spokesman for Gov. James A. Rhodes said the event was unprecedented. "They've never done a fair before," the aide said of Ringling Brothers. "It's a whole new field for them."

Without the big top, circus performers will be able to use extra high wires and human cannon acts, the spokesman said.

The price tag to the state for the seven-day performance is still being negotiated.

The circus plans promotions across the state, according to the governor's spokesman.

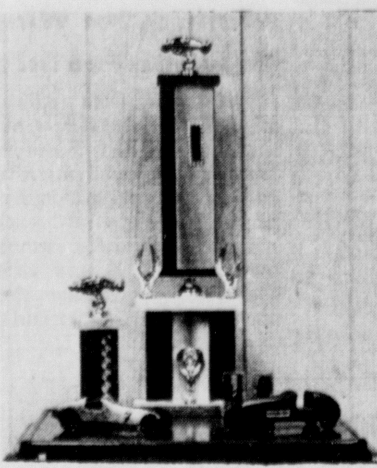

pay for your fees. Many deputy registrars only accept cash payment for fees since they are personally liable to the state for 'bad' checks they accept.

The 1977 passenger car registration fee is $10.50 (including the fifty cent deputy registrar fee) in counties which do not charge a permissive tax. Total cost of a passenger car sticker in permissive tax counties is $15.50.

Persons with L through Z last names must wait until May before they register their passenger cars. Deputy registrars cannot begin registering L through Z owners before May 1.

No matter what alphabetical group a vehicle owner is in, any non-passenger vehicle can be registered between now and May 31. Vehicle owners should check with local deputy agencies first to determine if their non-passenger vehicles can be registered at the agency since some deputy registrars do not handle anything but passenger car registrations.

The BMV Chief warned vehicle owners not to make the mistake of waiting until the last minute to register their cars. "Millions of people will be registering in April," Dollison said, "and long lines can be expected at deputy registrar offices if people put off going to their local agency to register until the end of the month. I advise everyone who can to go early in the month and avoid last minute lines."

DERBY TIME

Highlighting the county Boy Scout Show at the fairgrounds will be the Cub Scout Pinewood Derby. Scouts will compete for these trophies and medals. The public show runs from noon to 5 p.m. Saturday.
